Use of Sidewalks For Skating Wins Before Committee

Ordinance Committee Recommends Repeal of Old Ordinance and Offers Council New Law.

BONDS CUT TO $1,000 FOR JITNEY DRIVERS

Councilman Fred Woodall Says That He Will File Adverse Report When Council Meets.

Children of Atlanta who, in the words of Alderman W. B. Hartsfield, chairman of council's ordinance committee, "have placed themselves in the category of law violators" by reason of their failure to observe the ordinance prohibiting the use of sidewalks for roller skating purposes, won a sweeping victory Friday afternoon when the committee by unanimous vote approved a resolution repealing the ordinance.

The committee at its same session by a vote of four to one approved a resolution to reduce the amount of indemnity bonds against jitney drivers from $5,000 to $1,000. The original ordinance adopted by council at its session last Monday was vetoed by Mayor Sims when a representative delegation of drivers appeared before him to ask an opportunity to be heard on the measure. The mayor in vetoeing the ordinance, however, stated that he was in favor of its provisions but that, in his opinion, the bond stipulated was excessive and would work hardship on the operators.

Plans Adverse Report.

Councilman Fred C. Woodall, who opposed the amendment to the jitney ordinance, stated after the meeting that he would file an adverse report in council seeking to amend the ordinance by placing the idemnity bond at $2,500.

"The city might as well not have any bond from jitney drivers at all if it is to be only $1,000," asserted Councilman Woodall. "It seems to me that to reduce the original bond of $5,000 to half that sum would be a fair compromise, and would be a protection to citizens of Atlanta, whose interests should be considered above all the rest.

"If a citizen happened to be run down and crippled for life, he could not sue the jitney driver for more than $1,000 under the majority report on the resolution. That would hardly be sufficient to pay his lawyer's fee."

Owing to the large delegations appearing before the committee on the roller skating and jitney measures, the meeting was held in the council chamber instead of in the committee room on the third floor of the city hall where such meetings are customarily held.

Sutton Leads Fight.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, was the main spokesman in favor of granting privilege to skate on sidewalks. Mr. Sutton pointed out the health-producing tendencies that skating has upon children, stating that the sidewalks were the safest place for them. He voiced strong disapproval of children skating in the streets, declaring that their lives were constantly in jeopardy from motor vehicles and traffic.

Representatives from various parent-teacher associations from the Atlanta Woman's club, echoed Mr. Sutton's views and several communications, including one from the Atlanta Federation of Trades, indorsing the repeal of ordinance, was read.

Opposed to Repeal.

City Warden W. B. Johnson and a delegation from the fifth ward opposed repeal on the grounds that children in that ward had "almost commandeered the sidewalks and by their shouts and noise made it impossible for grown-ups to breathe easy during the day and night."

The resolution, which takes the place of one introduced in council last Monday by Alderman Jesse W. Armistead provides for a repeal of

50 YEARS AGO TODAY IN The Constitution (FACSIMILES)

Immense Democratic Gains.

The Albany Argus prints a table giving the results of the late town elections in thirty-seven of the counties of New York, as compared with the results of the same towns in 1872. The Democrats have gained 84 towns and carried majorities in 15 counties that last year went Radical. The World says that the splendid and surprising gains encourage the belief that the State will be easily redeemed next fall.

Senators on a Southern Tour.

A Washington dispatch to the Baltimore Sun states that Senator Cameron, Senator Howe, and several other leading gentlemen expect to start on an extended Southern trip on Monday, the 24th instant. They will visit in their journey all the principal cities from Richmond to New Orleans. The object of the trip is mainly one of pleasure, but other matters doubtless enter into it. The party expect to spend some time in New Orleans where more than forty years ago Senator Cameron was concerned in the project of a canal to connect the waters of the Mississippi

BARRIERS OF ICE GATHERING WATERS ABOVE SIOUX CITY

CITY INUNDATED.

Sioux City, Iowa, March 23.—Sioux City was being inundated late tonight. Residents were fleeing in panic.

Sioux City, Iowa, March 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—Within four inches of the flood stage and with a steadily rising river, Sioux City tonight is facing a serious outlook, as the struggle proceeds south of here between an immovable mass of solid ice, 10 miles long, and spring flood waters.

Tonight the huge iceberg continues its choking grip on the Missouri's channel, and the constantly rising waters are spreading over the lowlands.

Late this afternoon the waters broke a newly formed gorge above the first gorge, and swept it down on the first.

The first gorge held. The giant battering ram became a reinforcement. Tonight a cold wave is cementing the two masses into one huge iceberg, 10 miles long.

The checked waters are spilling over the lowlands, far and wide, while the inhabitants are fleeing to higher ground, many abandoning all their property.

Back water from the Floyd river, which this afternoon overflowed its banks, now covers several residential blocks in Sioux City, to the depth of one foot. Police are warning all residents near the Floyd river to be prepared to move.

It is impossible to estimate the territory menaced by the great gorge. If the gorge breaks suddenly, and a great wall of water is loosed probably it will flood all the lowlands for more than 50 miles south of Sioux City.

The river stage at Sioux City at 7 p. m., was 16.4, and at 8 o'clock it was three inches higher, reaching 16.7.

Old settlers who have seen the present gorge recall the historic gorge that formed near here in 1881, and which caused a bad flood. It formed on April 1 and held for several days. It filled five miles of river channel, and finally went out with a roar that was heard for many miles. Then the river fell 12 feet in a remarkably short time.

The present ice gorge is now more than 10 miles long, and a cold wave that is setting in, is adding to the seriousness of the situation.

Woman Scalded When She Falls Into Bath Tub

Miss Ruby Thompson Is Being Treated at Georgia Baptist Hospital.

Miss Ruby Thompson, 37 years old, of White Plains, Ga., is a patient at the Georgia Baptist hospital suffering from burns received when she fell into a tub of scalding water.

Miss Thompson, who is visiting friends living at 865 West Peachtree street, was preparing to take a bath when the accident occurred, she told the doctors.

When she approached the tub to test the heat of the water, she placed her hand on the side of the tub, and suddenly slipped into the boiling water.

She is suffering from severe burns about the hands and the back. She was taken to the hospital by the ambulance of Harry G. Poole.

Effort Made to Take Spirit Photograph Of Woman in Casket

Los Angeles, March 23.—An effort to take a photograph of the spirit of Mrs. Mary Fairfield McVicker, associate pastor of the Central Spiritualist church, was made beside her casket during funeral services for her late today. Early tonight the photographs had not been developed and the result, therefore, was not known.

Harding Is Asked To Save Immigrant Jews From Deporting

New York, March 23.—Representative F. H. Laguardia today wired President Harding in Florida, urging him to intervene on behalf of 300 Jewish immigrants from Turkey and Greece, now awaiting deportation at Ellis island because their quotas for the year are filled. Many of them are women and children, who have relatives in America.

Unknown Friend Of Slain Model To Be Disclosed

Wealthy "Mr. Marshall" Unlikely to Remain Anonymous Much Longer.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER, United News Staff Correspondent.

New York, March 23.—"Boston John Marshall," the old party from out-of-town with a barrel of "sugar" and a failing for week-end frivols in the shady purlieus of Broadway, has just about given up hope of remaining anonymous longer in the "Dot" King murder mystery. He has been summoned back to New York from the model respectability that he enjoys in his own home town to answer a few more questions Saturday at the district attorney's office. One of these questions will be: "Mr. Marshall, are these your yellow, Chinese silk pajamas that w found under 'Dot' King's bed the Thursday morning after she had been chloroformed? And also, Mr. Marshall, do you always bring your pajamas when you go calling on a young lady to read a few stanzas of Tennyson?"

That will leave the respectable "Mr. Marshall" flat, because his counsel, Neilson Olcott, admitted Friday morning that there won't be any argument about the ownership of the pajamas unless some other student of Tennyson also left a pair. Olcott reluctantly added that he didn't think his client's name would be a secret much longer, because the cry has become too loud now. The pack-howl for the murderer has become almost insignificant since the star witness was able to bind the district attorney and the police to secrecy, on the ground that his wife's social position would be ruined if his name were told.

When "Mr. Marshall" returns to New York he will be asked a few "refreshers."

Blackmail Hinted.

These questions will be based on newly discovered inklings, indicating that "Dot" King, or some of her Broadway associates, were preparing a blackmail raid on the venerable "heavy sugar sweetie's" tempting "sugar" barrel. Ferdinand Pecora, assistant district attorney in charge of the case, believes that "Mr. Marshall," himself, didn't know what the easy-living causually-loving associates of

Young Actress Denies Relations With Tellegen

Miss Stella Larrimore's Counsel Issues Official Denial at Hearing.

New York, March 23.—To be advertised as the she-vamp of a popular he-vamp may be somewhat of an honor, but Miss Stella Larrimore doesn't think so.

She has delayed the Geraldine Farrar-Lou Tellegen divorce trial a week so she can go on the stand and prove to the world that she's no such thing.

Miss Larrimore, a member of Lou's "Don Juan" company two summers ago, was described at the hearing last Monday as the mysterious blond "S. L." who allowed herself to be taken home every night by Tellegen and kissed him right in the vestibule. There was evidence of a more damaging nature, having to do with a bench in Riverside park, but reporters were not permitted to hear it because it was said to be "unfit for publication."

It is the bench episode that Miss Larrimore wishes particularly to deny. She was described by her lawyer Friday as "an innocent girl of a tender age, living with her mother, craving nothing more than a chance to prove her good name."

Samuel Untermeyer, attorney for Miss Farrar in the divorce action, protested against delaying the hearing further, on the grounds that the prima donna could hardly wait to get rid of Lou.

He consented, however, to hear Miss Larrimore next Friday. If she proves her innocence, he can still fall back upon evidence of two other alleged corespondents.

As Tellegen's counsel stated definitely Friday that his client would not contest the suit, next week's hearing is expected to be the last.

U.S. NAVY PROGRAM MAY BE VIOLATION OF ARMS TREATY

Congress Has Authorized Change in Elevation of Main Batteries on Ships of Fleet.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT DISCUSSING QUESTION

Clause of Treaty Referring to Rules for Execution May Prohibit the Change in Guns.

Washington, March 23.—Whether the United States should proceed with its battleship modernization program in the face of the statement recently made by the British government has been considered during the past few days at a number of conferences here with the diplomatic representatives of the other powers watching from a distance, but with more than ordinary interest for a decision.

So far as is known, no formal protest against the program as authorized by congress has been made to the state department. It is pointed out, furthermore, that such a protest would not be in accord with the usual practices of diplomacy in advance of ratification of the Washington naval treaty, on which the complaint would have to be based. But it is the impression that the real reason for the exchanges between the British government and the state and navy departments involving the voluntary correction by those departments of statements made by them regarding the modernization of British ships, was to indicate by indirection what the British government regards as a correct interpretation of the treaty.

The provision of the treaty on which reliance is placed by the British is found in the "rules relating to the execution of the treaty." Under the head of the "replacements" interests section, the treaty says:

"No retained capital ships or aircraft carriers shall be reconstructed except for the purpose of providing means of defense against air and submarine attack and subject to the following rule: 'The contracting powers may for that purpose equip existing tonnage with bilge or blister or anti-air deck protection, providing the increase of displacement thus effected does not exceed 3,000 tons (3,048 metric tons) displacement for each ship. No alternation of inside armor, in calibre, number or general type of mounting of main armament shall be permitted.'"

The point at issue is whether the language of the last sentence prohibits such changes in elevation of the American batteries as are contemplated. Congress appropriated $6,500,000 for this special purpose and it is understood that it did so with full knowledge of the treaty provisions on that point. If the usual practice were followed, the navy department would feel obliged to carry out exactly the direction of congress.

As having a most important bearing on the usefulness of the treaty, the action now being taken by the French chamber of deputies is also being watched here with the closest attention. Some of the reservations proposed are regarded as distinctly menacing to the vitality of the principles involved in framing the treaty, but in the absence of precise official information, criticism is reserved.

PICTURE ACTRESS GETS JAIL SENTENCE

Los Angeles, March 23.—Gladys Walton, motion picture actress, today was sentenced by police Judge Joseph P. Chamberers to serve three days in jail for speeding. The arresting officer said Miss Walton drove her automobile 37 miles an hour.

Man Drags Wife In Sleigh Over High Snow Drifts

Farmer Hitches Self to Shafts and Brings Moaning Wife to Hospital.

North Adams, Mass., March 23.—Tying himself to the shafts of a sleigh, Leroy Shippe, a farmer, who lives on the Mohawk Trail, succeeded in dragging his wife, who was writhing in pain, over six miles of road piled high with snow drifts, so high that it was impossible for a horse to get through, to civilization and a hospital. A few hours later a baby was born in the hospital with doctors and nurses ready with anxious care.

Mrs. Shippe became seriously ill about midnight, and her farmer husband attempted to care for her. Her condition, however, grew worse and more grave and Shippe knew that unless he got his wife to a hospital she would die.

He loaded the sleigh with blankets and hot-water bottles, and harnessed the horse. Drifts were high on the road, but the horse was able to break through for some distance. The faithful nag finally became stuck and Shippe got out and tried to lend a hand. It was without avail. It was impossible for the animal to proceed.

Shoulders Raw.

In desperation Shippe unharnessed the beast, slipped his snowshoes on his feet, tied himself into the shafts and prepared to face the eight-mile journey.

By now his wife was in mortal agony. With a desperate plunge he put the sleigh under way. Slipping, sprawling, he steered it over perilous ice and around sharp curves. His shoulders became raw from the friction of the ropes. But never once did he stop to draw a much needed breath, panting, and choking, he ploughed ahead.

Death Shrieked.

By and by the cries and the moanings from the suffering wife in the rear seemed to come from a far-distance. Death seemed to shriek at him from the roadside trees and hope fled. But he did not give up. He could not. His mind had but one idea. He must reach a hospital before collapsing so he struggled on.

After three terrible hours he dropped in the street within a short distance of his goal. A kind hearted man discovered them and he and the yet undelivered wife were carried to the hospital. Two hours later a chubby boy was born to the woman who had been saved by her farmer husband.

FORTUNE IS GIVEN FREEDOM BY JURY

Verdict of Acquittal Is Found in Blackmail Trial After Deliberating More Than Four Hours.

After deliberating from noon until 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon a jury in Fulton superior court acquitted R. B. Fortune, Lawrenceville attorney, of charges of blackmail.

The case went to the jury at noon after the morning session of the trial had been consumed in arguments by H. A. Allen, Sam Brown and Schley Howard, attorneys for Fortune, and Solicitor Boykin and Attorney Len B. Guillebeau, for the prosecution.

Charges that Fortune was the victim of a "malicious frame-up by bootleggers" were made by Attorney Sam Brown, of Lawrenceville, in addressing the jury in behalf of the defendant.

The state, through evidence introduced Thursday, had attempted to show that Fortune had threatened Mrs. Irma McCowan and Mrs. W. R. Holmes, of 92 East Ellis street, with criminal prosecution unless they paid him $50. The alleged threat followed the capture of the automobile in which the women were riding through Gwinett county, and which is said to have contained whisky.

Super-Campaign on Last Day Of Special Club Offer Urged

Special Buick Prize and Last Bonus Vote Offers in Help-Yourself Campaign End Tonight.

Final day—last chance.

If you hope to own the handsome Buick touring car offered in the special prize campaign of the Help Yourself club, make this a busy and a prosperous day.

It's the last day of the drive—the zero hour for the supreme one-day offensive of the entire campaign.

In all probability, today will decide the proud owner of the $1,020 Buick special prize, for competition is so keen and close that the identity of the winner is as uncertain as the weather prospect.

Therefore, if you're a wise one you'll take the field as soon as you finish your early morning toast and coffee and will stay on the job until just time to rush to the postoffice and drop in your remittance by 9 o'clock.

Closed Promptly at 9.

Remember that the campaign for the special Buick prize closes on the dot at 9 o'clock tonight. All subscriptions to count in the extra offer if brought in by hand, must be delivered at club headquarters in The Constitution building by 9 o'clock. After that time the doors will be closed and no subscriptions received until Monday morning.

Out-of-town club members must

BUSINESS OFFERS AID IN SETTLING WORLD PROBLEMS

World Chambers of Commerce, Gathered at Rome, Offer Services to Political Leaders.

PROPOSAL SPONSORED BY U. S. DELEGATION

Meanwhile Radicals Gather in Berlin to Seek Path to Settlement of Ruhr Tangle.

BY RALPH H. TURNER, United News Staff Correspondent.

London, March 23.—One of the most singular situations on record has arisen in connection with the Ruhr crisis—the constituted governments of the world powers are standing pat on their policies, or lack of policies, while radicals on one hand and financiers on the other are attempting, each in their own way, to settle the embroglio.

While laborite and socialist members of the British, French, Belgian and German parliaments were in Berlin Friday conferring on a plan of settling the Franco-German impasse, the leading financiers of the world, attending the convention of the International Chambers of Commerce at Rome, also discussed a way out of a bad situation.

Thus the upper and lower strata of the industrial order—the ones who are hardest hit when international complications reach such a stage that business is stagnated—are trying to solve a problem which their governments, apparently, are impotent to thresh out.

Adopt U. S. Plan.

The delegates to the chambers of commerce convention in Rome, representing the leading bankers and business men of the civilized nations of the world, Friday adopted the plan put forward by Fred L. Kent, of the Bankers' Trust Co., New York, and others of the American delegation.

The American plan suggested that if the governments saw fit to call a conference of business men to bring the world out of chaos the chambers of commerce of all nations would cooperate.

Adoption of the American proposal was generally considered a "hint" from the captains of industry to their respective governments that a business men's parley would be advisable.

The plan, on which Kent spoke, set forth that reparations should be set at a figure determined on Germany's ability to pay; that inter-allied debts be fixed at the ability to pay and the prospect of future earnings; that balanced budgets should be the first requisite of national credit; and that the security of nations should be guaranteed so that money would be saved on armaments.

Radicals Meet.

Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the British labor party, is the sponsor for the movement among the radicals of the European governments. It was at his suggestions that laborites and socialists journeyed to Berlin to talk over a feasible plan with the socialists of the German Reichstag.

Although the labor-socialist program has not taken the definite form that the financiers' ideas have, it is known that part of the former's plan includes calling on the League of Nations to thresh out the matters of the Ruhr occupation, reparations, inter-allied debts and kindred matters.

As these conferences were in progress, Premier Bonar Law, of Britain, was continuing his policy of "benevolent neutrality" and denying that the government was conducting secret peace negotiations; Premier Poincare was asking for more credits from the French chamber of deputies to maintain the army of 10,000 in the Ruhr and Rhineland and reiterating that Germany must submit; Chancellor Cuno was firm in his attitude that the French would be beaten in the coal war by his policy of passive resistance and the United States and other countries, as far as the governments were concerned, were holding aloof.

NEW CLUES POINT TO MURDER THEORY IN ARMY TRAGEDY

Fort Snelling, Minn., March 23.—Scattered clues that point to murder, rather than suicide in the case of Lieutenant Charles D. Clay, great grandson of Henry Clay and member of a distinguished Kentucky family, who was found dead in his quarters at Fort Snelling, November 27, last, have caused the war department to reopen an investigation in the case, officers at the post said today.

U. S. Investigation Of High Sugar Price Vigorously Pushed

FIST-FIGHT NEAR BETWEEN POINCARE AND COMMUNIST

Stormy Scene Staged in Chamber of Deputies in Debate Over Ruhr Occupation.

BY HUDSON HAWLEY, United News Staff Correspondent.

Paris, March 23.—Insults were hurled and fist fights narrowly averted when Premier Raymond Poincare and Deputy Andrew Berthon, a communist, clashed in the chamber of deputies concerning credits for the Ruhr occupation.

Shouting "liar!" "traitor!" and "blackguard!" the premier and the radical deputy surged toward one another, faces white with anger and fists clenched.

While they were closely engaged Poincare and several of his friends declared they overheard Berthon accuse the premier of being the tool of Deputy Leon Daudet, a royalist and the owner of the newspaper L'Action Francaise.

"You're Daudet's prisoner," Poincare said Berthon told him, "I do not know what blackmail he exercises over you. Deputy Daudet prepared documents against you and your family."

Most of the deputies were not close enough to Poincare and Berthon to hear what the latter was reported as having said but the premier shouted:

"He dared to say he had against me abominable evidence which I dared would be published. He lied."

Friends of Poincare sprang to their feet, moving menacingly against the communists in the chamber who kept their seats.

Amid the tumult, Berthon shrieked, "I did not say it"

"You lie!" yelled M. Maginot, the minister of war, who towered above all the other members.

Previous to this, Vaillan-Courturier, another communist, made the charge that Poincare was responsible for the deliberate assassination of French officers in the Ruhr. Poincare in reply declared he was preparing to prosecute the communists for their traitorous action in the Ruhr.

So disorderly did the session become that Deputy Landry, the presiding officer, put on his hat which was the signal that the session was adjourned.

The premier was given a big ovation when the proceedings were resumed. Berthon took the floor and declared that if he had pronounced the words credited to him he regretted his action. He told Poincare that he had not intended to outrage him.

Landry then ruled that in view of Berthon's apology a vote of censure of the communist member was not in order.

Brother Blamed By Pretty Girl For Poison Dose

Miss Sarah Brown Says He Objected to the Man She Loves.

Because her brother, at whose home she was living, objected to her receiving attentions from a young man whom she had promised to marry, Miss Sarah Brown, 17 years old, took a quantity of poison Friday afternoon in an effort to end her life. She was rushed to the Grady hospital, where doctors removed the poison from her stomach.

Miss Brown was at the home of her brother, 12 Sycamore street, when she took the poison. At the hospital she told nurses and doctors that she would kill herself if her brother tried to prevent her marrying the man of her choice.

She refused to say what kind of poison she took. Doctors pronounced her out of danger after her stomach had been cleansed.

Department of Justice Promises Prosecution of Those Responsible for Unreasonable Advances.

HULL SAYS TARIFF IS PRIMARY CAUSE

Democrat Leader Calls on Harding to Reduce Duty on Imported Sugars 50 Per Cent.

Washington, March 23.—Prompt action in running down the cause for the recent jump in sugar prices and prosecution of those found responsible is promised by the department of justice.

A vigirous inquiry was begun Friday by officials of the department who, it was disclosed, have been investigating the situation for nearly a month along general lines.

Announcement of some definite steps by the department are expected shortly following general conferences by its officials with Secretary Hoover and with Basil Manly, head of the people's legislative service, whose charges of sugar gambling on a large scale started active inquiry by federal officials here.

Blames Tariff.

The sugar situation took on a political angle when Chairman Cordell Hull, of the democratic national committee issued a statement Friday, asking Harding to reduce the sugar tariff 50 per cent under the authority granted by the flexible duty clause of the Fordney-McCumber act.

"President Harding has in his own hands the most immediate and potent single remedy for the relief of the sugar situation," Hull said.

"Notwithstanding that the controlling motive in the enactment of the Fordney-McCumber tariff law last year was to boost domestic prices of the products of certain industries, including sugar, and although the present runaway sugar market, dominated by profiteers, owes its chief underlying original cause to the tariff price boosts, the Harding administration is practically silent about the one speedy and effective remedy immediately available, namely, the reduction of the present high sugar tariff rates. The president should direct the tariff commission, if necessary, to make a report without any sort of delay, to the end that he might at once issue a proclamation, under the authority of section 315 of the tariff law, reducing the existing sugar duties 50 per cent. I am sure the tariff commission has on hand sufficient facts on which to base a report now.

Robbing People.

"The price increases do not stop with the amount of the tariff, but are jumped higher and higher from time to time, with the inevitable result that arbitrary price fixing, speculation, and profiteering become rampant. Taking advantage of this tariff psychology, sugar profiteers and speculators have been for several weeks, as they are now, fleecing and robbing the American people at a present rate of near $400,000,000 per annum, or an amount almost as great as the total tariff revenue yield to the federal treasury for an entire year."

Manly entered the situation again Friday night with the statement that he had received information that Charles E. Miller, president of the National City Bank of New York; the president of the Old Colony Trust company of Boston and the president of a prominent Montreal bank, met with certain prominent Cuban sugar growers in Cuba in January and considered means of further increasing the price of sugar.

Manly reiterated that Hoover had advised the Cuban producers to enter into an agreement with American beet sugar interests in order to restrict production of Cuban sugar from 4,000,000 to 2,500,000 tons.

ORPHEUM SEASON TICKETS

OPERA SEASON TICKET SALE TO CLOSE TODAY

All Reserved Seats Must Be Called for Before 6 O'Clock.

The annual season ticket sale for Metropolitan grand opera will end at 6 o'clock this afternoon.

After that time no tickets for the entire seven performances for the same seats will be available. After the lapse of one week the sale of single seat tickets will begin.

Saturday is also the last opportunity for a number of patrons who have reserved tickets for which they have not paid, to call for them. If they are not called for before 6 o'clock jars, the tickets will be separated and sold singly.

The tickets are sold at the Cable Piano company.

BRIDE OF ONE WEEK HURT IN ACCIDENT

Mrs. E. D. Leineweber, of 195 Ivy street, was carried to the Grady hospital Friday morning in a critical condition, suffering from injuries she received while motoring from Fort Myers, Fla., to Atlanta with her husband, to whom she had been married one week.

She was hurt twice as the result of the machine skidding from the road. The first accident occurred near Hawkinsville, while the second was near Macon. They arrived in Atlanta Thursday night.

Quito, the capital of Ecuador, has no regular water supply. Water-carriers bring the water into the city in jars.

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE INDORSED BY BUSINESS CLUB

"The proposed drive for the benefit of the Salvation Army is worthy of the support of all civic organizations, and the public at large because the charity they foster knows no class or creed, but stands ever ready to help the one who is down and out," Dr. C. C. Aven, president of the American Business club, declared Friday at the regular weekly luncheon of the club, at the Peacock cafe.

Dr. Aven stated that there was no reason why the Atlanta quota should not be raised in the campaign. The club went on record as unanimously pledging its full support and co-operation.

J. W. Awtry, of Awtry and Lowndes, funeral directors, made a short talk in which he stated that at no time was the need for civic and social work greater than the present time.

The entertainment committee appointed for the month is composed of C. B. Wellborn, "Pup" Phillips, and William Biddel. Dr. Louis Prosterman was appointed chairman of the Salvation Army campaign committee.

TARDY WITNESS FINED $10 BY JUDGE SIBLEY

R. L. Key, witness in federal court, was assessed a fine of $10 for contempt of court, by Judge Samuel H. Sibley Thursday, after his failure to give a satisfactory reason why he was not on time when his name was called. Repeated absences of witnesses when their names were called brought an ultimatum from Judge Sibley Thursday. He declared he would deal in a summary manner with tardy witnesses and Key was the first to fall a victim to the edict.

Moustache May Acquit Or Convict W. B. Osler In Injunction Case

Conviction or acquittal of William B. Osler, charged with violating the railroad strike injunction issued last summer by Judge Samuel B. Sibley in attacking E. L. Schell, railroad worker, apparently hinges on the ability of Osler to prove that he was not wearing a moustache on the night of September 15, when the alleged attack took place. Schell testified that the man who attacked him was wearing a moustache.

Osler declares that the charges against him are the result of a "frame-up" and that he is not connected with the attack in any way. Osler is the eighth man to go on trial for violation of Judge Sibley's strike order. Five of the previous cases resulted in the conviction and sentences of six months each in the Atlanta Federal prison. Three defendants were acquitted.

NORTH BOULEVARD LOT SOLD BY E. R. BLACK

A lot at the southeast corner of North Boulevard and Coolidge avenue has been purchased by the De Jarnette Supply company from Eugene R. Black for $45,000, according to announcement Friday. The property is 427 by 150 feet. Extensive improvements on the site are said to be contemplated.

INFANTRYMEN LEAVE ON EIGHT-DAY HIKE

An eight-day hike, in which they expect to cover 105 miles, began Friday when two companies of infantry left Fort McPherson for Aniston, Ala. The average pace will be 15 miles a day, officers stated.

$55,000 Fire Loss.

Watertown, Tenn., March 23.—The Watertown Milling company plant, owned by C. C. and Thomas Barber, and the Tennessee Central passenger and freight depots, with three empty poultry cars and one car loaded with wagons, burned here early this morning, the loss being estimated at $55,000.

$8,000 DAMAGE SUITS FILED BY TWO WOMEN

Damage suits aggregating $8,000 were filed in Fulton superior court Friday by Mrs. Bessie Atkins and Miss Burdell Sentell against the Disbro Lumber company, as a result of an automobile accident on March 7 in which, the plaintiffs claim a truck belonging to the defendant crashed into an automobile in which they were riding, causing them serious injury.

Miss Sentell asks $3,000 while Mrs. Atkins is suing for $5,000. They are represented by Attorneys Jesse B. Moore and H. B. Edwards.

Observe "Temperance Day."

Schools throughout the state observed "Temperance day," Friday, in accordance with an act of the 1922 legislature.

The new statute provides for a two-hour program of an educational nature, designed to instruct the pupils as to the benefits of prohibition and the good of temperance. All schools and colleges receiving state aid are required to observe the day.

DECATUR COUNTY PEANUT GROWERS HEAR DE PENCIER

Bainbridge, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—The meeting held this morning in Callahan theater in behalf of the Peanut Growers' Co-operative association in Decatur county was said to be the best meeting yet held in the interest of extension work for this county. C. S. Hodges, a director in the organization, presided over the meeting in the absence of C. K. C. Ansley, county chairman. Rev. J. M. Foster, of the Methodist church, blessed the meeting and prayed for blessings upon the farmers who are feeding and clothing the world today.

Colonel R. E. L. Spence introduced E. M. De Pencier, sales manager of the Virginia-North Carolina Peanut association, who talked on co-operative marketing, and with the use of a picture he presented comparisons of the raisin industry of California and that of the peanut when its cultivation and marketing is handled co-operatively.

It is said that De Pencier sold the idea to at least 90 per cent of his audience before he had finished talking and that Decatur county will sign up 100 per cent.

Francois Appert, in the time of the first Napoleon, originated the idea of "putting up" foods in hermetically sealed tins.

DISTRICT MASONIC MEET IS PLANNED

Memorial to Judge Max Meyerhardt, First Grand Master of Rome District, Will Be Held.

Rome, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—At a recent meeting of members of Cherokee and Oostanaula Masonic lodges, committees were named to have charge of the annual convention of the Masons of the seventh congressional district on May 2 and 3. For Oostanaula lodge, John W. Bale, O. R. Minnis and James Maddox were appointed, and for Cherokee lodge, John P. Davis, T. B. Owens, O. C. Gore and Grover C. Byars. The chairman of the joint committee is A. S. Harvey.

This convention was inaugurated by the late Judge Max Meyerhardt twenty years ago. He was worshipful master of the Masons of the seventh congressional district and leading spirit in the proceedings. The usual religious service held in the Masonic temple on the first morning of the convention will be replaced by a memorial service to Judge Meyerhardt. The service will be public.

J. M. Rose, of Lyerly, deputy master of the convention, will preside and a memorial address will be delivered by Past Grand Master Jeffries, of Atlanta.

The chief speaker on the program of Wednesday evening, which is given at the auditorium and is designated "ladies' night," will be Governor-elect Clifford Walker, who had promised Judge Meyerhardt to deliver an address, and who has renewed that promise since the death of the latter. A. S. Harvey, of Rome, will preside and John P. Davis will be in charge of the music.

FORM LIVE STOCK MARKETING BODY IN WORTH COUNTY

Sylvester, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—A meeting has just been held here in which livestock men of Worth county organized a livestock marketing association for the purpose of bettering marketing conditions and furthering better co-operation. After an interesting talk by Professor George I. Martin, on the necessity of an organization for the marketing of livestock, the following temporary officers were elected: President, Dr. J. M Sutton; vice president, C. J. Champion; secretary-treasurer, George I. Martin. Board of directors: C. J Champion, H. W. Bateman, C. S. Jones, G. W. Chapman, L. A. Land, D. E. Stewart, J. M. Sutton and George I. Martin.

After a short business session it was decided that a fee of ten cents per hog would be charged at the next sale to pay operating expenses, this being the same fee as charged at other sales here. The next hog sale will be held about April 15, the exact date to be announced later.

ROME NEWS ISSUES RECORD NEWSPAPER

Rome, Ga., March 23.—The largest newspaper ever printed in Rome was published Thursday by The Rome News, being a 44-page, eight column edition, devoted to industrial development of Rome and northwest Georgia. It was announced as the forerunner of a reorganization campaign of the Rome Chamber of Commerce, which begins on April 2.

Numerous interviews with Rome business men on the resources and possibilities of Georgia, especially this section, for industrial development are carried in the paper.

DECIDE DECATUR BOND ISSUE TODAY

Polls Will Be Open From 6 A. M. to 6 P. M.—Proposed Issue Is for the Schools and Water.

Decatur, Ga., March 23.—(Special.) Decatur citizens vote today on the question of issuing $150,000 for school and waterworks improvements. Leaders in the bond campaign state they expect very few votes against the issue, their only trouble being to get a sufficient number of voters to the polls.

The state law requires for the success of a bond issue that two-thirds of the votes polled must favor the issue, and that this number must be a majority of the total registration.

Three voting precincts have been established, with booths at the city hall, on McDonough street; at Oakhurst pharmacy, East Lake drive and West College avenue, and at Goodson's store, at Poplar Springs. The polls will be open from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

REHAB STUDENTS GET CERTIFICATES

Athens, Ga., March 23.—(Special.) Twenty-six rehabilitation students were awarded certificates at the Georgia State College of Agriculture today for having satisfactorily completed a two-year course at that institution. The final exercises were presided over by Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the institution, who awarded the certificates.

Chancellor David C. Barrow, of the university proper, made a short talk to those finishing and the others in attendance at the exercises.

ATLANTA BAPTIST COUNCIL TO HOLD BANQUET TONIGHT

The Atlanta Baptist council, an organization composed of about one hundred laymen and the Baptist pastors, will hold a banquet this evening at 6 o'clock at the Baptist tabernacle.

The speakers will be Dr. Curtis Lee Laws, Dr. Griffith Thomas, Dr. E. Y. Mullins, Dr. Len G. Broughton and Dr. George W. Truett. The banquet will be a fellowship meeting.

M'DONOUGH CHURCH IS PLANNING SERVICES

McDonough, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—Plans have been completed for the evangelistic services which are to begin at the Baptist church Sunday and continue for ten days. Dr. W. W. Arnold, the pastor, has secured Rev C. A. DeVane, of Cedartown, to assist in the meeting, and with Mr. John D. Hoffman, of Atlanta, to lead the singing.

The women of the church have been holding cottage prayer meetings for the past week.

Dr. Arnold has been pastor of this church for the past two years and has also served as pastor here once before. He is universally liked and is having the co-operation of his people.

FORMER GOVERNOR OF PORTO RICO LAUDED

San Juan, March 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—Former Governor E. Mont Reily was lauded by 150 friends at a farewell banquet last night for "establishing Americanism in Porto Rico," and the political opponents who led the fight for his removal came in for severe criticism.

Mr. Reily delivered an address in which he said he bore no ill will toward any Porto Rican. He added, that if his health permitted, he hoped to return in 1924 and help his friends "clean up" the island.

The interpretation of this remark in some local news[illegible] Reily hoped to return as governor bu[illegible] this was officially declared to be erroneous.

STRIKE DISORDERS PROBE CONCLUDED

Arkansas Legislative Committee to Report Findings on "Uprising" of Citizens to Governor.

Harrison, Ark., March 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—Hearing of the "citizens' side" of disorders along the line of the Missouri and North Arkansas railroad incident to the strike of railway employees which culminated January 16 last in the lynching of E. C. Gregor, a striker, was concluded before a joint committee of the Arkansas legislature here today and announcement made that the committee, after a digest of the testimonies was made, would report its findings to Governor Thomas C. McRae.

Fifty witnesses were heard during the hearings here which began last Tuesday. Their testimonies were in effect, in support of the contention that the "uprising" of citizens along the line of the road and the formation of "citizens' committees" was a necessary measure to terminate the strike and was due to threatened financial ruin, which, it was feared would be caused to the section served by the road because of the suspension of operation as a result of a series of bridge burnings and other depredations.

Both Maddox, sheriff of Boone county, and Circuit Judge Shinn, were among the witnesses who testified today. Judge Shinn contradicted statements made by Vurien Orr and Luther Wise, now serving sentences in the Arkansas penitentiary imposed when they pleaded guilty to arson, that their pleas were entered only after Judge Chinn had told them that he could not guarantee their safety if they refused to plead guilty. Judge Shinn placed in the record a statement made by the Boone county grand jury with reference to its investigation of the disorders. Subpoenas still were out for a number of additional witnesses to appear before the grand jurymen. It reconvenes May 2.

Crowd Was Armed.

Sheriff Maddox told of the coming into Harrison of people from the surrounding section the day before Gregor's body was found hanging from a railroad trestle. Part of the crowd which came into Harrison were armed, he said, but their demeanor was peaceful.

Maddox told the committee he did not hear of the lynching of Gregor until the following morning. He appeared before the grand jury, then in session, he said, but made no investigation himself because the grand jury was conducting an inquiry. He corroborated the testimony of Judge Shinn with regard to Orr and Wise.

Charges that members of the families were driven away from towns along the road were denied by a number of witnesses who testified at the hearings here which followed hearings held at Little Rock when a number of the strikers were heard.

Lynching Styled "Accident."

The witnesses who testified here included members of "citizens' committees" who testified that they aided in investigations which the citizens decided to make after representatives of the sixteen railroad brotherhoods meeting in Chicago, voted to continue the strike indefinitely. Testimony was presented to show that the operations of the "committee" were orderly and that they aided but did not supersede the courts.

The lynching of Gregor was described by one witness as a "regrettable accident."

The report to the grand jury read into the record showed that the investigation by that body had not been concluded.

During the hearings testimonies were presented denying that strikers had been ordered to leave their homes and had not been threatened but that they were told that if they could not view the situation as it was viewed by the citizens the latter "could not give them protection in the event anything happened."

This was in contradiction of testimonies given at the Little Rock hearings.

Some of the witnesses called to testify here stood upon their constitutional right, when questioned regarding the whipping of several strikers and strike sympathizers.

"It has been a pleasure to the committee to hear the people's story and see the spirit of American citizenship displayed by the people of Northwestern Arkansas," Senator M. B Norfleet, chairman of the committee, said.

Negro Students Will Attend Special Services on Sunday

Students from Morehouse college, Spellman seminary, Morris Brown, Cox university and Atlanta university, will apepar on a program at the First Congregational church Sunday night on "College Night," an evening designed to stimulate acquaintance of those attending school here.

Dr. Brown, the pastor, has invited a large number of teachers of the colored city schools. Seats have been reserved for the Alpha Phi Alpha, Omega Psi Phi, Kappa Alpha and Phi Beta Sigma colored fraternities.

Professor Evans, recently from St. Louis High school for colored people, will be one of the speakers.

Salvation Army Assigns Pythians For Budget Drive

3,000 Commercial Houses Asked to Solicit Funds for Salvation Army.

With the assignment of one additional district Friday afternoon, the Salvation Army campaign is now practically lined up in the business district north of the viaduct. There are still several districts to be assigned on the south side of the viaduct, but these will be taken either today or the first of the week by a number of committees which have reported their team to headquarters, the committee announced Friday.

The last team to take central assignments north of the viaduct was the Knights of Pythias team, captained by Rev. G. W. Gasque. This team will work the blocks bounded by Edgewood, Exchange place, Ivy and Decatur streets.

It is stated that while the number of teams which have been offered by various clubs and organizations will be sufficient to complete the business district alignment, that a number of special workers are desired, and any persons or organizations who desire to volunteer for work in the campaign will fill a great need. Such workers should report as early as possible to campaign headquarters, Chamber of Commerce building, or phone Walnut 4340, as soon as possible, so that they may be posted for work as soon as the drive begins on Monday, April second.

Chairman Preston S. Arkwright Friday made a special appeal for a flying squadron of automobile workers for special duty during the campaign in connection with some of the outlying plant subscriptions. He is very anxious to secure at least 25 women with cars at their disposal who can use these for the campaign, either during the entire week or on one or two days of the week.

More than three thousand industrial plants, warehouses and commercial establishments lying outside the central district are being asked to place the solicitation of subscriptions among their employees in the hands of some member of the organization.

M'KENZIE TRIAL HALTED ON FRIDAY IN FEDERAL COURT

Trial of Marshall McKenzie, well known Atlanta man, accused of violating the prohibition law, was halted in federal court Friday when Judge Samuel H. Sibley reiterated his previous decision that information obtained by search without a warrant could not be used in prosecution. The checking of the case was ordered in spite of vigorous insistence of the defendant's attorneys that he be placed on trial immedintely.

United States Attorney Clint W. Hager moved that the case be checked-stating to Judge Sibley that the government was unable to proceed with the trial until Neufield T. Jones, former assistant prohibition director for Georgia, now living in New York, could be summoned as a witness.

SMOKE INSPECTION HEARING WILL BE HELD ON THURSDAY

Consideration of the movement by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations to re-establish the mechanical engineering department, abolished by council recently, will come up at a meeting before Mayor Walter A. Sims at 3 o'clock next Thursday afternoon, it was announced Friday.

A petition signed by officials of the junior chamber and representatives of other civic organizations was filed with the city clerk last week calling to the attention of council certain conditions existing in Atlanta by reason of the smoke nuisance. Measures to remedy these conditions were advocated by signers of the petition.

Re-establishment of the mechanical engineering department, which supervised the smoke laws of the city, is said to be the only solution to the problem.

MISS LOUDIE HOLLAND TO REST IN OAKLAND

The body of Miss Loudie Holland, beloved Atlanta educator, who died Thursday at a local hospital, was laid to rest Friday afternoon in Oakland cemetery following funeral services held from the First Christian church, at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. L. C. Bricker officiating. Teachers and the entire student body of the Spring Street school attended the funeral. The pallbearers were Asa Candler, Jr., John Redwine, Jr., Mark Hightower, E. R. Craighead and F. W. Stewart.

BERRY COLLINS BUYS PIEDMONT AVENUE LOT

A lot 55 by 150 feet at the southeast corner of Piedmont and Forrest avenues has been sold to Berry Collins for $20,000, it was announced Friday.

The sale was made for A. M. Bargstrom by Natz Weller, of the Jesse Draper agency. The lot, now occupied by a frame structure, will be improved with a business building, it is understood.

71 GRANDCHILDREN SURVIVE WOMAN WHO DIES AT 100

Funeral services for Mrs. L. A. Carpenter, 100 years old, of Canton, who died Tuesday, were held at the home of T. J. Carpenter, near Canton, Thursday afternoon, according to word received here Friday. Surviving Mrs. Carpenter are three children, 71 grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren. Until two weeks ago, when she fell and fractured her hip resulting in her death, she was in perfect health. Six years ago five generations of her family were living.

Many members of her family and friends from various sections of Georgia were present at the funeral. Rev. Wyatt and Rev. Fams were in charge of the services.

WILLENSKY IS HELD IN BOND OF $100

A. W. Willensky was bound over on a charge of simple larceny and his bond fixed at $100 Friday afternoon by Judge Johnson for the alleged attempt to steal a tire from a car belonging to J. T. Montague, of the Peachtree Court apartments.

Mr. Montague testified that his car had been left in front of the apartments on the afternoon of March 16 and when he returned his wife cried to him to stop a speeding car containing four men, who, she said, had attempted to remove the tire from his car.

He sprang into his machine and gave chase to the other car for several blocks, finally obtaining the license number of the auto ahead.

Willensky said that he was in a theater at the time and knew nothing of the occurrence.

DIXIE JOBBERS MEET HERE TWICE A YEAR

Automotive Equipment Men Name Atlanta Permanent Convention City.

The Southern Automotive Equipment Jobbers association in session here Friday, unanimously named Atlanta as its permanent convention city for two meetings annually.

Approximately 60 men are attending this convention, about half of whom are automotive equipment jobbers from points in the southeast, and the others are representatives of equipment factories from all parts of the country.

E. H. Baughman, general manager of Ozburn-Abston and company, of Atlanta, is president of the S. A. E. J. A., and W. D. Alexander, of the Alexander-Seewald company is secretary.

Following the Friday luncheon at the chamber of commerce, W. V. Crowley, vice president of the Citizens & Southern bank, spoke to the jobbers and factory men on the "Tendency of Business and Banking." Mr. Crowley spoke enthusiastically of business conditions in the south at this time and voiced the prediction that business would remain good for some time to come.

The jobbers were given a dinner at the Ansley hotel Friday evening by the manufacturers who are represented, and the Atlanta jobbers who are members of the association was host to visiting jobbers and factory men at a theater party at the Forsyth theater.

The final executive session of the convention will be held at the chamber of commerce Saturday morning.

According to President Baughman, the attendance at this meeting is almost 100 per cent, and from all parts of the southeast jobbers have brought enthusiastic reports of decided improvements in business conditions.

BEGGARS WITHOUT PERMITS ORDERED OFF STREETS HERE

All peddlers and beggars who have no permits to operate will be removed from the streets and sidewalks of the city, according to orders issued by Police Chief James L. Beavers to members of the force Friday.

Complaint has reached the chief through the Associated Charities and other sources that a number of beggars are to be found with young babies in their arms to arouse sympathy, and that those seeking help are not always found to be worthy.

The order of Chief Beavers includes all who sell shoe laces, candies, chewing gum and other such articles, and who are required by law to have a permit from the council.

ADLER IMPROVING; RECEIVING FRIENDS

L. C. Adler, well-known Atlanta clothier, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at St. Joseph's infirmary about ten days ago, is recovering rapidly and is able to receive friends. He expects to remain at St. Joseph's about a week longer.

SENATORS INVITED TO VISIT GEORGIA

Committee on Reforestation Now Making Tour of the South.

The special senatorial committee on reforestation, which is now investigating forestry conditions in the south, has been invited to visit Georgia by Governor Thomas W. Hardwick, and to visit Atlanta by the Atlanta convention bureau through Secretary Fred Houser, it was announced Friday. The Georgia Forestry association, of which Bonnell H. Stone is president, had previously extended its invitation to the special committee.

"In behalf of Georgia, I earnestly invite you and your special senate committee on reforestation to visit Atlanta and Georgia on your tour to Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana," the governor wired Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, who heads the committee. In his telegram Governor Hardwick pledged the co-operation of the Georgia Forestry commission to the committee in making its investigations of forest conditions in the state.

The invitation of the Convention bureau was also signed by the chamber of commerce, the Hotel Men's association, and the Association of County commissioners. If the committee accepts it will probably investigate the Atlanta community forest project, which will be the first of its kind in the south.

The purpose of the investigating tour is to investigate southern forestry conditons and the steps necessary to reforest this section of the country in order to avoid the necessity of the south obtaining its lumber from the northwest where the last great stand of natural American timber remains. In Georgia investigations will be principally concerned with the conservation of the naval stores industry which is being rapidly depleted, and the work necessary to rehabilitate this one-time leading industry of the south.

LOCAL MAN INVENTS CRANKPIN MACHINERY

The invention of an Atlanta man, C. E. Marsh, was the subject of an interesting article in the April issue of Popular Mechanics. In discussing the invention, the magazine said, "While portable crankpin turning machines have been in use in engine repair shops for many years, it is a rather curious fact that no such machine has been developed until recently for use on other machinery."

HOUSEBOAT CRUISE WILL END TODAY

Presidential Party Spends Friday Golfing—Harding Preaches Value of Mullet as Food.

Daytona, Fla., March 23.—President Harding and his vacation party tonight neared the end of the houseboat cruise which has covered 18 days and approximately 600 miles.

Tomorrow the president and Mrs. Harding and the other members of the party will arrive in St. Augustine and transfer their vacation home from the houseboat Pioneer to the Hotel Ponce de Leon. After a week's stay in the old Spanish city the presidential party will leave for Washington, stopping en route at Augusta, Ga., and possibly at one of the Carolina resorts such as Asheville.

The Pioneer was anchored tonight about midway between Daytona and St. Augustine and is expected to reach the latter city sometime after noon tomorrow, probably in time to allow the presidential foursome to try out one of the golf courses there.

Round of Golf.

The president, with Chairman Lasker, of thes hipping board, former Director Dawes, of the budget, and Edward B. McLean, left the Pioneer this morning at New Smyrna and motored up along the Halifax river to Seabreeze for a round over the Clarendon golf course. In doing so he passed by one of the best golf courses on the east coast, that of the Daytona Golf and Country club, according to the opinion expressed by other members of the party who played over it.

While the president was having his round of golf the Pioneer steamed up the river to Ormond, six miles above here where he went aboard after the golf game.

On learning today of the death of Milo D. Campbell recently appointed member of the federal reserve board, Mr. Harding sent a message of condolence to Mrs. Campbell. It was stated authoritatively that the vacancy on the board would not be filled until the president returns to Washington.

Anxious inquiries were made as to the condition of Mrs. Weeks, wife of the secretary of war, who was taken to Washington today on a special train after having become seriously ill during a houseboat trip. The president and Mrs. Harding had looked forward to having the secretary of war and Mrs. Weeks spend the St. Augustine part of the vacation with them.

Praises Fish Food.

President Harding, during his stay in Florida, is personally aiding the department of commerce and its bureau of fisheries in educating the people as to the value of fish as food.

There is a fish common in Florida waters known as "mullet," but Florida fishermen generally look upon it as useful only as bait. Mr. Harding however, thinks "mullet" is one of the finest of food dishes and whenever he gets a chance to put in a good word for the fish he does so.

The chief executive had such an opportunity yesterday during his ride about Titusville in a Ford. He stopped at a fish market and bought enough "mullet" to supply the entire houseboat party. Soon after with a package of "mullet" under each arm he came across an old fisherman reeling in a sea trout. The president, without revealing his identity, admired the catch and this led the old fisherman to dilate on the good features of sea trout.

This gave the president his chance to extol "mullet," and he did so but not without stirring up a hot argument with the sea trout exponent. The president finally had to give a detailed recipe for cooking "mullet" to win his argument which he evidently did for the old fisherman was heard to say as the presidential Ford rolled away that "that feller was a convincing talker and probably there's something in what he said."

The president also must have convinced the other members of his vacation party as to the food value of "mullet" for the first thing he did on coming ashore today at New Smyrna was to visit a fish market in search of more "mullet." The market had plenty of sea trout, but no "mullet."

75th Anniversary Supper Is Planned At First Methodist

A seventy-fifth anniversary supper will be tendered the membership of First Methodist church at 6:45 next Wednesday evening at the church. This is the first event in the celebration of the anniversary since the organization of the church. At this meeting plans will be discussed for an extensive public celebration, possibly in the early fall.

Plans are now being drawn for a Sunday school addition, it being the hope of the congregation to complete the building during the present year. This new enterprise, which will be the principal feature of the year's celebration, will be considered at the Wednesday eevning supper.

FORD BUYS MORE COAL PROPERTIES

Detroit Manufacturer Adds 120,000 Acres of Undeveloped Coal Lands to Holdings.

Detroit, Mich., March 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—Official confirmation today at the offices of Henry Ford at Dearborn that the automobile manufacturer had purchased 120,000 acres of undeveloped coal land in Kentucky was coupled with the statement that Mr. Ford intended to solve the country's coal problem "by using every piece of coal twice."

By purchase of the property, it was officially announced at the Ford offices, Mr. Ford comes into possession of a vast tract of virgin coal lands with a reserve coal supply of 500,000,000 tons. The property, added to other coal lands previously purchased, brings the total number of acres of such land owned by the manufacturer to 165,000.

From these holdings, Mr. Ford hopes that within a year will come sufficient coal to supply all his factories in every part of the country, all the factories and mills manufacturing various products for his own concerns and as many of the industries in this district as care to buy coal from him and have left fuel sufficient to supply a part of the domestic demand of the country.

Mr. Ford, it was announced, will ask all industrial users of his coal to install furnaces that will remove only the gas and similar substances, leaving a fuel unimpaired for domestic purposes. The coal after this process would be sold to heat the homes of hundreds of thousands of workers throughout the country. The fuel remaining after the gas had been taken out would be even more valuable for home heating purposes than it was before, it was explained.

Mr. Ford's latest purchase cost him between three and four million dollars, it was officially announced. When asked how long it would be before development of the new property begins, officials of the Ford company replied:

"It is Mr. Ford's policy to act quickly. You may be sure that not an hour will be wasted in getting this enterprise under way."

Coupled with the coal mining plans Mr. Ford also will work on one of his pet hobbies—reforestation.

Covered With Oak.

The new purchase, located in parts of five counties of Kentucky but centering in Clay county, is covered with what is described as one of the finest stands of oak to be found in the country. There are 500,000,000 feet of this timber awaiting the woodman's axe, but although the Ford industries use 200,000,000 feet of timber every year, not a foot of that standing in Kentucky is to find its way either to market or into the Ford products at this time. It is the manufacturer's idea, it was explained, to use the surface of the ground for scientific research work and experiments of reforestations while miners are digging underground to bring up the coal. The latest purchase makes Mr. Ford one of the most important coal land owners in the country. The coal land he now owns comprises five pieces of property, on which are ten large mines with twenty-two openings. This, of course, does not count the number of mines and openings that will result through the latest acquisition. That the Ford company will be able to dispose of all the coal it proposes to mine was revealed today. One thousand firms in the Detroit industrial district already have asked to obtain their complete supplies from this source.

Ford's Plans.

The Ford company idea will be to supply its own industries first, then the industries closely allied, meaning those that supply the Ford concern with parts or materials, then other companies operating in the Detroit region, and lastly the domestic consumers or home owners.

Mr. Ford, it was explained, recognizes the importance of furnishing coal to the domestic user and in keeping prices for this grade of fuel at a uniform level, but believes that the needs of industry should be met first.

The papers whereby Mr. Ford gains control of the new mining property were signed in Chicago yesterday, it was announced. The negotiations were carried out by F. S. Peabody, of Chicago, whose syndicate owned the land, and by William H. Smith, natural research engineer for the Ford company.

USE OF SIDEWALKS FOR SKATING WINS

section 2664 of the city code, prohibiting the use of roller skates upon any of the streets and sidewalks, and further provides that children may skate upon the sidewalks in the residential sections. Provision is made in the resolution against children gathering in crowds, creating unnecessary noises or acting in a disorderly manner. Violators of this clause may be arrested and punished by the recorder with a fine of not more than $200 or 30 days in the stockade.

Proposed Ordinance.

The text of the proposed ordinance which will be submitted at its next meeting follows:

An ordinance providing for skating on the sidewalk within the residential sections provided no nuisance is created and for other purposes:

Be it ordained by the mayor and general council of the city of Atlanta, as follows:

Section 1. That the ordinance codified in Section 2664 of the city code of 1910, prohibiting the use of roller skates upon any of the streets and sidewalks of the city, be and the same is hereby repealed.

Section 2. No person shall use roller skates for the purpose of skating upon any of the streets, that is the roadway of this city but roller skates for the purpose of skating may be used upon the sidewalks of the city provided, however, that they shall be so used without the inner fire limits of the city.

Section 3. Within the district above provided for, that is, without the inner fire limits, where roller skates can be used upon the sidewalks, it shall be unlawful for persons, so skating, to gather in crowds or to create noise or to be guilty of any disorderly conduct and, in case any person violates the provisions of this section they shall be guilty of an offense and on conviction in the recorder's court shall be fined not exceeding $200 or sentenced to work upon the public works for not exceeding 30 days, either or both penalties to be inflicted in the discretion of the recorder.

Section 4. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict with this ordinance be and the same are hereby repealed.

MRS. JANIE MYERS DIES IN MOULTRIE

News of the death of Mrs. Janie Myers, 80, beloved Georgia woman, and widow of Colonel Henry Myers, a civil war veteran, was received in Atlanta Friday from Moultrie, where she died Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. R. Turnbull, with whom she had made her home for the past few years. She was formerly of Marietta.

The body will be brought to Marietta for funeral and interment.

If the 1,700,000,000 people who make up the world's total population were formed into one person, such a being would be 4,000 feet tall.

Veteran's Record Of A.E.F. Offered At Herrin Trial

But Is Withdrawn After Defense Admits Identity of One Victim.

Marion, Ill., March 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—The record of a soldier, a veteran of the Somme, St. Mihiel, Argonne, who came back from the war only to fill an unmarked grave, was offered in mute evidence by the prosecution in the Herrin riots trial today and then withdrawn after a lengthy legal battle.

Offered to establish the identity of Antonio Mulkavich, in connection with whose slaying Hugh Willis, state executive board member of the United Workers of America, and five others are now on trial, the record was contained in a stained, honorable discharge from the army found on the body of one of the 25 victims of the tragedy.

The defense objected to the exhibit, which showed that Mulkavich was a former member of the 305th signal corps, 80th division, on the grounds that it had not been proved that it was taken off the body.

A. W. Kerr, chief of the defense counsel, offered to admit the identity of the victim if the state would withdraw its exhibit.

Judge Hartwell ruled that the only thing making the discharge material was the question of identity and that being admitted, there was not materiality to the discharge, whereupon it was withdrawn.

The court then adjourned until Monday, the state indicating that it would rest its case after calling two more witnesses.

ENDEAVORERS PLAN MACON CONVENTION

Thousand Delegates Expected at Sessions Starting April 20.

Macon, Ga., March 23.—More than 1,000 delegates are expected to attend the eleventh annual Georgia Christian Endeavor convention which opens a three-day session here April 20, according to announcements by Charles H. Campbell, Jr., chairman of the publicity committee.

One of the chief features of the convention will be the "fellowship" banquet to be given Saturday night, April 21, at one or the leading hotels, following a parade of the delegates through the leading streets of the city during the afternoon.

The complete program has not yet been announced but it is stated that one of the chief speakers will be Charles Evans, of Chattanooga, Tenn., southern field secretary of the organization. Other speakers will be announced later, it is stated. Efforts were made to obtain William Jennings Bryan as the principal speaker for the convention but they proved futile.

The sessions of the convention will be held in the First Presbyterian church, of which Dr. B. E. Douglas is pastor. More than 400 homes have been obtained for the entertainment of the delegates, it is stated, and each visitor is to be furnished his lodging and breakfast.

Officers.

Officers of the Macon City union include Miss Clara Minor, president; Charles H. Campbell, Jr., vice president; Miss Esther Bamble, secretary; Miss Julia Parker, treasurer.

State officers are Clyde E. Underhill, Savannah, president; George R. Rush, Atlanta, vice president; Miss Edna Browning, Augusta, secretary; S. J. Wacks, Savannah, treasurer; Carl J. Matthews, Jacksonville, Fla., field secretary.

Arrangements have been completed with the railroads for a one and one-half fare for the round trip, according to announcements, and registrations are reported to be coming in at a rapid rate. The registration fee is $1 for senior and 50 cents for intermediates, it is stated. Miss Julia Parker, 246 Williams street, Macon, being registrar.

One of the points that will be emphasized at the convention, it is indicated, will be that the Christian Endeavor union is not a Presbyterian organization but that there are 87 different denominations represented in the membership of Christian Endeavor unions.

The convention committee includes Rev. B. F. Foster, general chairman; Charles H. Campbell, Jr., publicity; Miss Mary E. Gamble, decorations; Clifford A. McCay, transportation; William P. Flemming, banquet; Miss Ella Brown Mims, social; W. H. Roper, assignment; Miss Esther Brown, entertainment; Miss Agnes Richter, pianist.

BEAVERS APPEALS BELL'S DECISION

Police Chief Will Carry Case to Supreme Court. Months May Elapse Before Hearing.

With the fight between Chief of Police James L. Beavers and the police committee of council deadlocked by a supersedeas granted to Beavers by Judge George L. Bell, the police chief Friday seemed secure in his office for at least 60 or 90 days.

With their hands tied by the supersedeas, which allows Beavers five days in which to file a bill of exceptions to the decision handed down Thursday in the writ of prohibition proceedings, members of the police committee declined to comment on what procedure is anticipated in the next move to oust the chief.

Months May Elapse.

After the bill of exceptions is prepared and filed in the supreme court by Attorney George C. Spence, counsel for Beavers, it probably will be two or three months before a decision is forthcoming, according to court officials.

The writ of prohibition sought by Beavers would prevent the committee from ever trying him, and is asked on the ground that because of bias and prejudice the committee is disqualified to act.

The writ of supersedeas was secured after Judge Bell had enjoined the committee from suspending or trying the chief on charges previously preferred, but did not prevent it from preferring new charges against the chief.

Attorney Spence Friday applied for a writ of prohibition similar to the one involved in the hearing which ended Thursday, such a step being taken because the original petition for the writ, which had been filed as amendment to the injunction petition, was not allowed as the court held it to be a separate cause of action.

Refuses to Grant Writ.

Judge Bell refused to grant such a writ but issued an order which will act as a supersedeas to prevent further action by the committee against Beavers for the next five days. The bill of exceptions, when filed, will then act as a supersedeas until the supreme court decision is rendered.

Attorney Spence said late Friday the bill was being prepared and probably would be filed at the capitol Monday.

Judge Bell's order of Friday was as follows:

"This petition being presented on this date, it is ordered filed, but the writ is denied for the reason that i am of the opinion that the facts stated do not warrant the grant of the writ of prohibition. It is ordered that this order operate as a supersedeas as though the writ had been granted and refused upon a hearing for the term of five days within which time plaintiff may file his bil of exceptions."

A meeting of the police committee has been called for next Thursday night by Chairman Jesse W. Armistead. It probably will be devoted to consideration of routine matters.

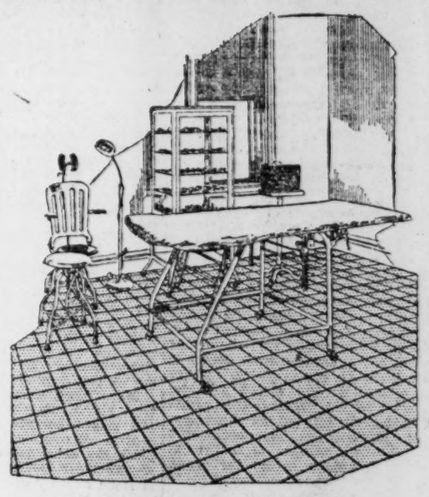
Your Floors Get Dirty

You must keep them clean. How much does this cost you?



The Surgical Room of the Terrace Springs Sanitarium, Richmond, Va., a view of which is illustrated in this picture, has a floor of Armstrong's Inset Tile Linoleum, Pattern No. T-40

IN every building that the public uses, the floors get dirty—actually dirty.

Whether the building is used for store, office, bank, or any public or semi-public purpose, every day there is a necessary cleaning job and a definite cleaning expense.

Linoleum floors reduce this expense. The cost of keeping them clean is low because linoleum is smooth, nonabsorbent, sanitary. All dirt on a linoleum floor is surface dirt. It wipes off easily.

How linoleum looks after cleaning

Floors of linoleum take a wax polish beautifully. Even if subjected to much wear, a linoleum floor, when waxed occasionally, takes on a soft, mellow lustre; and, after each day's cleaning, shows no traces of yesterday's traffic.

The low cost of keeping an Armstrong's Linoleum floor in first-class condition is proved by the experience of big building superintendents. Write us for some interesting figures showing the saving effected in cleaning cost by the use of linoleum floors. Or consult your architect, contractor, or any good linoleum merchant for estimates of Armstrong's Linoleum laid in your building or office.

Linoleum permanently cemented in place requires no stretching or retrimming. Such a floor is smooth and tight

Our free 48-page booklet, "Business Floors," shows colors and designs of Armstrong's Linoleum suitable for use where the public come and go in numbers. Write for a copy.

What linoleum is

Armstrong's Linoleum is a mixture of powdered cork and linseed oil, pressed or keyed on strong burlap. This mixture provides a floor material durable, smooth, nonabsorbent, waterproof, quiet, and resilient.

NEW REGULATIONS IN CONVICT CAMPS UP TO GOVERNOR

New regulations for punishing insubordinate convicts in Georgia will have to be approved by Governor Hardwick before they can become effective, it was stated Friday at the offices of the state prison commission.

The new rules were formulated Thursday at a meeting of about 300 county commissioners and wardens held in the senate chamber.

The governor is expected to return from Florida about April 1.

As a substitute for the lash, which was recently abolished by Governor Hardwick, the new regulations provide that refractory convicts may be punished by solitary confinement, restriction of diet, restriction of the privilege of having visitors, and by the fastening of the hands above the head while the prisoner is standing upright.

Give Special Rate To Confederate Vets Attending Reunion

Railroads have given a rate of one-cent per mile each way to the Confederate veterans of Georgia, who are going to attend the annual reunion of Confederate veterans in New Orleans, April 10 to 13, according to an announcement made Friday by eGneral A. J. Twiggs, commander of the Georgia division, of the United Confederate veterans.

In his statement General Twiggs emphasized the importance of the entire thin gray line attending the reunion, because several important changes are to be made in the constitution and by-laws.

Personnel of the Georgia commander's staff and ladies follows:

Colonel Bridges Smith, of Macon; Lieutenant-Colonel George Robinson, of Augusta; Lieutenant-Colonel B. F. Brimberry, of Albany; Lieutenant-Colonel Taylor Burtrall, of Jackson; Lieutenant-Colonel J. P. Britton, of Americus; Lieutenant-Colonel J. M. Deckle, of Thomasville; Lieutenant-Colonel John W. Price, of Douglas; Lieutenant-Colonel M. Meldrim, of Savannah; Lieutenant-Colonel Frank H. Harris, of Brunswick; Lieutenant-Colonel James May, of Augusta; Lieutenant-Colonel L. A. Dryer, of Dublin; Lieutenant-Colonel J. T. Derry, of Atlanta; Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. Bullard, of Machen; Lieutenant-Colonel H. W. Powell, of Vienna; Lieutenant-Colonel John M. Adams, of Augusta and Major I. T. Heard, of Augusta. Those appointed on the ladies' staff are, Miss Emma Twiggs, of Augusta; Miss Rebekah Harmon, of Atlanta; Miss Mary Cade, of Washington; Miss Margaret Clay, of Savannah; Miss Cecile Carr Smith, of Augusta; Mrs. Maryland Randall, of Augusta, and Mrs. Benita Smythe Hankins, of Augusta. Mrs. P. H. Cherrie, of Atlanta, will serve as honorary matron and Mrs. Ben Clay, of Washington, as honorary chaperon.

W. H. Hahr, Suspended Prohibition Agent, Awaiting Charges

William S. Hahr, suspended assistant prohibition director, returned to Atlanta Friday from Macon, where he has been attending federal court, and expressed surprise that no further information had been received of a promised investigation of the charges against him. He stated that he was advised more than a week ago that a man would leave Washington to make thorough investigations.

The arrest of Sheriff E. S. Garner, of Gwinnett county, and his deputies, only deepened the mystery surrounding the prohibition department. It is understood that Hahr was suspended following his refusal to send the employees of his office on the contemplated raid of the Gwinnett county officers. It is said that George Golding, special government intelligence officer, asked Hahr to let him have two men for the pending raid, and that the request for specifically designated men was refused on the grounds of alleged lack of authority to send them.

Mrs. Nelson Named To Represent City At Educators' Meet

Miss Julia O'Keefe Nelson, member of the board of education from the sixth ward, Friday was appointed by Mayor Sims as a delegate to represent this city at the meeting of the Georgia Educational association, which convenes in Atlanta April 19.

MRS. SIMONTON DIES

Funeral To Be Held in Carrollton Today.

Mrs. Margaret Johnston Simonton, one of the most beloved women of Carrollton, died at her home there Friday. She was the widow of the late Abner A. Simonton, who died four years ago. Mrs. Simonton who passed her seventy-third birthday, on March 17, had been ill only a few weeks.

She was the daughter of the late Rev. William Hall Johnston and Susan Johnston, pioneer Presbyterians of note in North Georgia; her father having come to Georgia from Princeton university, as a missionary, soon after the Indians were removed from North Georgia. Mrs. Simonton was one of the foremost members and workers in the Presbyterian church in Carrollton.

Her former pastor, Rev. W. E. Dozier, of LaGrange, will conduct the funeral services this afternoon, assisted by the pastor, Rev. C. L. Barber.

She is survived by her five children, Mrs. N. E. Dozier, of Carrollton; Mrs. A. C. Padgett, of Atlanta; Albert A. Simonton, of Rome; Mrs. Howard Watkins, of Atlanta, and William J. Simonton, of Gray's Knob, Ky. One sister, Mrs. Cora Johnston Blayloch, and a niece, Miss Susie Blayloch, of Summerville, Ga., also survive her.

TRAFFIC ORDINANCE IS SIGNED BY MAYOR

The ordinance adopted by council at its session last Monday providing for a new set of traffic regulations in Atlanta, was signed by Mayor Walter A. Sims, Friday, to become effective April 1.

Principal changes in the new traffic rules apply to parking and non-parking on streets in the business district, and elimination of left and right-hand turns on principal thoroughfares.

In affixing his official signature to the ordinance Mayor Sims expressed satisfaction with the changes, predicting that if everybody would cooperate with police in enforcing the laws, fewer accidents and traffic congestions would result.

The mayor also signed the ordinance providing for immediate paving of Auburn avenue between Ivy street and Boulevard. This work will be acomplished under the baby bond or 10-year street improvement plan.

When completed this street is expected to relieve traffic on Forrest avenue and other streets intersecting with it from the north side.

SUPER-CAMPAIGN ON LAST DAY URGED

place their remittances in the mails by 9 o'clock tonight if they are to count in the special offer. This gives all club members an equal chance to increase their totals of cash subscriptions.

Those who resort to the mails are again urged to use special delivery stamps but not to have their mail registered. The special delivery stamp will expedite delivery, it is explained, while registering letters will tend to delay them.

When the special Buick prize offer goes into past history at 9 o'clock tonight, the final bonus vote offer will also expire. During the remaining week of the campaign—March 24 to 31—no extra prize offer and no bonus vote offers of any kind will be made.

Last Bonus Vote Day.

The result is that club members are placed on notice that today is the last day on which they can make their subscripition dollars do double duty in the campaign. Not only will they count on a cash basis in the special Buick prize offer, but they will bring to the credit of the club members extra votes at the rate of 50,000 for every $25 in subscriptions—and 2,000 extra votes for every dollar above the $25 minimum.

"The race for the original award list of 40 big prizes is so close that 50,000 bonus votes will in a score or more cases, make a winner out of an apparent loser,' the club management declared. "The $25 necessary to get the 50,000 extra votes will do the same thing in the special Buick campaign, which is based on a cash foundation.

"A word to the wise should be sufficient. Make your work of today at least 50,000 bonus votes and a $25 increase in the Buick campaign standing. When you reach this goal, don't be satisfied to stop and hope that it's enough to put you over. Ease your mind by starting in immediately for another 50,000 bonus votes.

"Every single vote you win today will count as it has never counted before. Make it a point to get every single subscription you possibly can, for a lone subscription may decide the Buick campaign. That's just how close the race is."

The club management also took occasion to urge club members to make today the biggest in the club's history regardless of general or individual handicaps.

"If you feel a bit badly," was the statement, "conquer that inclination to lag. Call on your enthusiasm and ignore anything that might come up that would slow down your work. This is said for your own good.

"Another thing that should be emphasized is the fact that adverse weather—if it should happen to materialize today—may cause some man or woman to lose a handsome prize just as his or her fingers are closing on it. We hope it won't rain or freeze, but if it should do so, take this tip: Work just as hard and just as sincerely as if the sun were shining warmly and the spring were here in full swing.

"Don't, for the sake of the time and energy you have given the campaign be a quitter on the last day of the extra vote, extra prize offer."

RAGSDALE TO PRESS CASE AGAINST DRIVER

When the trial of Clarence Stradly, of Luckie street, a jitney driver, who is alleged to have stabbed F. T. Ragsdale, 703 Marietta street, Thursday night, comes up in police court this afternoon at 2:30, the charges against Stradly will be vigorously pressed, according to a statement made by Mr. Ragsdale last night.

The names were transposed in the first account in the Thursday issue of The Constitution.

How to Avoid the Pitfalls of Prosperity

There is universal agreement that America is out of the slough of industrial depression and is again climbing the heights toward prosperity. Admitting this condition, it is of the utmost importance to every merchant, manufacturer, and in fact, to every man and woman to know if the United States, as a nation, is standing on firm, level, high ground or is making a perilous ascent from which business must almost inevitably fall headlong, perhaps, with another "buyers' strike," and plunge downward again into the depths of depression, unemployment, and epidemics of bankruptcy.

As one financial writer sees it, American business is at a "cross-roads" where it may choose between a safe path to continued prosperity or the more tempting climb to the dizzy heights of inflation and the inevitable downward crash.

That LITERARY DIGEST readers may know just where the country stands and that they may know how to choose the safer path, the leading article in that magazine this week presents expert opinion upon present and future business conditions. This news-feature, coming at this time, and because of its comprehensive scope, will be read carefully.

PRESIDENT'S PLATFORM.

News dispatches from Florida state that President Harding, whose candidacy for a second term nomination has already been announced by Attorney-General Daugherty, will shortly begin a campaign of the west, and will discuss the railroad situation, preferential primaries in the national campaign, ship subsidy, or the American merchant marine, and possibly the entrance of the United States into the international court.

These are all important questions, and particularly are the first three of peculiar domestic importance.

It is known that as to the railroad situation the president feels that the integrity of the interstate commerce commission and the labor board should be maintained. He feels, as does the country, that rates should be lowered, accepting the economic truth that a greater volume of business will be made available by lower rates, and that the net earnings of the roads will be thus increased.

Railroads are entitled to fair earnings, as are all legitimate businesses. They are entitled to fair treatment. They are entitled to so develop that the services they render may be better, and of more direct benefit to the people.

There is no doubt about the fact, however, that lower rates generally will automatically produce these results.

The country needs a merchant marine second to none in the world, and it can never reach such a position under government ownership and operation.

On the question of preferential primaries, the president is believed not to favor any extension of the present laws in states, and certainly to be opposed to a federal law to that end.

In that respect, of course, he is reactionary. It matters not how much scandal may have evolved out of the Newberry-Ford primary, or any other, the fact that law was violated does not destroy the integrity of the law, nor does it destroy the value of a system.

The presidential primary is democratic, and it is coming.

As to the entrance of the United States into an international court, the president's present views, which are a reversal of his campaign views of two years ago, have been reached no doubt by a more thorough study of America's duty in helping to complete a job in which she first participated and then withdrew.

President Harding has heard from the people in the meantime, and now realizes that a safe and sound co-operation on the part of this government in setting the European house in order is the one thing demanded before there can be universal peace, or before the economic problems of this country can be satisfactorily adjusted on a permanent basis.

CREAT IS ROME!

The "Industrial Development" edition of The Rome News, issued Thursday, is one of the largest, best edited and most complete newspapers that has reached this office in many a day.

What is most gratifying is the fact that it carries 5,500 inches of advertising, which shows a practical prosperity that evidences the spirit of the people and the times in this marvelous little city of northwest Georgia.

On this point The News introduced the story of the reorganized chamber of commerce, and the quickened spirit in Rome, with the following—

> "This 'Industrial Development' edition of The Rome News is being printed as the forerunner to what those who have faith in the power of organized effort believe will be the beginning of a new era in the progress of this city of unlimited resources and possibilities. It serves as the community expression of faith on the part of a people who are stretching their limbs after a pleasant siesta for the resumption of a swift race."

In this hour of co-ordinated effort all over Georgia for enlarged industrial activities the lead that Rome is taking is most commendable and inspiring.

LOOK TO THE SOUTH!

The sudden death in Washington of Milo D. Campbell, of Michigan, who had only a week before been sworn in as a member of the federal reserve board, removes from activities a man who came to the government service literally from the fields of his own farm.

He received the appointment as the "dirt farmer" member of the board, which was provided by the sixty-seventh congress.

Mr. Campbell was a high type of citizen, progressive, aggressive, and always dependable.

The death will make it necessary for President Harding to appoint another dirt farmer as quickly as the proprieties will admit.

Machinery for the new rural credits bill is now being set up, and it is important that a full board participate in that work.

In this connection The Constitution again calls to the attention of the president the text and certainly the spirit of the federal reserve law in providing that each grand division of this country shall be represented on the board. The law is very specific, and if it means anything it means that the south shall have representation on the board along with the east and the northwest, and the far west, and central west, and so on.

In reality it means that the country shall be divided into at least five zones in representation on the board, the northeast, northwest, southwest, southeast and mid-continent.

As the situation stands today the southeast, nor even the whole south, is represented on the board.

This is a mistake; and, now that a vacancy has been created that applies so fittingly to the greatest agricultural section of the country, let us hope that President Harding will look to the south to find the "dirt farmer" for that important position.

There are hundreds of capable men in every state of the south, any one of whom can and will fill the trust with distinctive honor and merit.

AS BABSON VIEWS IT.

Roger W. Babson, one of the world's most famous students of economic conditions, particularly as they affect the commercial and industrial life of this country, has been traveling through the south recently, surveying conditions, and analyzing the south's present economic status, and its future as written in that condition.

In an interview, which is now going the rounds of the press, he said—

> "The south has all the basic natural resources—climate, phosphates, fuel, water-power and shipping facilities. All the south needs is more 'vision' and more of that indescribable 'something' which makes things go. Moreover, the south is fast getting that vision. Every southern city and every southern state is evidence of this fact. The south is waking up and the north and west must look out or they will some day be out-classed, both industrially and agriculturally."

Speaking of the 1922 gain in purchasing power in the south, due to higher priced cotton, better marketing facilities of all merchantable products, and a changed sentiment, Mr. Babson gave the following differentiation based upon an estimate of the leading crops and the season's prices as compared to 1921—

	1922.	1921.	Pct. Gain
Ala.	$170,150,000	$124,820,000	39
Ariz.	17,545,000	15,339,000	14
Ark.	151,524,000	131,149,000	16
Calif.	127,237,000	112,994,000	13
Fla.	20,003,000	16,079,000	24
Georgia	185,024,000	140,770,000	32
La.	121,255,500	72,900,000	66
Miss.	164,372,000	122,584,000	34
Missouri	228,319,000	170,346,000	34
N. Caro.	237,439,000	226,006,000	5
Oklahoma	213,886,000	135,500,000	67
S. Caro.	148,755,000	119,102,000	25
Tenn.	166,640,000	129,761,000	28
Texas	501,811,000	326,238,000	54

Then he declared—

> "What the south needs is greater efficiency. In other words, the agricultural experts and the better class of growers are able to deal with the weevil, but they cannot handle the job alone. They cannot make up for the laziness and stupidity of the shiftless.
>
> "There are several optimistic factors in the outlook. (1) Excellent work in research and education is being accomplished by the United States department of agriculture experts, supported by the farm journals and local papers. (2) There is a tendency toward co-operation, and one of the by-products of this movement should be to raise the general level of intelligence and energy among the growers. (3) The continued development of the southern textile industry will create an influential class who are directly interested in improved methods of growing. (4) The further progress of diversified farming and animal husbandry will tend to shift cotton growing into stronger hands."

These conclusions are the same as reached by every thorough survey of the economic conditions in the south, when understandingly made by persons competent to analyze situations.

Co-operation, collective thought and undertakings, more democracy in community spirit—these are the factors that are making available the south's opportunities to farmers, business men, professional men, all.

Just From Georgia

BY FRANK L. STANTON.

The Sweetest is the Last.

I.

Roll on, O World.
The way you want to go;
We still can dream of Maytime
When comes the time of snow,
And hear loved birds a-singing
When Winter rides the blast—
No matter what the season,
The sweetest is the last.

II.

Roll on, O World!
No matter where you race,
We're still a-going with you
With starred or stormy face.
Love's springtime knew the roses,
Even though they faded fast,
But Love is for all seasons—
The sweetest is the last.

"The Feller that Knows Me Best."

"Uncle John," who is Dr. John Joseph Gaines, of Excelsior Springs, Mo., sends us this charming prose-poem about "the little feller that knows him best"—

He's only some five an' a half year old,—an' they say he's bright, fer his size. He never fergets a thing he's told, ner what he may glimpse with his eyes.—So, I've got to be keerful of what I do in front of my offspring-guest,—fer I'm the chap that he keeps in view—this feller that knows me best.

He'll lean on the arm of my Morris cheer,— with eyes wide open, ye know, —an' he'll ast me what tobacker is fer, an' what makes the whiskers grow! An' he'll mebbe inquire afore he's through, why I don't button my vest? He's a little aristocrat, staunch an' true—this feller that knows me best. . . .

I've got to look pleasant around the house—an' cultivate manners new, Fer—I can't make a move, that this little mouse don't copy the thing I do. In short, I'm livin' a constant prayer, with an anxious heart in my breast,—an' I reckon it's nothin' more than is fair,—to the feller that knows me best!

"UNCLE JOHN."

Young Mister April.

I.

Young Mister Aperl,
He's a-comin' 'long;
One minute he'll be cryin',
Then singin' of a song!
He's like a fickle sweetheart
That treats a feller wrong.

II.

Young Mister Aperl,
He's the one I'll win
The music that's the sweetest,
When the singin' days begin.
He'll open all the glory-gates
An' let the roses in!

Talking of the Laws.

(From The Tifton (Ga.) Gazette).

"Man is an able creature," says the Richmond News-Leader, "but he has made 32,647,389 laws, and hasn't yet improved on the Ten Commandments." "But it will have to be admitted that he has given the lawyers a lot of profitable work," comments the Dalton Citizen. But it is our observation that few if any lawyers know all the laws. Then, why not trim down the number of laws until one man can live long enough to grasp all of them?

A Note of Life.

Good deal o' joy,
As you're joggin' along,
Yet, life ain't no circus,
An' life ain't no song.
An' maybe up there,
They'll forgive who went wrong.
Since life was no circus,
An' seldom a song!

"There are still some of us living," says The Thomasville Times-Enterprise, "who used to go to a show for a dime and think we did well to get it up."

In the days comin' on,
But you won't rickernize 'em
Until they are gone.

Child's Song in Spring

The silver birch is a dainty lady.
She wears a satin gown;
The elm tree makes the old churchyard shady,
She will not live in town.

The English oak is a sturdy fellow,
He gets his green coat late;
The willow is smart in a suit of yellow,
While brown the beech trees wait.

Such a gay green gown God gives the larches,
As green as He is good.
The hazels hold up their arms for arches
When spring rides through the wood.

The chestnut's proud, and the lilac's pretty,
The poplar's gentle and tall.
But the plane tree's kind to the poor dull city—
I love him best of all.

East Point Revival Services Open Sunday At Methodist Church

East Point, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—Beginning next Sunday revival services will be conducted at the Church Street Methodist church by the pastor, Rev. N. A. White, it was announced today. Every night at 7:30 o'clock the song service will begin, led by S. J. Womack. During the week a service will be held every afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Dr. White has been pastor of the East Point church for some months and has made many friends. He invites the co-operation of all interested in church work to work with them in this meeting. He has held meetings throughout the south, before coming to East Point.

DR. BRANSON TO SPEAK IN ATLANTA SUNDAY

Addresses by Dr. T. J. Branson, well-known pastor and Bible teacher of Washington, Ga., will feature services at the Gospel tabernacle Sunday. The topic at 11 o'clock will be "Sundry Verdicts of Christ," and at 7:30 o'clock "Christ's Three-fold Ministry."

Dr. Branson will stop over in Atlanta en route from Tallapoosa, where he delivered several addresses at the annual Bible conference in session there.

Mrs. Ruth A. Lynch Dies.

Lumpkin, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—Mrs. Ruth Ann Lynch, 83 years old, died last night at her home near here. She is survived by one daughter, Miss Rocky Lynch; and five sons, C. B., N. T., H. N., Raiford and Dr. C. S. Lynch. Funeral services were held this afternoon.

Just In Passing!

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

The City club of Atlanta, of which my friend, Edgar Watkins, is president, is doing a magnificent constructive work in bringing citizens in closer touch with each other, and with that impelling force which is sweeping Georgia today—co-operation toward the material advancement of the city and the state.

It is sponsoring no specific school of thought for this policy or for that policy. Nor is it promoting any political issue, or exploiting any individual, or group of individuals. It is simply a civic organization for building—for construction instead of destruction.

Particularly is it doing an excellent educational work, though its program of weekly luncheon speakers who can not only entertain, but instruct along lines that must necessarily be of value in the planning of a greater city and a greater state.

At its luncheon on April 3, State Commissioner Hal H. Stanley, of the department of labor and commerce, will speak on the new "Georgians Incorporated" movement, which is the collective efforts of public spirited citizens of the state to bring more industries to Georgia, and to make the conditions incentive to this end as compelling and as sound and safe as practicable.

On April 13, Nelson Shipp, of the editorial staff of The Macon Telegraph, will speak on the "Harmony Program" recently advanced by him in connection with The Telegraph's widely circulated editorial position that the old capital removal agitation shall find no place in this year's activities—the thought being that all the cities and towns and sections should co-ordinate in working for Georgia, and for the betterment of Georgia, without bias and without division of sentiment on any issue that can only tend to split the people into factional and sectional groups.

This is the spirit that will quickly put Georgia high up in the line of progress.

I acknowledge receipt of an autographed edition of Mary Chapin Smith's volume of poems, from The Gorham Press, of Boston, entitled, "Earth Songs."

Mrs. Smith is one of the intellectual giants among the women of the south. Georgians who go to the beautiful Highland, N. C., section of the western Carolina mountains will recall that Mrs. Smith is proprietress of the Smith House at Highland.

She is, if I recall correctly, a graduate of Vassar; and is a writer of professional recognition who came to the sapphire country many years ago, and so loved the hills the pure ozone the great outdoors with its laurel and rhododendron, that she could not leave them.

Her husband, in his work shop, turning hardwoods of the section into rare and beautiful ornamentals and utilities, is no less an artist than she is a poetess—and that is as high a compliment to his remarkable genius as I could possibly pay him. He is by profession, a naturalist—

> "Maker of pleasant gardens, where one may dwell in the fine companionship of the birds and trees and under the airs of heaven, with Nature's ancient manuscript opened wide, and writ in divers languages."

I deeply appreciate the volume Mrs. Smith mailed to me, and can assure her that The Constitution, which has published many of her poems, will always have its columns open to her.

In this connection I want to thank George M. Battey, Jr., of Rome, for an autographed copy of his history of Rome and Floyd county—

And say, which I do with all earnestness and sincerity, that it is the most complete, comprehensive, and most interestingly compiled history I have ever seen.

The people of Rome and Floyd can never pay the debt of gratitude that they really owe to George Battey for this book. In its fullness it represents months of research and study, and in its publication it represents thousands of dollars in cash investment.

The function of a historian is to compile and preserve facts—the stories of people and events as they actually occurred.

It is not to comment on conditions, past or present, or speculate on the future.

Nor is it to circulate propaganda in the interest of a movement, or an issue, or even a community.

Battey's history of Rome is a careful, painstaking grouping of the life and works and letters of the outstanding and upstanding men and women of the section from the days of the red man's occupation—the evolution of a great county through all of the exciting periods of war, and through the generations of progressive peace, to this very day—a history replete with the human touch that grips the reader, for Rome has been built on ground made sacred by the best blood of American manhood, and, in one way or another, the history of Rome touches the history of Georgia on almost its every page.

It is indeed a remarkable volume, with many excursions into romance as well as tragedy, and always pointing the finger to the top of the surrounding peaks overlooking many of the states of the south—and this is the goal toward which this progressive little city of the seven hills is always climbing.

This volume, too, I most keenly appreciate.

"The Key to Every Successful Business and Profession Found Only Between the Lids of the Bible," is the title of a 23-page copyrighted letter, by Brownlow Sams, of Augusta, Ga.

In this letter Mr. Sams proves by Bible authority that a strict compliance with the ten commandments is absolutely necessary to full success, and by his suggestions it is easy to obey every one of them.

The letter is non-sectarian and is being endorsed by ministers and laymen, as well as journalists.

I have received from the author a copy of this discussion, and appreciate the same.

For many years I have known Brownlow Sams, first when he was a newspaper man and publisher in Jacksonville, when I was managing editor of the Times-Union in that city. He is a deep thinker—and analyst—and this latest work of his I find is receiving considerable deserved attention.

The man or woman who serves humanity instead of self is a benefactor indeed.

Perhaps it may not be the course of greatest material progress, but service—service of a worthwhile character, service that builds, that preserves health, that points the way to emancipation from the thralldom of sin, or the shackles of disease, or the serfdom of poverty—that is service that counts.

These thoughts come to me in reading the advance manuscript of a technical paper that Dr. W. C. Bryant, of Atlanta, has just submitted to the Journal of the Medical Association of Georgia, entitled "Rumicine in the treatment of epithlioma and other malignant growths."

The paper opens up the very important question—has there been found, in a plant grown here in Georgia, a cure for cancer, so that those sufferers from this dread disease who have not the funds to apply the radium or x-ray treatments may really see lights of hope in the clouds that shroud them?

It is an interesting subject, and I don't hesitate to say I asked Dr. Bryant for something more practical—something that the average layman could understand—on the question.

Quoting from advanced copy he states: "The success I am having in the treatment in this class of cases demands that I report to the profession what has been accomplished and the means employed."

The doctor, then in technical terms, describes a plant indigenous to this section, known to botanists as Rumex—a specie of perennials belonging to the dock family, giving minutely his method of preparation and manner of application. He urges the profession to give his method of treatment a fair try-out.

Doctors are so queer. Here's what he told me—

"There is very little that I can with propriety say at this time, besides," he added, "the whole matter is 'on the knees of the gods.'"

He did venture that all the cases so far treated and discharged are apparently cured and those under observation now are progressing satisfactorily. "The cases that have been referred to me have yielded promptly but whether or not a permanent cure has been obtained is a question that time alone can answer. The results so far are equal to those obtained by radium and the x-ray, which means much to those who are not able to bear the heavy expense necessarily involved in this method of treatment."

And then—"Taking into consideration the fact that nearly every one has some form of Rigg's disease—a disease that has grown to be a most formidable menace to good health—and the further fact that the proper application of this simple plant seems to be a specific in this loathsome and obstinate affection gives it, in my opinion, a value hard to estimate."

And now, friends, I believe this about winds up the odds and ends of my desk for the day—

I see James M. Cox is coming to town.

Before he owned a newspaper, or was elected governor, or ran for president, and so on, he was a reporter on the Cincinnati Enquirer, when the late John R. McLean was editor and owner.

Young Cox was sent over to Covington to report a meeting conducted by a woman evangelist, which was an innovation in those days.

When the "invitation" song was progressing, the good woman sauntered down through the audience making personal appeals to the hard-hearted. Cox was sitting on the end of a bench next to the aisle busily writing away in his note book—

"Won't you come to Christ?" she pleaded.

"Madam, I am here purely on business," he replied rather curtly as he kept on writing.

"But," protested the woman evangelist, "there is no business as important as God's"—

"You simply don't know John R. McLean, madam." Cox replied, and kept on writing without looking up.

Industry has its reward!

Cox afterward became governor. McLean tried to be governor and failed.

LEGION WILL FURNISH ROOM IN RESCUE HOME

The American Rescue Workers Friday received letters from the commanders of the Henry Thomas Ross Post No. 79, and Atlanta Post No. 1, of the American Legion, congratulating them on their new building, and their work among the homeless.

Commander Evan P. Howell, of the Henry Thomas Ross post, stated in his letter, that he desired to furnish a room in the Rescue Workers' new building, to be known as the American Legion room.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

(Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution).

LINIMENT.

Although I usually say what I think and think what I say, I hadn't the courage to omit liniment from the medicine cupboard. The word liniment means smear, that is what I think of liniment in general. Still I am not wholly unmindful of the thrill one gets from putting some smelly liniment on the lame or aching spot. I can still recall the joy of grandma's soap and sugar poultice on a stone bruise.

For aches and pains in the muscles or points one of the most comforting liniments is a mixture of equal parts of oil of wintergreen or oil of birch and olive oil, which may be applied with prolonged rubbing as desired, if there is no very acute inflammation. Of course, when there is much inflammation rubbing or manipulation of the inflamed part is unwise.

The rubbing or massaging is the explanation of any relief or benefit obtained from most liniments. A certain amount of temporary mitigation of pain is sometimes obtained by counter irritation. That means, as nearly as I can explain it, burning or blistering one's back, for instance, to distract one's attention from a pain in the tummy. Many liniments burn or irritate sufficiently to distract attention from aches or pains which are not very severe. And a third way in which liniments may do good or harm is through the absorption of certain drugs into the system when they are applied to the skin. This absorption is not necessarily through the skin, however. In fact, physiology teaches that there is practically no absorption through the skin. The systemic effects of various medicines applied to the skin depend rather on the fact that the medicines are of volatile character and are volatilized by the body warmth and inhaled. At any rate, alcoholic solutions of medicines, the common form in liniments, are absolutely not absorbed by the skin. Nevertheless, as I have already said, some medicines applied in liniments do exert a systemic effect, however absorbed.

It is immaterial whether a liniment be liquid or solidified. Solidified liniment, melting to liquid at the warmth of the body, has the advantage of convenience and cleanliness and is therfore much used nowadays. Solidified liniment may be kept in the most cleanly container, the collapsible tube, or in a jar or box if contamination is not to be feared. Several formulas achieved popularity. One called analgesic balm, with numerous variations on the title, consists of oil of wintergreen or artificial oil of wintergreen (methyl salicylate), with menthol, incorporated in a base of lanolin and petrolatum or lanolin alone. This is used as an application for neuralgic pain, muscle and joint soreness or pain, and aches and pains in general. When using it, be careful to keep it out of the eyes. Another popular formula for solidified liniment is either an improvement or an aggravation of analgesic balm, for it contains also some capsicum to give it pep and some belladonna which tends to allay spasm or cramp. This is about the best formula I know:

Menthol	3 grains
Oil of wintergreen	20 drops
Extract of belladonna	20 drops
Lanolin	6 drams
Petrolatum, enough to make	1 oz.
bake	1 ounce
Fluid extract of capsicum	20 drops

BETTER MAIL SERVICE WANTED IN DECATUR

Congressman Upshaw Will Send Telegram Asking for Improvement.

Prominent Decatur citizens, residents of Atlanta, and Congressman Upshaw, were present at a meeting held last night in Decatur to formulate a plan to have the clerical staff at the Decatur postoffice increased to meet the growing population, and to insure prompt movement of the mails.

"For the past five years the only addition to the force at the Decatur postoffice has been the assistance of an auxiliary clerk for five hours a day, and an auxiliary carrier for two hours a day, although the business at the postoffice has increased more than 40 per cent," Dr. B. M. Shive, postmaster, declared at the meeting.

Notification has been received at the Decatur postoffice to dispense with the auxiliary clerk until the beginning of the new fiscal year on July 1.

After hearing the speech of Dr. Shive, the citizens requested Congressman Upshaw to send a telegram to Washington stating the situation here, and requesting that relief be offered.

Postmaster Shive did not request that any additional force be allowed him at present, but only that he be allowed to keep the auxiliary clerk and carrier, which he states, will do much to relieve the congestion in Decatur.

Carriers and clerks employed by the Decatur postoffice, in a letter to the first assistant postmaster general in Washington, pledging him their loyal support during the present financial crisis of that department, have requested that the office be allowed to retain the services of the auxiliary clerk and carrier.

It was decided at the meeting to follow Congressman Upshaw's telegram with a detailed letter explaining the situation, and asking that the Decatur postoffice be put on the same basis with towns having a population of from 8,000 to 10,000.

MINSTREL PRESENTED BY EPWORTH LEAGUE

A minstrel, orchestra concert, mandolin club, and "rube" band were the entertainments provided by the Atlanta Epworth League union, at Cable hall Friday night. W. B. Griffith directed the orchestra; Dr. Benjamin O. Holtzendorf was leader in the minstrel, and Perry Jones conducted the "rube" band. More than a hundred persons were turned away Dr. Holtzendorf said, but they have another opportunity to see it tonight at 8 o'clock.

COMMERCE FRESHMEN PLAN DINNER-DANCE

The freshman class of the Evening School of Commerce, of Georgia Tech will give a dinner-dance at the Colonial Tea room, 9 Auburn avenue, tonight at 6 o'clock. A program has been arranged, which includes dancing and singing by several local persons. Dancing will following the dinner. Music will be furnished by the Colonial's regular orchestra. Members of all classes of the Evening school are invited to be present.

Freight Train Derailed.

Smithville, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—A Central of Georgia freight train was derailed at Adams, Ga., near here today, seven cars overturning. Passengers were being transferred around the wreck, which will require several hours for clearing of track.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. McINTYRE

New York, March 23.—They are flagging the ankle dancers in the terpsichorean halls. The head-jerking, foot-dragging brand of "light fantastic" has become so blatantly vulgar that a quiet tip off from headquarters has warned supper club owners that raids will follow.

The shimmy in its shimmiest moment was never so expressively suggestive. It is essayed mostly by young college cut-ups and girls playing hookey from boarding schools. They roll their eyes, sway and shiver like a storm-bound ship.

St. Vitus with all his "vitusing" has never achieved such an effect. The other night a young man with one of those vacuous expressions that only a fond mama could love was having his epileptic seizure in the middle of a postage stamp dance floor.

A swig of drug store gin and a vanilla sundae had made him particularly don't-carish. The bouncer stopped the music, grabbed the young fellow and applied a hair-brush massage with his open palm. And Terrible Rollo was brought back to normalcy.

Perhaps I am out of tune with the times, yet I can remember at that moon calf period when we young fellows sought our partners with a curtsey, talked in shy monosyllables and escorted our companions to seats with a profusion of thanks.

Nowadays the cake eaters yank a lady fair out of her chair as if they were going to do an acrobatic handstand. They wrestle about the floor passing a flask back and forth to lips and when the music stops they leave each other flat and walk away.

On upper Broadway a dancing academy heralds in electric lights: "We Teach the Cake Ankle!" A dance indeed that is the hoochie of the cirqus lot—plus. One of the most talked about devotees of the "cake ankle" are a mother and son. Widowed at 50 she retains her girlish laughter and seeks to be the life of the party.

Milady's coiffure has become a part of her hat trimming. Puffs of hair now show through the hat. In most instances the effect is achieved with a tight-fitting turban.

Lillian Lorraine, who was one year ago thought to be hopelessly crippled as the result of a fall, is now the hostess at a supper club. Those who have seen her say she is looking more youthful than ever.

A street car that rumbles northward from Chatham Square right off the entrance to Chinatown at 2:40 in the morning is called "The hop head's special." It is supposed to carry many passengers who have been smoking opium in the Mott, Doyers and Pell streets dens. Opium smokers after a debauch suffer from a burning thirst and Bowery stragglers pick up small change by selling water from ice cold containers at 10 cents a glass at various stations along the route. A detective attached to the narcotic squad tells me that it is quite easy to spot an opium addict. The odor of the drug clings to his clothing for many days. Riding in the subway late one night with him he pointed out three who, he said, had just finished a poppy dissipation.

Truett Tells Why Prayers Often Fail to Get Answer

Great Evangelist Holds Attention of Capacity Audience at Baptist Tabernacle on Friday Night.

Rev. George W. Truett, of Dallas, Texas, addressed one of the largest audiences that ever attended the Baptist tabernacle, last night upon 'the subject, "The Efficacy of Prayer." His text was taken from the fifth chapter of James, verses 16-20.

Even standing room in the great auditorium could not be found at the beginning of the services. The attendance this year, Baptist ministers declare, surpasses by far that of any other Bible conference conducted at the tabernacle.

"In casting about for a suitable subject for tonight," Dr. Truett said, in beginning, "it has seemed to me that I could bring no more appropriate and important topic before you than to direct your attention to the vital subject of prayer. Every speaker during this great conference has laid tremendous stress upon this most importatnt theme.

Do Not Pray Enough.

"First of all, we do not pray enough. We have not because we ask not. There is no mistaking the meaning of this sentence. I press the question upon every Christian before me. Has the closet with closed door been neglected? That closet is the trysting place of power. Men and women who go there come out with visions that inspire, and power that shakes the world. Keep the prayer-path warm and it will daily give you divine power. Like a golden thread the efficacy of prayer may be seen all through God's blessed book.

"Prayer is not only to the last degree reasonable but our nature demands it. It is necessary and both a privilege and a beauty of earthly life. Prayer is the highest creative function in human life. Prayer links mankinw with God. It breaks down difficulties. It calls forth workers and opens the doors that release energies for the spreading of God's kingdom and truth. It brings victory in hours of crisis. It gives untold power to the weakest.

"Prayers are not answered sometimes because they are prayed with the wrong motive. God looks even for the motive in prayer and thoughts, as well as in deeds. If the motive is wrong, nothing following it can be right.

Why Answer Fails.

"Leading the wrong kind of life prohibits prayers from being efficacious. If I hold iniquity in my heart the Lord will not hear me. If I coddle and pamper sin it will be to compromise God. It is the prayer of the righteous man and not the unrighteous that avails much.

"When we keep His commandments and do those things which are pleasing in His sight our prayers will be answered.

"Lack of earnestness also prevents prayers from being efficacious. If we sleep and drink over our prayers there is no possible hope that they shall be answered.

"Again our prayers are not answered because of lack of faith. Faith is but taking God's word. If anyone can believe—all things to Him are possible.

"Lack of submission is the failing of many. 'Thy will be done' must be contained in every acceptable prayer," Dr. Truett said in closing.

Evangelistic Series Of Services Planned For East Point Church

A number of speakers of national reputation will address a unique evangelistic series of meetings to begin Sunday at the Capital View Christian church in East Point, it was announced last night. One of the features of the services will be the exhibiting of motion pictures displaying the only film of the New Testament baptism, and many other subjects of interest. The first session will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock when 500 young people will be in attendance.

Among the speakers will be Traverce Harrison, of Cincinnati, Ohio, world superintendent of the loyal movement, the largest organized Bible class project in the world; C. J. Sharp, of Hammond, Ind., superintendent of group evangelism; J. E. Sturgis, music editor of the Standard Publishing company, Cincinnati, Ohio; C. E. Otey, minister-evangelistic of Spray, N. C.; Evangelist C. L. Organ, Des Moines, Iowa, and many others.

President Willson, Of Lander College, Died Friday Night

Greenwood, S. C., March 23.—Rev. Dr. John W. Willson, president of Lander college, Methodist school for girls here, died tonight at 10 o'clock after an illness of four days.

Dr. Willson is survived by one daughter, Mrs. T. Q. Donaldson, wife of Colonel Donaldson, United States army, stationed in Washington, D. C.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Greenwood.

B. Y. P. U. CONVENTION IS HELD AT DALTON

Dalton, Ga., March 23.—(Special.) Several hundred delegates will be guests of the First Baptist church in attendance upon the annual regional Baptist Young People's union convention here this week. Many prominent Baptists were in attendance and a majority of the twenty churches composing the convention were represented.

Emmett Cole, of Rome, vice president, presided over the convention, and an extensive program was carried out, with J. D. Hoffman, of Atlanta, in charge of the music. As fast as the delegates arrived they were assigned to private homes by a committee having that matter in charge.

Addresses of welcome were delivered by Dr. F. K. Sims, of the First Presbyterian church; Rev. H. C. Emory, of the First Methodist church; Mayor J. G. McAfee, Dalton, and Rev. Josiah Crudup, pastor of the convention.

REVIVAL ENDS TONIGHT AT DECATUR CHRISTIAN

A special series of services, which will close tonight with an address by Rev. Traverce Harrison, of Cincinnati, have been conducted at the Decatur Christian church for the past week. A number of prominent ministers of Atlanta and other Georgia cities have spoken at the services.

NEW ANESTHETIC PROVES SUCCESS IN CHICAGO TESTS

Chicago, March 23.—A new anesthetic which, in the opinion of leading Chicago surgeons, may entirely replace ether and "laughing gas" in surgical operations, have been discovered in "ethylene," by Dr. Arnold B. Leuckhardt, of Chicago university.

Ethylene, according to one surgeon, was used by him in performing a minor operation. After the patient came out from under the influence of the gas, his expressions of satisfaction included the explanation that he did not know he had been "under." This surgeon then performed two major operations with the same results.

The great importance of ethylene, according to Dr. Leuckhardt, is the absence of any toxic effects where it is used. There is neither any action on the heart nor tendency toward nausea. The patient may even eat and drink before an operation without danger of discomfort.

If ethylene succeeds in taking the place of ether or laughing gas, surgeons say most of the trying and annoying phases of minor operations will be eliminated.

Dr. Leuckhardt explained that ethylene is a gas, with a slightly sweetish odor, a well known chemical. It is a constitutent of ordinary "laughing gas." And when in an impure state and mixed with oxygen it will explode. Hence some degree of care must be observed in its use.

Twelve Men Killed In Boiler Explosion On Jap War Vessel

Honolulu, March 23.—(By the Associated Press.) — The Japanese cruiser Katori has returned to the naval base at Yokosuka, Japan, after an explosion in which 12 members of the crew were killed when a number of officers and men injured, according to a cable dispatch received today by the Nippu Jiji, local vernacular newspaper.

The dispatch stated that the explosion in the Katori boiler room occurred when the vessel was cruising in the South Sea.

Chicken Sale Success.

Elberton, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—The recent chicken sale held here was a success. Only one car had been ordered here and there were enough chickens to more than fill it. The chamber of commerce bought all that was over and shipped in crates what they did not sell locally. The average price was over 22 cents a pound. Another car will be shipped later.

Pure Bred Hogs.

Elberton, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—Elbert county now has more fine pure-bred hogs than in its history. Under the work of County Agent W. P. White the people have turned attention more to fine hogs and fine chickens than ever before, and next year they intend to have fine hogs as well as fine chickens for sale.

OTHERS INVOLVED IN LIQUOR PLOT

Federal Agents on Trail of Several More Men for Wholesale Liquor Conspiracy.

New York, March 23.—Several more men alleged to have been interested in a conspiracy to withdraw $10,000,000 worth of liquor from a bonded warehouse are being sought by federal agents, it was announced today, after Charles and Ralph Sabbatino, warehouse owners, and eight others had been held for federal grand jury action on charges of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act.

The Sabbatino brothers, arrested yesterday on warrants sworn out by Assistant Prohibition Enforcement Directors Murphy and Reeves, were charged with having attempted to bribe the directors to connive in the release of the liquor from the warehouses.

Murphy and Reeves said they were paid $10,000 each by agents of the brothers on the delivery of forged withdrawal permits calling for 100 barrels of whisky. The arrests were made when the removal of liquor was begun.

The plot called for the gradual emptying of the warehouse. The plotters were said to have arranged to pay $10,000 a block for forged permits.

Director Murphy said he anticipated no difficulty in obtaining warrants for others connected with the case.

Bribe Charges False, Declares Sheriff Garner

Says "Men Behind Outrage Are Professional Liquor Men and Thieves."

Lawrenceville, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—In an interview with Sheriff E. S. Garner in connection with the charge of accepting marked money from a "bootleger" to allow him to go through the county with whisky, unmolested, the sheriff stoutly denies the charge and says it is a "frame up" concocted by liquor haulers, bootleggers and law violators, and that this "outrage" on him will not deter him from the capture and prosecution of these runners as heretofore. The statement of the sheriff is as follows:

"On account of the publicity given the matter I wish to state to my friends and the public generally that there is absolutely no truth in the charges made against me and my office force. It is a frame-up, pure and simple, and is but an effort of liquor haulers, bootleggers and their sympathizers to embarrass me in my duties in catching so many of them.

"No money, marked or unmarked, was taken from my person.

"At least three of the men who are behind this outrage on me and my office force, are professional liquor haulers, bootleggers and law violators, and one of them has a record of being convicted of stealing. The leader of this gang was taken advantage of and imposed upon by this gang of professional bootleggers who wish to get rid of diligent officers in order that they can ply their trade unmolested.

"One of this gang was arrested in this county a few days ago by my force with one hundred empty liquor cans in his car. Another one has been arrested several times for hauling liquor and is a confessed liquor hauler and bootlegger. He has recently stated that he was going to get me yet, saying he doubted if he had sufficient evidence now. A third one is a bootlegger and liquor hauler. All of this will be proved at the proper time and place.

"I wish to state further that this outrage perpetrated on me at my home will not deter me in the least from continuing to arrest, jail and convict every liquor hauler and bootlegger I can catch, and they need not think such tactics will help them any.

"E. S. GARNER."

KLAN IS ACTIVE IN ST. LOUIS SAYS NEWSPAPER

St. Louis, Mo., March 23.—The St. Louis Post Dispatch today publishes an article that the Ku Klux Klan in East St. Louis, Ill., which is alleged to be supporting three of four candidates for city commissionerships in the municipal election April 3, also will have a slate in the election of April 14, for the election of five members of the board of education.

The article quotes an alleged speaker at a klan meeting as saying: "The only way to make the city 100 per cent American is to crush the Jews, negroes and Catholics at the polls April 3."

The klan has completed financing of a bank to assist in carrying on its work, the article adds.

COAL INDUSTRY SURVEY BEGUN IN TWO STATES

Pittsburg, March 23.—A survey of the coal industry in western Pennsylvania and Ohio with particular reference to the causes of labor irritation and strikes, was commenced today by a group of experts named by the United States Coal commission. Individual members of the group planned to make trips to coal centers in the Pittsburg district and all information collected will be incorporated into a group report. It was expected that a week would be required to complete the work.

This group, it was stated, is one of seven named to make a survey in the following districts: Anthracite fields of Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Tennessee; West Virginia region; Illinois and Indiana, and of Kansas; Oklahoma and Colorado.

The investigation will not be conducted entirely in the coal industry, but all economic and industrial interests affected by labor irritations and strikes will be approached for information, Mr. Carmody announced.

SYLVESTER KIWANIS CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Sylvester, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—The second meeting of the Sylvester Kiwanis club was held at the hall of the American legion today and lunch was served by the Sylvester Woman's club.

Forty-one members were present and two visitors, George A. Ozburn, president of the Kiwanis club of Fresno, Cal., and J. M. Tomlinson, of Albany. Both made interesting talks.

The required fifty members has been secured and a permanent organization is to be effected by the district organizer next Friday night at the American Legion hall.

DENY ACCUSATIONS AGAINST PURNELL

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 23.—Attorneys for "King" Benjamin Purnell of the House of David, denying amazing charges of wholesale moral turpitude against the leader of the cult with the assertion that he was frequently tempted but never fell, opened the defense in the $80,000 damage suit of Mr. and Mrs. John Hansel Friday, after Mrs. Esther Hanaford Hansel, daughter of the plaintiffs, had testified that she and other followers of Benjamin had been threatened with punishment by poisoning.

Members of the cult, Mrs. Hansel declared, lived in hourly terror of Benjamin's vengeance. Her own brother, she testified, had warned her that the leader's only wedded wife, Mary Purnell, who was known in the Benton Harbor colony as "The Blessed Virgin," had sworn to stab her to death.

Mrs. Hansel's testimony concluded a deluge of testimony concerning alleged wild orgies in which Benjamin was the central figure who claimed that these were "purification" ceremonies which all good little girls must go through in order to get to heaven.

After setting forth the claim that Esther was the unrepentant "Mary Magdalene" of the colony who had tried to swerve the "king" from his holy path of virtue, and that the case against Purnell was all a huge conspiracy, the defense placed on the stand Edwards Bully, a member of the advisory board of the House of David, who denied all the charges made by the dozens or more witnesses for the plaintiff.

Virtue and moral purity were something of which the House of David had nothing else but, according to Bully, who absolved Benjamin of all the charges of immorality, as well as the alleged storing of bottles of beer and buckets of gold in Shiloh, the palace of the "king," where the host of immoralities were testified to have occurred.

Bully also denied existence of the secret tunnel which it is said Benjamin maintains for purposes to escape in case of sudden visits by investigating officials.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Peebles, of Berrien county followed Bully and told of being called to the House of David, the night the Hansels were expelled, after, the plaintiffs claim, they had invested $80,000 in King Benjamin's brand of holiness. He found goods in the possession of the Hansels which the house claimed had been stolen, he declared.

Even the meagre pensions of old civil war veterans were taken by Benjamin to swell his coffers, according to Mrs. Hansel.

"I remember," she said, "when one old man refused to turn over his pension. Benjamin was furious, and said, 'He will be turning in soon.' Shortly after that he died, and Benjamin called us all together in the common meeting room and told us what happened when one defies his wishes."

There were more women than men in the House of David, the witness said, adding that "anyone was welcome there who had either money or was possessed of a strong back and a weak mind." Once they got in, she declared, they seldom returned to the outside world.

REVOLUTION PLOT NIPPED BY ARREST, PRUSSIA IS TOLD

London, March 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Prussian minister of the interior, Herr Severing, told the Prussian diet today, according to a Central news dispatch from Berlin, that Lieutenant Rossbach, recently arrested in Berlin, planned a revolution which was set to break out by March 31, at the latest.

A combination of the German people's and liberal parties and the Bavarian socialists, he added, had only been prevented by yesterday's arrests.

Herr Severing denied that the Rossbach organization was merely a sporting fraternity as claimed. Its members, he said, were military men—trained soldiers who fought in the war. They were partially equipped and frequently exercised and drilled.

The ministry, according to the despatch mentioned General Ludendorff as one of those on whom grave suspicion rested.

A telegram from Breslau announces that a number of arrests were made there today in connection with the alleged Rossbach plot.

SCORE SHAKEN UP WHEN TRAIN WRECKS

Selma, Ala., March 23.—A score or more passengers were badly shaken up when passenger train No. 124 on the Alabama Great Southern railroad was wrecked today near York, Ala., according to reports reaching here over disrupted wires. All wires were out to York but first reports indicated that none of the passengers were injured beyond a severe shaking up.

Beauty Proof Jury Is Now Attacked By Tear Floods

Both Sides Let Lachrymose Glands Work in Fuchs Alienation Suit.

BY RODNEY F. DUTCHER,
United News Staff Correspondent.

Chicago, March 23.—The "beauty proof jury," twelve men who have sworn to be unswayed by the fact that Mrs. Gladys Graham Fox, who is suing Albert Fuchs, her millionaire father-in-law, for $250,000 damages because of alleged alienation of her husband's affections, is undeniably beautiful, must now demonstrate that it is also absolutely "tear proof."

Mrs. Fox, telling a tale of happy marital bliss with Carleton E. Fox, her husband, allegedly annihilated by the elder Fuchs, diluted tears rather copiously with her story.

Counsel for Fuchs suddenly realized that they might have missed a bet in failing to make sure that the jurors would be wary of tears.

More Tears.

Fuchs, however, went on the witness stand to deny his daughter-in-law's charges Friday and as he told his story of a father's trials and tribulations while he believed his son was unhappily married, shed a few wholesome tears for the defense. So now the jury must bear in mind that it doesn't make a particle of difference who wept most effectively.

For four years, Fuchs declared, he had acted as a peacemaker between his daughter-in-law and his son. But Carleton, he declared, had a great deal to put up with.

"Finally," he said, "Carl came to me crying and said he might as well close up shop. 'She interferes with my business constantly,' he told me.

Principal Complaint.

"My patience was exhausted. 'Carl,' I told him, 'you've given me four years of hell and I won't stand it any longer. Either you make up with Gladys or get out. I'll take care of Gladys and the baby.'"

Fuchs said that his principal complaint against Mrs. Fox was, not as she claimed, her failure to possess a German ancestry, but her refusal to allow him to play with his grandchild.

During those four years of the Fox's married life, which everyone agrees began so happily and closed so miserably, it appeared that the advice of Fuchs to Fox—the latter had Americanized his name during the war—compared favorably with the famous dope handed out by Polonius to his son in times earlier.

Summed up, the paternal maxims of the defendant, as related by him Friday, were:

Be a man in body and mind.

Remember, the wife's place is in the home.

Don't tie yourself to any woman's apron strings.

Come home cheerful from the office and forget your business worries.

Never let your wife or any other woman interfere with your business.

Go to the gymnasium regularly; have a glass of beer now and then with your dad, and take him into your confidence.

NANSEN SAYS TROTZKY WANTS DISARMAMENT

Famous Explorer Publishes Impressions of Russian Soviet Leaders.

London, March 23.—In the first of a series of articles which he contributed to the Westminster Gazette, Dr. Fridtjof Nansen records the impression he received in conversations with Russian leaders at Moscow during February.

Dr. Nansen says that the question of most concern to the officials was Russia's reconstruction and the restoration of moral economic relations with other countries. The writer quotes Trotzky as reiterating Russia's desire for peace and as pointing out that she offered to cut her army to 200,000 men if other countries would make a similar reduction, but that the proposal was not accepted.

Notwithstanding the possibility of an invasion of Russia by Poland and Rumania, the Russian army, Trotzky said, had been reduced to 600,000 men which is less than half of the standing peace-time army during the czarist regime.

Dr. Nansen quotes Trotzky as asserting that Russia's aim is disarmament and the establishment of a militia similar to that of Switzerland.

"Complete disarmament," the soviet official said," cannot be contemplated until Europe unites in a federation of states, which offers the sole means of withstanding America's economic hegemony. If a general demobilization can be effected, Russia will propose an international disarmament commission."

Facts About the Diamond Market

Diamonds are the one article of commerce absolutely controlled by one group of interests.

The syndicate owning and controlling over 90 per cent of the world's output has for thirty years maintained a schedule of advancing prices on the "rough" or uncut diamonds.

In the war years prices varied slightly owing to the differences in exchange on the pounds and guilders.

This exchange appears to be on a firm basis and we find that the wholesale market is much higher than a year ago, with strong prospects for a further advance.

Prices in our catalogue and Diamond booklet, published last November, are still effective. Write for this booklet, and twenty-eighth annual catalogue.

PAN-AMERICAN PARLEY PRAISED BY HUGHES

Secretary Says Santiago Conference Comes at Opportune Time for Prosperity.

Washington, March 23.—In the opinion of Secretary Hughes, the Pan-American conference which convenes Sunday in Santiago, Chile, "comes at an opportune time and is full of promise for a better understanding and enhanced prosperity among all the peoples of this hemisphere."

Expressing this conviction in a statement made public today, the secretary of state declared the conference the most effective expression of pan-American co-operation, adding that it "proceeds upon the sound assumption that the republics of this hemisphere have common interests which they desire to promote by taking counsel together," and that "then most fundamental interest is that of peace."

The American delegation to the conference will be entirely trusted with the presentation of the Washington government's views as various subjects on the agenda are reached for discussion.

Musician Suicides After Taking Job As Elevator Girl

New York, March 23.—Despondent because of her failure to obtain a professional engagement, Ellen Sonnenthal, said to be a Viennese musician, leaped to her death today from a ninth floor window in the Hotel Astor where she had been employed several months as an elevator operator.

Miss Sonnenthal, said to be a daughter of an impresario of Vienna, came to the United States a year ago with her sister. Recently the sister married and moved to Seattle. In her furnished room last night Miss Sonnenthal, neighbors said, had played the piano for hours. On the music rest today police found a German composition, entitled "Must I Go Back?"

$300,000 OF NARCOTICS BURNED AT JUAREZ

El Paso, Texas, March 23.—Narcotics valued at more than $300,000 were burned today by Juarez authorities on orders of Governor Ignacio Enrique. The narcotics had been seized by police and the narcotic squad during the last twelve months.

Twenty-five opium smoking layouts were added to the pyre.

The bottled drugs bore labels of firms in Switzerland, Germany, Japan, France, Holland and the United States. The majority evidently had been smuggled to Juarez by way of Vera Cruz and Mexico City, officials said.

Macon, Ga., March 23.—(Special.) Potentate C. A. McAlister, of Al Sihah Temple of Macon, with a number of Macon Shriners, will go to Dublin next Tuesday night, it was announced today, for the purpose of organizing a Shrine club there.

The matter has been under consideration for several weeks and it is understood the club will start with a large membership.

SLAIN MODEL'S FRIEND TO BE DISCLOSED

"Dot" King were preparing for him. He swore to Pecora a few days ago that he never was blackmailed but the new evidence indicates that "Dot's" death was all that forestalled a magnificent shake-down of the white-haired man of affairs who broke the monotony of office routine by a second sowing of wild oats.

It now develops that an umbrella—a gentleman's umbrella—was left behind in "Dot's" apartment and clinging to the umbrella the police found a wisp of absorbent cotton such as the murderer used for a chloroform wad to clamp over "Dot" King's nose and mouth as she was forced back onto her bed.

Olcott said this wasn't "Mr. Marshall's" umbrella. But even so, he might be able to say whose it was, he having been a frequent caller at "Dot's" apartment. "Billie" Bradford, the discreet colored woman who received "Dot's" guests and avoided unpleasant meetings between various friends of the young woman, said it certainly was "Mr. Marshall's" gamp.

Before Reporters.

Inspector John Coughlin and Captain Arthur Carey, of the New York police department, will sit in with Pecora to question "Mr. Marshall" and it is not their intention to hold this examination in any out-of-the-way place. Thus it is expected that he will be subjected to the scrutiny of reporters who have met or encountered most of the important people on the Eastern Seaboard and to the flash-bombs of the photographers whose pictures will broadcast his face.

Three persons are said to have given information to the district attorney indicating that there was blackmail afoot. "Dot" is reported to have rebelled against this plan, having no desire to share the "sugar" with any others, but the police recognize her prerogative to have changed her mind. A man whom she liked more than "Marshall" and "ran with" when he was not in town has been mentioned as the author of the idea.

Mystery Clearing.

No explanation has yet been offered of one peculiar circumstance which is, however, beginning to explain itself without official vouching. This was a telephone call to the office of the chief medical examiner who is the coroner in New York, before the public knew of the murder. Frank Houghtalin, a private detective, is revealed as the man who made the call. He said he was asking on behalf of a client what the police thought of the "Dot" King case. His client is believed to have been the mysterious "Mr. Wilson," secretary and faithful outrider to "Mr. Marshall" who scouted the way whenever "the heavy sugar guy" went calling and otherwise smoothed matters for the evening studies of poetry. "Mr. Marshall" had phoned to "Dot's" apartment from his quarters in the Ritz-Carlton, only a short time before this and her mother had told him: "'Dot' is dead; for the love of God, come over." Only a scant few other persons knew at that time that "Dot" was dead.

The case has been the most revealing of Broadway life, extravagance, clandestine adventure and blackmail since the Elwell murder three years ago. But, better than the Elwell case, it apparently goes higher into society and lower into the underworld and shows the association of the two extremes in a kinship of stealth.

TECH FIGHTERS WIN FOUR MATCHES FROM PETRELS

Rawls, Jacket Scrapper Is Kayoed by Hamilton; Fred Moore Easy Winner

Bob Kilgore, Oglethorpe Entry, Hurt By Fall, But His Fight With Alexander Is Tossed Out by Officials.

The match in which Bob Kilgore, of Oglethorpe, was injured has been thrown out by the consent of the Tech and Oglethorpe boxing associations. The bout in which Kilgore was injured had not progressed long enough to warrant a decision, stated officials of the boxing tournament last night at Segadlo's hall.

BY BILL MORROW.

Petrel feathers were distributed around Segadlo's last night when the Tech mitt artists won over the Oglethorpe delegation by the count of four matches to one for the Petrels, one battle going to a draw. Bob Kilgore, the Oglethorpe entree in the lightheavy class, fell, hitting the back of his head on the floor, the blow causing him to lose consciousness. As this article went to press the extent of his injuries had been determined by the consulting physician, and it was stated that Kilgore was not seriously hurt.

Aside from the accident mentioned above, no other injury was reported save for the dislocating of the thumb on his right hand by Lawrence, another member of the Oglethorpe stable. Fred was having a lively time with Fred Moore. Tech bet in the welterweight division, when in striking a blow he injured his thumb in the first round. He refused to stop, however, and insisted that the battle go on. He held up until the third stanza when lack of training together with the hurt power on the right hand caused him to be the loser on a knockout, having failed to answer the bell at the beginning of this round. Moore had been the aggressor throughout and had matters well in hand when his opponent failed to report.

The sportmanship shown by both forces as well as by the spectators was of the highest type. Credit was given where credit was due and the victor as well as the vanquished shared in the applause of the fans present. All the matches were fought cleanly and amateur athletics were given quite a boost in this city by that exhibition. This match between Tech and Oglethorpe was announced as the first inter-collegiate match held in the south between strictly southern institutions and there is little doubt that other matches between college boxing teams will follow in the wake of the Tech-Oglethorpe affair.

Summary of Fight.

The Tech camp grabbed victories in the following weights, feather, welter (2) and light-heavy, while the Petrels won the bantam class distinction and shared in the even decision in the lightweight division.

In the first battle of the evening's entertainment Hamilton, of Oglethorpe, won by a knockout over Rawls. The little Petrel bantam had the advantage of height but this was equalized by Rawls' extra poundage. The battle was an interesting one to follow, Hamilton getting the first of the four rounds by a slight edge and then losing his slender lead when Rawls rallied toward the end of the second stanza. Hamilton increased his lead in the third and the Tech man was weakening noticeably at the end of this frame. In the final round some well directed blows with something behind them had the game Rawls groggy and Referee Mayson called off the fight and held up Hamilton's mitt in token of victory.

The second bout was between Kidd of Tech and Branscomb of Oglethorpe, featherweights. Kidd got the well deserved decision after running against some hard lefts and rights. The Oglethorpe man lost in the early rounds, during which his opponent piled up a comfortable lead. The first three rounds went to Kidd with the fourth being hard fought with honors even.

Four Round Draw.

Westall and Reynolds, of Tech and Oglethorpe respectively, mixed matters for four rounds to an even break. These two lightweights were evenly matched and the decision of a draw by the referee was well received by the fans present. The writer called the first two rounds draws and the third went to Westall by right of his drawing blood. Reynolds clinched the final frame and the right to an equal division.

In the fourth fight Fred Moore, of Tech, won over Fred Lawrence, Petrels' bet, by the knockout route. Moore appeared to be the stronger and the better conditioned of the two but Lawrence's cleverness kept him out of hot water for a time. At the beginning of the third Lawrence was unable to answer the bell.

Tech added another victory when Gibbs, welter, handed Blake a nice lacing. Gibbs accounted for two knockdowns during the four rounds but was unable to knock out his plucky opponent.

In the final encounter, Alexander and Bob Kilgore were busily engaged in mixing matters when the accident mentioned above took place. A battle royal broke the ice and an exhibition between two Tech wrestlers was also staged. "Jelly" Laird pinning his opponent's shoulder, a lighter man, Le Bey, after six minutes on the mat.

AUBURN WINS OVER MERCER

Auburn, Ala., March 23.—(Special.)—Sheridan was right. Auburn 4, Mercer 0 tells the story of a stubby five-inning diamond contest in which the Auburn Tigers and Mercer were the principals.

Heavy rains in the early afternoon left a rain-soaked diamond but despite this handicap the game proved to be an interesting affair and no errors were recorded during the afternoon's performance.

THOS. DUNHAM HEADS C. R. U.

C. Thomas Dunham, president of the Dunham Oil company, was elected president of the Civic Recreation union at the first meeting in 1923 of the organization that did so much last year for athletics in Atlanta. The meetig was held in the offices of Robert P. McLarty, the retiring president, and was attended by scores of people interested in amateur athletics.

Vice presidents named were Cator Woolford, Carlton Smith, for years tennis champion of the south and Robert P. McLarty. Frank Kopf was installed as secretary and Vaughan Crowley, cashier of the Citizens and Southern bank, was elected treasurer. An advisory board was appointed to act with officials in administering affairs.

Included on this board are: Dr. Thomas P. Hinman, Alfred C. Newell, Lee Ashcraft, Mayor Walter A. Sims, Ex-Mayor James L. Key, James L. Williams, Horace Russell, Mrs. B. M. Boykin, Mrs. Victor Kreigshaber, Mrs. T. T. Stevens, Mrs. John Spalding, Mrs. Frank McCormack, Miss Myra Graves and others.

Plans were drawn up looking to the promotion of various summer sports for the masses. Nothing was done toward the winter sports, the representatives deciding to put all their attention to the pastimes that would become popular as the weather became warmer. It was decided to push a very aggressive campaign for baseball, tennis, golf and water sports.

A committee was appointed to go into the question of whether or not an executive secretary should be named to devote all of his time to affairs of the Civic Recreation union. This committee will make its report at the next meeting. Appointment of the chairmen who will be in charge of the various branches will be made by President Dunham at some early date.

CECILIANS PRESENT "THE GYPSY TRAIL"

North Avenue Presbyterian School Students Please Big Audience.

One of the cleverest of the many plays that have been put on this year by Atlanta's amateur dramatic clubs was "The Gypsy Trail," presented at the Woman's club on Friday night by the Cecilians of the North avenue Presbyterian church.

This club, in only the third year of its existence, shows remarkable mastery of interpretation and does credit to its director, Miss Cecilia Cain, whose energy and skill has been its inspiration.

The Manodlin club opened the evening delightfully, putting the audience in the right humor for the singing of the old song, "The Gypsy Trail" which announced the rising of the curtain.

The Mandolin club is under the leadership of Miss Elizabeth Dent and Miss Helen Elisworth. The members follow: Misses Ethelyn Dorman, Mabel Ellsworth, Eleanor Greenfield, Julia Haskins, Lydia Lycett, Spenser McGaughey, Elizabeth Nicholes, Gladys Nea and Betty Taylor.

The cast follows:

Frank Raymond .....M. E. Gower
Miss Janet Raymond ..Carolyn Essig
John Raymond ..... D. M. Fluker
Stiles .....Ruthmary McGaughey
Frances Raymond..Clayton Callaway
Edward Andrews .... H. L. Howard
Michael Rudder (alias Jones)..
.....M. J. Hodnett
Mrs. Widdimore.. Margaret Cochran
Ellen ..... Jane Dillon

Stage manager, Ruthmary McGaughey; business manager, Margaret Hodnett; publicity manager, Clayton Callaway.

Members of the Cecilian club follow: Jane Small, president; Louisa Howard, vice president; Margaret Hodnett, secretary; Clara Belle King, treasurer; Myra Boynton, Clayton Callaway, Margaret Cochran, Jane Dillon, Carolyn Essig, Dorothy Fluker, Mildred Gower, Eleanor McGinty, Martha Ridley, Helen Wikle, Jane Williams. Honorary members: Miss Thyrza Askew, Ruthmary McGaughey.

Revival Services.

Oxford, Ga., March 23.—(Special.) Revival services are in progress at the Methodist church here. Rev. W. G. Crawley, presiding elder for the Oxford district, is in charge of the meeting, and is doing effective preaching.

TWO ARE KILLED IN PISTOL BATTLE

Chattanooga, March 23.—George Lane and Will Rollings are dead, Jim "Wash" Lane, father of George Lane, is in a hospital at Sewanee, with bullet wounds in his throat, leg and arms, while Charles Rollings, believed to be wounded, is in hiding in the woods as the aftermath of a pistol battle at Tracy City late yesterday afternoon.

According to information reaching here tonight the trouble is the outcome of a lawsuit over the possession of a house. Sometime ago John Barker, agent for a mining company operating at Tracy City, assigned a certain house, the property of the company, to Jim "Wash" Lane. Lane did not take immediate possession and Barker, becoming mixed in his accounts, reassigned the house to the Rollings brothers. When Lane started to take possession he found the Rollings brothers with their families in charge. He sued out a writ of unlawful detainer and the case was tried before Squire William Smith, at Tracy City, Thursday afternoon. Lane was awarded possession of the house. After leaving the court room Jim Lane, who was accompanied by his son, George Lane, met the Rollings brothers on the road about 300 yards from the scene of the trial. Someone started shooting. George Lane killed Will Rollings, and was immediately shot down by Charles Rollings. Jim Lane was shot by Charles Rollings and is believed to have wounded his adversary before he fell to the ground. Charles Rollings, the sole member of the quartet left standing at the end of the gunplay, was seen to stagger off the road up a hill and into the woods. No effort has as yet been made to locate him.

Tracy City, the scene of the tragedy is in Grundy county at the foot of Cumberland mountain. It is only reached by a branch line railroad which operates but one train daily which explains the fact that the story of the shooting did not reach the outer world until tonight.

ISAAC HERTZKA.

Isaac H. Hertzka, 39, of Nashville, Tenn., died Friday night in a local hospital. He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Katherine and Ruth Hertzka; his father, Jacob Hertzka, all of Nashville; three sisters, Mrs. Adolph Well, of Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. Sallie Clausner, of Seattle, Wash., and Mrs. Harry Barnett, of Philadelphia, Pa.; four brothers, Nathan, Mose and Emanuel Hertzka, all of Nashville, and Abe Hertzka, of Spokane, Wash. Greenberg & Bond in charge.

TYPISTS PLAY JACKET RATS

GAME CALLED OFF.

Just before the Tech High Smithies were leaving to board a train for Gainesville yesterday where they were to have played the Riverside Cadets Friday and Saturday, a telegram was received from Gainesville stating that the games could not be played. Therefore the Smithies spent the afternoon watching the rain bombard the city. It is doubtful if the Atlanta school will get another chance to clash with the Cadets, as Tech High's schedule for the rest of the campaign looks to be well filled.

Commercial High will play the Tech freshmen baseball team a practice game this afternoon at Grant field on the lower field while the varsity nine is playing the Fort McPherson nine.

Two weeks ago the Commercial High team played the Tech varsity a game which resulted in a victory of some 8 or 9 runs for Tech. Coach Holt has been sending his candidates through a much harder program since and expects to give the freshmen a real game this afternoon.

Amateur Teams Prep.

The regular summer baseball teams around the city in the various amateur leagues will be out this afternoon in large numbers getting ready for the spring season.

Early each spring practically every available basebad space is taken up with candidates from the various leagues, and in many cases practice is taken turn about, first one squad, and then some other squad.

Amateur baseball is making an earlier start this year than ever before and already two or three leagues have been completed. Other league plans are in the making.

The amateur season in Atlanta generally starts the first week in May, but many games are played before that time.

J. HUTCHISON LEADS FIELD

Asheville, N. C., March 23.—Jock Hutchison led a field of 24 playing here today in the 72-hole Asheville-Biltmore forest open golf championship tournament. Hutchison made 34-34—68, 34-34—68 for the morning and afternoon rounds, a total of 136. Play was in a driving rain and over a soggy course.

Walter Hagen came second with 134, his afternoon round being made in 33 out and in, total 66. Joe Kirkwood playing with badly strained shoulder muscles, took 142 strokes.

Other scores were: Bill Melhorn, 146; Frank Clark and Fred McLeod, 147; Jack Burgess, and John Farrell, 148.

CHAMPION LEADS.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 23.—Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, national champion and defender of the north and south women's golf titles, led a field of 136 contestants by a margin of one stroke in the qualifying round of the annual north-south tournament today. She won the gold medal with a round of 41-47—88.

FERNS FIGHTS FINLEY DRAW

Macon, Ga., March 24.—Fearless Ferns, of Macon, and Jimmy Finley, of Louisville, Ky., fought ten rounds to a draw, according to the judges' decision, tonight in the main bout of a boxing card at the city auditorium.

There were four knockdowns in the battle, two for each man. The visitor put up one of the best fights ever staged here and there were many in the house who thought he should have been given the decision.

Harry Allen, of Macon, won a judges' decision over Boots Antley, of Columbus, Ga., in their ten-round go.

"Young" Stribling refereed these two main bouts, but the decision was left to three judges.

PETRELS TO BATTLE VETS

BY BILL MORROW.

The Oglethorpe Petrels will face the hardest opposition encountered so far in their present training season this afternoon when they play a team composed of former Petrel stars. Every year the game between the old timers and the squad current at Oglethorpe is looked forward to by all parties concerned. For the past two seasons the old timers have gotten the better of the argument and won over their younger opponents. The game scheduled for this afternoon will start promptly at 3 o'clock and the public is invited to watch the Petrels in action before they start their collegiate season.

The Oglethorpe clan will open their '23 session in Macon, where they meet Yale on March 27 and the game this afternoon should go a long way toward getting the Petrels on edge for this fracas. Following the affair with the northerners, the Petrels will return to the campus and then take a jaunt to Buford for the Penn State game on March 31.

Formidable Aggregation.

The ex-Petrels are bringing a formidable aggregation to match their brand of ball with Coach Anderson's players, and unless the Petrels deliver the goods they will be on the smaller end of the score. Captain Jake Morris will no doubt start in the box for the Petrels and after a few innings will be relieved by Humphiries, Willis and Peace in order.

Ed David will start at first base; Partridge will hold the second sack; Maurer will play short, and Wall will complete the infield. The combination listed above appears, at this writing, to be the best that has worked together this sehson and will no doubt be Coach Anderson's pick for the Petrels' first venture.

The receiving staff is strong. With Bryant, Hammel and Porter on hand the Petrel director is assured of having catchers above the average. These boys have made noticeable improvement since last year and should be able to hold their own with more experienced opponents. The outfield will be Kemp, Parrish and either Wallace, Collier or Selman.

The former Petrel stars will present a notable line-up. Among them will be Johnny Knox, Walton brothers, "Bird" Hope, Davenport and other stars that have made Oglethorpe to be feared on the diamond.

Georgia Bulldogs Open Baseball Season Today

Fort Benning Infantrymen First to Face Athenians—Will Play Again Monday.

BY BROWN WHATLEY.

Athens, Ga., March 23.—(Special.) The University of Georgia baseball team left Athens t is afternoon for Columbus and Fort Benning, the latter being the opponents in a two-game series beginning Saturday in Columbus and the last to be played at the fort Monday. Those making the trip were Pantone, Sale, Chambers and Munday, pitchers; Power, Rosser, catchers; Thomason, Watson, Allen, Middlebrooks, Taylor and McRae, infielders; Ramsey, Captain Clark, Eldridge and Hodges, outfielders, and Coach Bill White and his right hand man, Manager Sidney Drew.

It is understood that Dr. and Mrs. S. V. Sanford who left the city on the same train with the team would also accompany the Bulldogs on their first trip which is to be taken during the Easter holidays. The professor had just completed his duties for the second semester and being in need of rest and being also an ardent baseball fan thought that this was just the tonic necessary to fortify himself physically against the "ravages" of spring fever.

The games with the strong Benning outfit will be the first for the Georgia team this season and since a doubleheader was divided between the soldiers and Auburn last Saturday it seems that Coach White's charges will be put to the acid test in their engagement in pitched battle.

To Use His Best.

At any rate Coach White has so much respect for the opposition that he expects to send one of his best pitchers to the mound for the opening innings at least. It will therefore necessarily be Sale or Chambers as Pantone is still suffering from an arm that has been troubling him since the early days of spring training. It is also highly probable that Bill Munday will be given an opportunity to baffle the slugging infantrymen with his southpaw delivery.

It is not yet known who Coach White will use at third base, probably both Taylor and Middlebrooks will see service during the series. The same situation prevails in right field with Hodges and "Pop" Ramsey both fighting hard and there is also the possibility of J. D. Thomason going back to his position in right field and Hamp McRae being used at first base.

The Georgia team will stop off in Macon Tuesday afternoon in order to see the Yale team in action against Oglethorpe, for two days next week, Friday and Saturday, have been set aside as "Bulldog Day." The Georgia Bulldogs and the Yale Bulldogs will grapple with each other on these days and Captain Clark Thomason and the others want to get a line on the strength of their respected and admired opponents.

Wilde Ready to Sail.

Cardiff, Wales, March 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—Jimmy Wilde, world's flyweight champion, who is in training near here, said today that he had provisionally arranged to sail for the United States. Meanwhile, he is awaiting definite word in regard to the efforts now under way to match him with Pancho Villa, Filipino flyweight and former American champion. The tentative date for the bout has been fixed at June 16.

TO SOON CUT LOCAL SQUAD

BY HENRY ALLEN.
Special Staff Correspondent.

Palatka, Fla., March 23.—The cut in the squad of the players in the Cracker training camp is expected momentarily. President Corbett arrived here today and following the game with the University of Florida went into conference with Manager Miller in regard to the qualifications of each player. According to the rumors, President Corbett got into communication with several minor league clubs tonight in regard to placing of a number of the players who will not be retained by the Crackers.

Twenty men will probably be carried on the exhibition tour and from all indications, it seems, that Freddie Graff, Eddie Moore, Johnnie Ring and Cappie Ricks will be the infielders to be retained until Glenn Killenger and the mysterious first and second basemen report to the club.

Joe Guyon, Mike Burke and Jim Moore will be the three outfielders while Class "AA" man will report later.

Chester Schmidt and Johnnie Brock will be the receivers to make the trip although it is probable that Schmidt will be farmed out to some smaller club after the season opens.

Bennie Karr, George Dumont, King Brady, Oscar Tuero, Manly Lewellyn are the right-handers to be retained, while Dick Nienhaus and Cliff Best will be the southpaws numbered in the list. The pitching squad will be cut to six twirlers later in the season.

"The Holdup Girl."
(At the Lyric.)

"The Hold-up Girl," an abridged musical comedy, at the Lyric during the latter part of this week has proved one of the best vaudeville attractions Atlanta has seen this season.

The skit is done by Jack Fulton and Peggy Burt and it introduces plenty of comedy and the kind of music that an audience whistles as it leaves the theater.

On the same bill are the splendid act of the Terrace Girls and three other fine attractions.

Morrissey's "Movie Stars."
(At Loew's Grand.)

Will Morrissey and his "Movie Stars" who have so thoroughly entertained patrons of Loew's Grand theater since Thursday, will close their Atlanta engagement with today and tonight's performances. There will be four complete performances today starting at 2:00, 4:00, 7:00 and 9:00 p. m., and the "Movie Stars" will make a personal appearance at all shows. In the party, besides Mr. Morrissey, actor, author, playwright and producer, are Marguerite Marsh, Billy West, the well-known screen comedian; Ethelyn Gibson, leading lady for Billy West, and Gabriel Renaldo, the screen idol of Spain, who has recently come to this country.

Other entertaining acts on the bill are Joe and Sandy Morrison, in "A Wee Bit of Scotch," and Jack Duncan in a rope spinning act.

The feature of the screen program is William Russell in "Man's Size."

Final Plans Completed For Jackets' Field Day

Varsity Elimination Events Will Precede the Schedule, to Be Open to All Students.

BY JOHN STATON.

Coach Alexander announced yesterday the final plans for the big field day to be held at Grant field on April 10. Contrary to the general custom, the field day will be divided into two component parts, separate and distinct from one another.

The first half of the afternoon will be devoted to the varsity trials. This will be an indication meet, or preliminary cutting exhibition, to ascertain which men are worthy of further attention on the track squad.

In this part of the meet only varsity track men will be allowed to compete. The definition of what constitutes a varsity man is somewhat hazy, but it is supposed to represent those men who have either made letters or numerals in track. It does not necessarily apply to those who are at present held over on the varsity squad, but who have not made either letter or numeral.

The latter half of the afternoon will be devoted to a free-for-all meet. In this meet varsity men are not allowed to enter. But the field is open to all others who wish to try out.

Soldiers Interested.

By having two separate meets it will be possible to get a greater number of men interested, and thus make the day more successful. Now that the varsity men have been ruled out of the open-to-all affair, many more fellows will try to show some stuff.

The military department has gone into the matter with a vim and is urging every man taking military training to enter at least one event. Bulletins have been sent to all military sections and company relay teams and so forth are being organized.

The scoring of the field day winners will be more comprehensive than heretofore attempted on that day. Score will be kept for the various classes, the various military companies, for the fraternities and for the campus clubs. It will be patterned after the cross-country method of scoring which has proved so successful.

Coach Alexander announced also that suitable awards would be given to the men placing first, second and third in the events.

This has never been attempted before on field day and should prove quite a feature. As yet the awards have not been definitely decided upon. It may be that gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded but the probability is that more useful prizes will be given. Such as a meal ticket, or a pressing club ticket, a tie, a pair of socks or numerous other very useful articles.

The whole proposition sums up to this: Every effort will be put forth to make field day a red letter day in the history of Tech. Every man will be called upon to enter at least one event. In other words, Coach Alexander is trying to make field day an event representative of the whole school and not a small fraction.

BENNIE KARR NEVER FINED

BY HENRY ALLEN.
(Special Staff Correspondent.)

Palatka, Fla., March 23.—(Special.)—During the nine years that Bennie Karr, the right-hand flinger secured from the Boston Red Sox, has been playing professional baseball he has never been ejected from a game or fined by an umpire.

Once Bennie came near having to pay a $10 fine for giving the umps the razz, but it was a case of mistaken identity.

It seems that the umpire was "off" that day, according to Bennie's notion, and he didn't mind telling him about it. Bradley Hogg was on the bench next to Bennie, and when the umps decided to put a stop to razzing, he walked over and fined Bradley. So Bennie's record remained clean.

Well Known Here.

Bennie is well known in the Southern association, having played with Memphis, Chattanooga and Little Rock at various times.

He started off with Memphis in 1914. The big league scouts got busy right away and Bennie took a trip to Detroit. He finished the season with San Francisco, in the Coast league.

In '16 he came back to the Southern and was with Chattanooga for a while but later went to Dallas. In '17 he played with Galveston and joined the army when the call to arms was sounded. He was sent to Camp Pike. After the armistice Little Rock secured an option on his services and he had a great year.

The Sox then heard of Bennie and paid the Travelers a nice sum for him. He remained around Boston until Jack Corbett managed to get hold of him.

Won Double-Header.

One of the outstanding features of Bennie's record is a double-header he won from Chattanooga when he was with Little Rock in 1919. He pitched 21 innings and won the first game 3 to 0 and the second, which lasted 12 innings, 3 to 2.

Last year when the season opened, Bennie was working for the Sox and defeated the Athletics 6 to 2. He gave up 5 hits and, according to the box score, he was up four times and crashed out 3 safeties himself, which proves that Bennie is a hitter in addition to being a good hurler. He was used as pinch hitter by the Boston club last year and participated in 62 games.

Bennie is expected to be the mainstay of the staff of slab artists that Miller and Corbett have rounded up. He is a right-hander but hits left-handed. He is 28 years old, married and calls Memphis his home. Bennie spends the winter among the cows and chickens on his farm several miles out from Memphis. Bennie is one of the most popular men in camp.

SEMAN AFTER B'HAM 'PUG'

Birmingham, Ala., March 23.—(Special.)—In boxing, as in baseball, they seem to have inaugurated the practice of selling the services of fighters to the highest bidder. This fact is rarely known outside the "inside circles" of the game, but a story in the Passaic (N. J.) Herald the first of the week was read in Birmingham with considerable interest.

The Passaic Herald sport scribe quoted Manny Seman, prominent Jersey, manager, promoter and trainer of fighters, as saying he had made two offers to Tommy Tompkins and company for Claude Wilson's contract. The "company" part is Claude himself, of course.

The article quoting Seman stated that Manny had offered Tommy Tompkins $15,000 for Wilson's contract, and added $15,000 more for Claude to sign. The offers were backed up by 90-day notes, fully endorsed and receivable, the article said.

Why He Declined.

When Tompkins was questioned about these offers, and his reasons for turning them down—and he did turn them down in short order—he smiled and said:

"Well, you see, if I had agreed, I would have had to turn Wilson over to Seman. Claude's new manager would have had three months to try his experiment out. If Claude fell down, when my $15,000 note fell due, the chances are 10 to 1 that they would have been worthless, as Seman would have sent Claude back to me.

"If the offer had been for cash, I would have considered it, but let me tell you, I think Wilson is a regular gold mine in boxing, and I am not going to turn his contract aloose for six bits and a car ticket.'"

Manny Seman manages Lew Hurley and several boys prominent in the eastern ring. He trains Benny Leonard for his championship bouts, also, although Billy Gibson is Leonard's financial manager.

BEJAMIN BLOCK BUYS ANOTHER DERBY HORSE

Louisville, Ky., March 23.—Benjamin Block, of New York, whose horse, Morvich, won the Kentucky derby last year, is planning to capture the big race this year with Aspiration, which was bought for his account by "Jack" Baker at the disposal sale of thoroughbreds of the estate of H. H. Hewitt, held at Tattersalls, at Lexington, Ky., last night. The purchase price was $27,000.

At Latonia last fall Aspiration ran the fastest mile of any of last year's 2-year-olds, clicking it off in 1:38 3-5. He is by a former derby winner, George Smith, and from Inspiration, the mother of Startle, last year's Kentucky Oaks winner.

COULON PILOT IS A VETERAN

Eddie Coulon, the New Orleans bantamweight and holder of the southern bantamweight championship, who meets Tim O'Dowd in the main bout of ten rounds at the auditorium, April 3, is under the management of John Cox, formerly connected with Tex Rickard, and Leo P. Flynn as assistant matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, New York city.

Cox has the largest stable of boxers in the south. He handles Al Pettingill, the New Orleans flyweight who beat Claude Wilson. Pettingill is undefeated so far and has been picked by Pete Herman to win the flyweight title from Frankie Genaro.

Kid Koster, one of the best featherweights in the country, is Cox's hope for the featherweight title. He also handles George Kuhn and Happy Howard, both corking middleweights.

Is Widely-Known.

The New Orleans manager is one of the most widely-known handlers in America. He was a partner of Eddie Mead, when Joe Lynch won the bantamweight title from Pete Herman at Madison Square Garden in 1920.

The New York combination at that time was Mead, Cox and Monteith. They handled Lynch until he lost the title back to Herman. Mead then assumed full management of Joe. Monteith is now one of the assistant matchmakers at Madison Square Garden.

Cox says that Coulon will prove a revelation to the Atlanta fans in the O'Dowd fight. He figures that Eddie will show so much class that the promoters of the 108th cavalry will induce Joe Lynch to meet Coulon here after he disposes of O'Dowd.

JACKET NINE PLAYS TODAY

If the lowering shadows of rain and bad weather can be held off long enough, there will be two games on Grant field this afternoon. The first will be between Kid Clay's Yellow Jackets and the nine from Fort McPherson. With the Pennsylvania and Penn State games near at hand, Coach Clay hunted the town for suitable opposition. He found it at the Fort, and the game was arranged.

The Fort has a team worthy to compete with any and will afford just the kind of practice the Tech men need before going into a hard schedule.

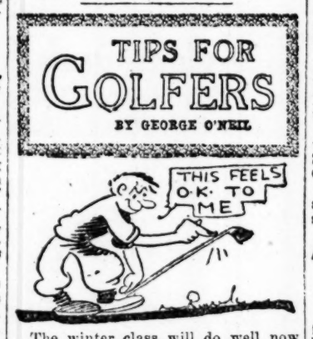
Coach Clay has not given out his battery for the games and most of the pitchers will probably see service before the game is over. However, it would seem that he will start Hines or Tanner on the slab, and Palmisino receiving.

Collins' Loss.

The loss of Wenie Collins is regretable in the extreme. His absence will leave a gap in the ranks which will be hard to fill. The race now for that berth has narrowed to Tanner, Snead and Enoe. Snead and Enloe are right-handers, Tanner, a portsider. It is very probable that Coach Clay will make no definite decision, but wil work all of these men as much as possible. In as much as all three men will be back next year, it is very likely that they will spend most of the season gathering experience for the campaign next season.

The second game today will be between the faculty and military department. The military department stole a march over the faculty day before yesterday and had a secret workout on the field. As a result, about seven of the military department did not show up for duty yesterday morning. But that little practice will give them the experience, and they say that they are confident of victory this afternoon.

The Tech-Fort game begins at 4 o'clock.



The winter class will do well now to go back to the beginning of the drive stroke and take up the task of introducing "touch" and "feel" into the stroke.

Heretofore our efforts with the club have been wholly to the point of getting the club up, down and through the ball with a degre of rhythm, more or less—the more you have accomplished in the way of rhythm the better off you are, of course. One of the important factors in the effort to acquire a rhythmic stroke is a sense of "touch" or "feel," so now I shall try to show you how to develop that.

There is a point in the "feel" of the club in your hands at which you may be satisfied that your grasp of it is right. You strive for this particular point while you waggle the club preparatory to the stroke. As you waggle the club back and forth, try to get a "feel" of it that reminds you of the "feel" of a stone on the end of a string and pulling at your finger muscles. When you have that "feel" of the golf club in your fingers you are right on your sense of "touch" and you will have started on your way into a "touch" game of golf. When you make that start your progress will be wonderful. The two-V grip is the best start.

PIRATES AND RED SOX ARE PUSHING PLAYERS

Hot Springs, Ark., March 23.—Training of the two big league baseball squads here is being pushed with vigor and both Manager Chance, of the Boston Red Sox, and Bill McKetchnie, chief of the Pittsburg Pirates, gave earnest attention to the efforts of their athletes when they turned out in uniform early today.

Reb Russell lived up to his fence-busting reputation in the first Pittsburg practice game of the season yesterday, when he whaled the first ball served him out of the lot. Maranville was on the paths and their two scores beat the second string line-up which was unable to push over a single counter.

Indoor Season Ends.

New York, March 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—The indoor track and field season in the east has come to a close with eighteen new world records on the books, while numerous others have been equaled. Joie Ray established six new world's marks and aided in the breaking of a seventh.

A model electrical farm to encourage the use of electricity in agriculture is being established near Stockholm, Sweden.

Glancing hastily over the list of umpiratical gentlemen who have been employed by President John D. Martin to spin and toil in the Southern league during the approaching campaign, this column is able to find few names that will bring joy to Dr. W. A. Auten, who regards umpiring in general as a profession that warrants life imprisonment for all offenders and lynching for a number of them.

"Doc" takes his baseball seriously and a day spent near him at a ball game convinces one that there never was an umpire who could see as far as the end of his nose without resorting to spectacles. As the perpetrator of this column, under the "unwritten law" of the press coop at Ponce de Leon, has sat next to "Doc" for three baseball seasons it is easy to see why my own feelings toward umpires rather coincide with "Doc's."

*** *** *** ***

Martin's Staff is Named

Naturally, as the time draws nigh for the boys to come back to their newspaper shops and tell a breathless public that "the crack of the old bat, etc.," was heard for the first time on such and such a day, our thoughts are directed toward the gentlemen who cause us to wilt collars and who drive "Doc" Auten daily to the verge of death or insanity. We don't know which, both, very probably.

Anyway, John Martin recently gave out for publication his list of umpires. We'd like to congratulate the man who annually guides the Southern league through prosperous campaigns. In fact, we would do so, were we not certain that the congratulatory message would fall into "Doc" Auten's hands, and the latter might be tempted to commit murder, mayhem and other crimes if he discovered that we had quit singing bass to his high tenor in the hymn of hate directed at all umpires.

*** *** *** ***

A Pretty Good Staff

It looks like a pretty good staff. It is practically the same that was thrust upon the customers last season and the umpires delivered the goods that time. We saw some funny decisions rendered, but the average was fair to middling and even "Doc" was forced to admit it before the campaign drew to a close. But "Doc" won't admit that the umpiring was half what it should have been. So, sir, "Doc" might agree that a black cat reminds him of a white cow, but he won't fall in line with a statement that any umpiring is perfect. Not "Doc" Auten.

Bill Brennan is among the starters. He will be among those to finish, for Bill is one of the best in the business. While he has been given a fling or two in the big show, Brennan's place is in the Southern. Players of the league know him through and through. They know just precisely how far they can go and you can't pull them over the dead line. The result is that Brennan gets off his performances with few pastimers being sent out to cool off.

Since his latest return to the Southern, coming down from the National league, Bill has been umpire-in-chief and he will probably hold this same position this season. We believe "Doc" likes Bill, at least, we believe that "Doc" would recommend only 10 years for the large William, if called upon to render a verdict.

*** *** *** ***

Williams is Given a Place

Hadley Williams gets his old job back. "Bulldog" is a familiar figure to Southern league fandom. It was thought for a while that Hadley had found a job in higher classification, but Martin's announcement set at rest such rumors. Old Dan Pfenninger, the dean of them all, so far as term of Dixie service is concerned, will also be back.

Customers of the Atlanta franchise will be pleased to know that Harry "Steamboat" Johnson will be among those present in April. "Steamboat" is as popular as wood alcohol in some communities, but there are some fans that will go to bat for this fine old veteran of the black suit, cap and mask. Atlanta may be classed with the latter, for Harry has always been well liked in this city.

Bill Guthrie, who started with the organization last season, but drew a transfer to the National, has been turned back and was given a job right away. He will take the place of Cy Pfirman, another Atlanta favorite, who did not put in his application, it is understood. Tex Irvin and Louis Jorda complete the list of old-timers and Bill McGowan is being brought in to succeed George Tandy, the old North Carolina state football star.

SGT. MURPHY RACE WINNER

Liverpool, March 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—Sergeant Murphy, by General Symons, out of Rose Graft, owned by Stephen Sanford, of New York, won the Grand National steeplechase handicap valued at approximately $10,000, run over a course of about 4 1-2 miles at Aintree today.

Sir Malcolm McAlpine's Shaun Spadah was second and Major Dewhurst's Conjuror II. was third. Twenty-eight horses ran.

Sergeant Murphy captured this blue ribbon event of the English chasing season by three lengths after a fine race. Six lengths separated Shaun Spadah and Conjuror II.

Only four other horses finished and the other three American entries, J. E. Widener's Duettist, Foxhall Keene's Masterful and A. S. Cochran's Libretto, were not among them.

The odds against Sergeant Murphy were 100 to 6. The betting on Shaun Spadah was 20 to 1 against and on Conjuror II. 100 to 6 against.

Sergeant Murphy, today's winner, is an English-bred horse 13 years old—a gelding foaled in 1910.

BON HOMME TO CARRY WEIGHT AT TIA JUANA

San Diego, Cal., March 23.—Weights for the $30,000 Coffroth handicap to be run Sunday at the Tia Juana track, to which have been drawn some of the best horses in America, were announced last night. Many horsemen expected that top-weight would be assigned to Feylance from the stable of Commander J. K. L. Ross, but he will get in with 122 pounds, while the greatest impost, 126 pounds, is given to Bon Homme, from the Meadowbrook stable.

The medium weight of 90 pounds is shared by several entries. Blanc Seing, Tia Juana derby winner, will carry 110 pounds. The association officers say that at least fifteen horses will go to the post if the weather continues good and that probably eighteen will start.

Mrs. Mallory Loses.

Cannes, France, March 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—Mrs. Beamish, British star, defeated Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, American lawn tennis woman champion, in the semi-finals of the women's singles in the Cannes tournament today by a score of 6-2, 9-7. Mrs. Beamish will meet Miss Elizabeth Ryan in the finals.

Mike Versus Georges.

Dublin, March 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—Mike McTigue told the correspondent last night that he had accepted an offer to fight Georges Carpentier, but that it had not been decided whether the match would be staged in the United States or in Ireland.

BENDER TO HAVE CHARGE OF CAMP

Knoxville, Tenn., March 23.—(Special.)—Prof. John R. Bender has been engaged as special councilor at "the French Broad" summer camp for boys located at Brevard, N. C., in the heart of the big Smoky mountains.

Many Knoxville boys have attended this camp in the past and pronounce it one of the best in the country. The camp is under the direct ownership of Henry E. Raines, president of the Citadel, Charleston, S. C., who owns the property on which the camp is located.

The camp has been in existence for ten years and has many buildings, a rifle range, many tennis courts, two baseball diamonds, a quarter-mile track and a warm spring clear water private lake equipped with many diving boards.

Mr. Bender has been given the entire state of Tennessee and already has many applicants for this old camp.

The camp runs from July 3 to August 27, two months.

"Blues" Break Camp.

Lake Charles, La., March 23.—The Kansas City Blues of the American association, in training here, will break camp tomorrow and leave for home, playing a number of exhibition games en route. The itinerary calls for games at Beaumont, Houston, Galveston, Texas, and Joplin, Mo.

WESTERN AND WESLEY PLAY

MUST ENTER TODAY.

Today is the final day for entering the city amateur basketball championship tournament promoted by Central Y. M. C. A. The final bell rings at 6 o'clock, and no entries will be recmeived after that hour. Any team in the city that can subscribe to the rigid amateur rule as provided in all Y. M. C. A. activities may enter the tournament. First games will be played on Friday and the finals on Saturday night. For information call I. C. Matheny, physical dirrctor, Ivy 0861.

Six big games are on the schedule for the Sunday School league tonight at Central Y. M. C. A., the first beginning at 6:30 o'clock and the final being called at 9:30—an evening's pleasure for the most ardent fan in the city.

The first games will bring together several Dixie eague teams, followed by the two feature games of the evening, betwn th Wsly A. C. and Western Heights Baptists.

These two teams when they meet can always be expected to put up a fine article of ball. The next game will be equally as fast with the First Christian and Central Baptist coming together for a round, which will no doubt decide the championship of their league.

Schedule tonight:

T. N. T. Class Tabernacle vs. First Baptist, 6:30; referee, Matheny.

St. Paul Methodist vs. Stewart Avenue Methodist, 7:50; referee, Matheny.

Western Heights Baptist vs. Wesley A. C., 7:50; referee, Mundorf.

Central Baptist vs. First Christian, 8:10; refree, Muldorf.

Westminster Presbyterian vs. Trinity Methodist, 9:10; referee, Parker.

Jackson Hill Baptist vs. Druid Hills Baptist, 9:50; referee, Parker.

3 KNOXVILLE PLAYERS OUT

Knoxville, Tenn., March 23.—(Special.)—Fourteen players have returned and signed 1923 contracts with Knoxville. One shortstop, one third baseman, three fly chasers, one initial bagger and eight boxmen, with eleven contracts out to dependable men, recommended by scouts. And there are three holdouts.

Dewey Ford, infielder and outfielder; Hoyt Williams, pitcher, and Schmalz, pitcher, are causing the Pioneer management no worry. He states that by a new ruling of the baseball federation holdouts must report on the day ordered or else each day's salary while absent from the camp will be deducted and the players will pay their own transportation.

Manager Moffett is after big, tall pitchers this year, and has some full growth timber in the above crew.

Blair, Freehour and Stoner are southpaws, while the other pitchers are right siders.

Freehour was recommended highly by Campbell, of the Newport Plain Talk. Frank Bosch, who played with Milwaukee, but lacked the experience needed for Class AA company, was recommended by Billy Doyle, Detroit Tiger scout.

Barney Dreyfus, president of the Pittsburg Buccaneers, put Manager Moffett wise to the possibilities of Steiner. Ray Ryan, of the Cleveland Indians, is the scout who located Harnett.

Johnny Bates comes highly recommended by Billy Doyle, and also by his father, famius old ball player of the American league.

Official notification that Morristown has raised the fixed sum has been received by League President Grover C. Davis. The schedule committee will commence working at once and a new league meteing will not be necessary for some time.

Genaro Is Matched.

New York, March 23.—Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion, has been matched to meet Bud Taylor, of Chicago, at Chicago April 4 in a ten-round no decision bout. The title will not be involved, as the contract calls for 116 pounds ringside.

Pitchers Released.

Orlando, Fla., March 23.—The management of the Cincinnati Reds today let go the first men of the spring training period when Alan Clarke and Jim Hargrave, young pitchers, were given their unconditional release. They started on their homeward journey tonight.

Bange's Home Run in Eighth Provides Margin Collegians Need to Win by Score of 4-3

Crackers Toss Away Three-Run Lead When Recruit Newberry Is Shoved In to Relieve Veteran Brady.

BY HENRY ALLEN.
Special Staff Correspondent.

Palatka, Fla., March 23.—(Special.)—With President Corbett seated in the stands the Crackers dropped the first exhibition game of the season here this afternoon to the University of Florida by a 4 to 3 count. King Brady, a right-hander, and Fred Newberry, a young southpaw, did the twirling for the Crackers. Brady allowed but one safety during the time he performed, while the collegians took Newberry to ride for four hits which resulted in three runs.

The game got off to a good start. Bange, Richbourge and Bentley being easy outs for the Crackers. The Crackers threatened in the first when Pratt got on by looking four over and went to second on a wild pitch by Newton, the Florida pitcher. Graff, Guyon and Burke grounded out and retired the side.

The third frame found Brady improving in his twirling when he sat down two of the Florida batsmen on strike outs. Ward grounded out for the third out. In this period it seemed as if the Crackers were getting right, when Brady, the first man, up singled. Pratt then flied out and Brady was forced to second. Graff hit over third, and later stole second. Guyon and Mike Burke walked and Jim Moore had his chance to step into the hall of fame, but with the bases drunk he fizzled and grounded out. In the fourth the 'Gators got their only hit off Brady when Gilmartin doubled to center after Richbourg and Beasley had flied out.

Crackers Score One.

The Crackers then scored the first run of the game. Eddie Moore, the leadoff man, was hit by the pitcher but was caught sleeping at first. Ricks walked and Schmidt grounded out. On the next play Ricks raced home when Brady singled to left. Brady was caught at second trying to stretch it into a double.

The Collegians were easy outs in the next inning, but the Crackers added two more tallies to their score when Pratt walked, Graff singled and Joe Guyon then doubled, scoring both Pratt and Graff. Joe was out at third trying to stretch it into a three-bagger. Burke and Moore then went out.

In the sixth the Collegians got busy and evened up things. Newton, the pitcher, hit one of Newberry's high ones over the right field fence. Bange and Richbourg walked. Beasley doubled, scoring Bange and Richbourg. The remainder of the side retired easy. Neither side managed to score again until the eighth when Bange lifted one high over the left field fence for the second homer of the day.

Newberry's Boner.

Lefty Newberry pulled a nice one when he singled to left and was going for the keystone sack for all he was worth. Within a few feet of the bag he realized that Luther Pratt had possession of it for the time being. As luck would have it the first baseman was no where around and Newberry got back safely.

The Crackers garnered six hits to the Collegians five, and were credited with two errors to three for the Collegians.

President Corbett refused to comment on the game except to make the statement that during his entire baseball career he had never been associated with a ball club that won the first exhibition game of the season. He and Manager Miller will hold a conference sometime during his stay at the training camp and decide on the men that are to be released.

The Crackers will meet the Florida team here again tomorrow. Oscar Tuero, veteran Atlanta pitcher, will start for the Crackers, but will be relieved by Cliff Best, a young southpaw, who played in the International league last season.

A game for next Thursday has been arranged with the Daytona club in the Florida state at Daytona. Fifteen men will probably make the trip.

160 COMPETE AT 'Y' TODAY

The second day of the elimination contests staged by Central Y. M. C. A. for the grade schools in athletics will begin today at 12:30 o'clock in the large gym at Central. The contests last week created quite a bit of interest, and the two winning grades will compete for the school championship later on.

The schools scheduled for today are as follows: George Adair, sixth and seventh grades; Calhoun, sixth and seventh grades; Crew Street, sixth and seventh grades; Davis, sixth and seventh grades; State Street, sixth and seventh grades; Formwalt, sixth and seventh grades; Forest Avenue, sixth and seventh grades; Edgewood, sixth and seventh grades.

Ten boys have been selected from each grade to represent their school and will compete in the seventy-five yard dash, running high jump, standing broad jump, and chinning.

The list for today totals 160 boys and some warm competition is expected, as all are anxious to qualify for the finals, when they will have an opportunity to compete for the grade school championship of the city.

The first event is called promptly at 12:30.

GAME IS POSTPONED; DOUBLE-HEADER TODAY

Rain prevented the first game of a two-game series between Morehouse college and Tuskegee institute Friday afternoon.

A double-header will be played this afternoon. Game called at 1:30 o'clock.

Special Award
To Be Awarded March 24
This Buick Four, Valued at $1,020, Is on Display at John Smith Co., 196 West Peachtree, and by D. C. Black, Whitehall St. and Stewart Ave.

This beautiful Buick Four Automobile will be awarded TONIGHT. This will be a most important day for many of you members, for it is not only the last day of the Special Award period, but also the last day of the Extra Votes Period. The work you do today will be work that will earn more reward for you than any time until the close of the campaign, for after tonight there will be absolutely no extra votes given, no matter how many subscription dollars you may turn in, and there will be no special award of any kind during the remainder of the campaign.

Will you be the winner of the Buick Four tonight? Are you sure of yourself? Do you know that while you may be the actual winner this morning, it is possible that some other member's work TODAY can snatch it from you by tonight? If you feel that your place is secure this morning, enjoy that same feeling of confidence after 9 o'clock tonight by putting in the best, most productive day's work you have done during the entire campaign. Go after every prospect you can think of, and don't let a single Second Payment possibility escape your solicitation. You have not remained in this Club all this time and worked like you have for pure love of working. You have had an object in view, and that object is one of the fine automobiles to be given as awards by The Constitution on March 31st. If you win the Special Award, there is no reason why you cannot win, in addition, one of the big regular automobile awards shown below.

Vote Value of Subscription Payments

Below is shown the subscription rate and the regular number of votes given, according to the amount paid. ALL OLD and NEW subscribers making any payment of three months or more on subscription are entitled to votes.

An old subscriber is given the same number of votes as a new subscriber.

S. P. M. Frat of Tech High Gives Dance at Brookhaven

A social event of Friday evening assembling several hundred members of the college set was the dance at Brookhaven, the country club of the Capital City club, given by the members of the Sigma Phi Mu fraternity of Tech High school.

Quantities of spring flowers and foliage plants decorated the ballroom.

Domestic Art Class at Seminary

The fancy of the above group of young girls, who are members of the Domestic Arts class of the Washington seminary, has turned to hats at the approach of spring. Instead of paying extravagant prices they made paper models, then fitted the buckram frames. The above finished productions are proof of their skill and good taste. The top group, left to right: Miss Mary Ford Little, Aneilda Cleveland, Miss Louise Lewis, Miss Christine Lewis; bottom row, left to right, Henmenia Weil, Miss Nannetta Sharp and Miss Louise Allen. The lowest cost of these hats was $2.50, while the highest was $9.

Many Visitors At Woman's Club.

The Atlanta Woman's club on Peachtree street was the scene of many enjoyable gatherings on Friday afternoon when members and their friends assembled for the usual weekly teas.

The rooms were beautifully decorated by clusters of pink and blue hyacinths.

Mr. and Mrs. Tilden J. Connors, of Marietta, Ga., have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Nannie Lindley Connors and Malcolm Whitlock, of Marietta, which will be a large and important social event in Marietta, April 18, in the First Methodist church. Following the church ceremony a brilliant reception will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Connors on Whitlock avenue.

Good Health

"My present health is very good," writes Mrs. E. H. Weidel, of Dayton, Texas, whose picture is printed above.

"I have been taking CARDUI for two years, off and on. When I feel tired out, after a day's work, and weak and run-down, I always get Cardui, and in a few days I feel well as ever again. I have never found anything as good for womanly troubles as Cardui. . .

"I had an easy time and believe I owe it to Cardui, for I took it before my first baby was born and had an easy time, and took it before this one, also. I will always keep a bottle of Cardui in my medicine chest."

Female ailments cause many women much suffering. When neglected, they often lead to more serious troubles, such as nervousness, general debility, premature old age and similar results of worn-out health.

Never neglect your health, for you will surely regret it. Do not put off necessary treatment because of the slight expense involved in buying a bottle of Cardui. It is wise to be thrifty in many ways, but not in medicine—when you need it. Good health is priceless and cannot be bought, once it is gone.

If your symptoms indicate the need of a female tonic—take Cardui. It has helped thousands.

When buying, please look at the label. Don't buy any medicine that may be offered. Get CARDUI, the Woman's Tonic. One of its principal ingredients has been recommended by the medical profession, for female trouble, for over 300 years. Its success in relieving these complaints, in many thousands of cases, is proof of its genuine medicinal value.

CARDUI for Women's Ills G. L. 3.

Children Attending Howard Matinee To Receive Gifts

Miniature airplanes filled with candy will be the parting gift from DeSales Harrison to each child who attends the boys' and girls' matinee at the Howard theater Saturday morning. This pleasing souvenir will serve to emphasize the friendly relationship established by Mr. Harrison with the large clientele of little folks who regularly attend the Saturday morning performance and will be a welcome addition to the highly satisfactory program arranged by Mrs. Porter Langston, chairman of selected programs.

The prologue will be a soldier dance by a group of students from Girls' High school, arranged by Miss Myra Graves.

"Across the Continent," a Paramount picture starring Wallace Reid, will be the feature story. This worth-while picture was made in the days when "Wally" was a prime favorite with all movie fans and every child will be pleased with the thrills and the snap with which the action of the story is speeded up.

From the Non-theatrical Film company will come a comedy featuring trained dogs, "The Dog Catcher," and the instructional films from Bromberg will be "Wilderness Friends," showing remarkable wild animals.

At the Alpha Theater.

At the Alpha theater, besides the ninth episode of "Around the World in 18 Days," in which William Desmond is featured, there will be a first-run two-reel drama of the "Timberland," with Roy Stewart as star called "One of Three" and a two-reel Century comedy, "Boyhood Days."

Mrs. W. P. Lemmon will be assisted in chaperoning at the Howard by Mrs. Kenny Mayson and Mrs. C. L. Holsenbach and Mrs. R. C. Bostwick will assist Mrs. G. H. Guy in chaperoning the Alpha.

Mrs. Oldknow Is Hostess.

An interesting event of Friday afternoon was the bridge party at which Mrs. William Oldknow entertained at her home in Druid Hills, complimentary to her attractive guest, Mrs. C. G. Anderson.

A profusion of jonquils, snapdragons, sweet peas and other cut flowers decorated the spacious rooms of the lovely home.

The prizes were dainty French novelties.

Mrs. William Oldknow, who was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Oscar Oldknow, was handsomely gowned in a striking costume off flame-colored lace combined with chiffon.

Mrs. Oscar Oldknow wore a becoming gown of blue crepe.

Mrs. Anderson wore anzin green crepe, elaborately embroidered in gold beads.

The guests numbered twenty-two friends of the honor guest.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Everything Ruined.

Never put bananas in the refrigerator. They will not only flavor every uncovered eatable but will turn black themselves.

Cane-Seated Chairs.

If the cane in the seat of the chair becomes sagged, it will tighten it a great deal if washed in hot, soapy water, rinsed in clear water and dried in the fresh air.

A Sanitary Container.

One housewife uses wire waste-paper baskets for vegetable containers. They allow air to circulate about the contents, thereby preserving them better, and making them less apt to attract insects.

Lettuce.

Lettuce will keep crisp and fresh for several days and always be ready when needed, if washed thoroughly in cold water and placed in a paper bag with the top tightly folded. Keep in a cold place.

Develops Nervousness.

The mother is very foolish who waits until the very last minute to get up, and gets her children off to school in a grand rush. It starts the day off in a tension for the child and concentrating and sitting still in school come very hard after the turmoil.

Easter will fall on April 1 every eleven years for three consecutive times, 1934, 1945 and 1956.

Daily Calendar of Women's Meeting

Circle No. 7 of the Woman's auxiliary of the Central Presbyterian church, will meet with Mrs. T. A. Clayton, 234 South avenue, Saturday, March 24, at 3 o'clock.

A meeting of Jenifer Review, No. 7, Woman's Benefit association, will hold a meeting this evening, Ben-Hur hall.

Wedding Party Is Entertained At Ingleside

A brilliant social event of Friday evening was the dinner at Ingleside Country club at which Miss Lala Hirsch and Captain Eugene Oberdorfer, whose wedding will be a brilliant social event of Tuesday evening, and their wedding attendants were entertained. The large round table at which covers were laid for 35, had in the center a huge white rose from which radiated white satin ribbons, reaching to each place where they were confined with charming place-cards, hand-painted with miniature brides and grooms. In the petals of the rose were placed wedding favors.

Dinner was served at 10 o'clock, after which dancing followed until 2 a. m.

Mrs. Hastings Is Hostess To Miss Watts

Mrs. H. G. Hastings was hostess at a beautiful tea at the Woman's club on Friday afternoon, in honor of Miss Jessie Watts, a bride-elect of April.

The decorations consisted of bright colored spring flowers.

Miss Watts wore a becoming model of brown flat-crepe, with hat to match.

Mrs. Hastings wore dark blue satin crepe, trimmed in paisley.

Mrs. Stanley Hastings, who assisted her mother in entertaining, was gowned in green flat crepe with a tan hat.

A Stirring Serial of Primitive Passions

CHAPTER XXI.

Warwick Scores.

Marcella knit her white brow for a moment.

"Yes, I've heard that before. It may be true. On the other hand, it would be a frightful risk to take."

Kind and thoughtful as Warwick Treman had been recently, would he ever be able to efface the image of Miles Holden from her mind?

But of course it was all over with Miles! He hadn't written. She had waited for his letter for two dreary weeks. That interminable silence. . .

She had even pocketed her pride, and twice rung up his studio, only to be told each time that he was still in Paris. She wouldn't give her name, and hoped that Miles would never come to hear of it.

Yes, to forget him absolutely was the only way to happiness.

And how frightfully kind and sympathetic Warwick had become! He would be a man to trust, to lean on.

That stupid threat of bringing the Swiss woman as a maid to Lady Warrington had been merely the result of sudden shock—the shock of hearing she intended to marry someone else—he had apologized for it a dozen times, and called himself a cad and blackguard.

She had forgiven him, and almost forgotten the incident.

Life with Warwick Treman would hold no glorious passion and few thrills. But it would be safe and sheltered . . . and luxurious. Marcella, if the truth be told, fully appreciated yachts and cars and country houses, foreign travel and entertaining. She loved a circle of interesting, talented friends!

Married to Warwick, she could have these things and many more.

Miles' silence was sufficient assurance that he did not love her, that indeed the boardship enchantment had been merely a passing romance, engineered to while away the time.

Men busy with the arts were often just like that!

Warwick was speaking again, softly, persuasively.

"Am I such an agre that you couldn't spare me even a tiny portion of your heart?"

She hesitated, then she said:

"I'm fond of you. I believe that lately I've been growing fonder. I suppose girls are like that. Kindness and consideration count."

Warwick was pleased.

"You'll find yourself getting fonder all the time. I intend to leave no stone unturned, to win you! That doesn't make you angry, does it?"

"Oh no." As a matter of fact, it held balm for her wounded pride.

And she knew lots of girls who were keen about this man. They thought him handsome, fascinating. They would have jumped at him!

Real love would surely come, in time. She must learn to forget Miles Holden. He wasn't worthy of any woman's love—philanderer that he was.

"I was talking to your father yesterday at his club. He approves of me as a son-in-law, Marcella."

She nodded.

"Oh yes, I know it. But——"—— with a hint of mischief brightening the sadness of her face—"dear old dad's so unworldly and up in the clouds that he's no judge of character. Anyone who takes the least interest in his 'researches' and mummies and museums is considered charming."

Warwick Treman did not answer that, but said:

"I'd be so glad to help him, dear. Indeed, I'd make a handsome settlement on him. Then he could pursue his work full steam ahead, and no worries."

Marcella looked thoughtful.

"He's as proud as Lucifer! He wouldn't let you."

"Oh, it's quite the usual thing. Besides, he needn't know. As you say, he's not a practical man of affairs, and would probably look on the money as manna dropped from heaven. We could make him believe it was a legacy from someone interested in archaelogy."

He offered the girl a cigarette. She took one, lighting it abstractedly.

"By the way, I'd almost forgotten—I met the postman on the doorstep with some letters. The old boy was in a hurry, so he gave them to me." He handed Marcella four envelopes. "Two for your father. Two for you."

She grasped them eagerly. A wave of red ran up into her smooth cheeks. There was just a chance.

Ah no! No Paris postmark!

"Thanks, Warwick." Her voice was faint and toneless.

"Come out for a breath of air, dear. You look a bit seedy. My car's waiting, and a blow up on the Heath would do you good."

"Oh, very well." She rose listlessly, and got her hat and wrap. Anything to forget!

On the doorstep they met her father. He looked old and tired and shabby, and her heart smote her.

"I'll be home in an hour, daddy. Do go and have a rest. You look fagged out."

He gave her a pathetic smile, and nodded, as it pleased to see the two together.

Warwick Treman handed her into his big, luxurious car, as though she were extremely fragile, and fussed about her, tucking a fur rug about her knees. Marcella leant back comfortably. The seats were low, and splendidly upholstered.

Confessions of a Debutante

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING

Installment No. 60.
MY WEDDING.
Who's Who in the Story.

I ran away from my fiance.

Jonathan Grey, rich and elderly, to the arms of Larry, a man who dances well. His wife.

Mrs. Larry, shows me the folly of my action and becomes my friend. I return home. My engagement is announced, though my affection belongs to

My Stranger, who stagged to my coming-out party and whose name I refused to listen to because I believed we never could be friends. While I am shopping the girl whom Jonathan hired to act as my substitute at my engagement party, because he feared I might not appear, is arrested for shoplifting. She involves me and shows her ring, which duplicates my engagement ring, as proof that we are companions. I am arrested with her. Mrs. Larry takes her lawyer and goes to court with me. The girl is unrepresented. My Stranger takes her case, I am released. The girl gets a light sentence. Later in the day Jonathan asks me to change the date of our wedding.

Wednesday, January 31.

Mother is warbling about with a smile on her face like a telephone doll.

Else disappeared right after she came in and kissed me good-morning.

Dad stands about looking out of windows with his hands in his pocket.

The telephone rings! The door bell rings! Flowers! Gifts! Deliveries!

A moment ago Claire herself stepped out of her electric carrying two huge boxes for me.

"I had to deliver myself, my dear—that I might wish you well!" she murmured as she put them into my hands.

I am supposed to be spending this day in the quiet of my room, resting. But with every ring of the door bell I glance out of the window and if it's any one I like, down I fly. And with every tinkle of the telephone I listen in on my extension.

My bridal day!

And were it My Stranger I should not be alone here in this sitting room. I should be jealous of every moment spent away from him! Just as I am jealous of every woman he kisses and every woman his smile rests on.

My Stranger!

Mrs. Larry came this morning. But for her I fear I should have a sorry sight. Mama insisted that she must be about, that the maid who has cared perfectly for my things for several years, was incompetent on this day of days. And so she fluttered about, bringing this, bringing that and finally almost succeeding in shoving my right foot into the left slipper! Mrs. Larry noticed it and put me comfortably into the right pumps!

As I stood before the mirror while the final touches were being put on my gown and the veil was being draped I was conscious of nothing but the weight of the train which swung from my shoulders and wound in sinuous yards behind me. It gave me a weird, half fearful feeling.

At the church father helped me out of the carriage and blindly I faced the mob just outside the roped-off space on the sidewalk, and made my way draping that terrible weight, up the stairs and into the building. I leaned heavily on father's arm and was conscious of his questioning gaze.

In the vestibule we stopped a second. He took me in his arms and kissed me.

Then we went on down the aisle, which seemed to rise to meet me as I walked.

It was all an unintelligible maze—music, the scent of flowers, the rustle of garments, the voice of the clergyman.

Presently Jonathan and I were on our knees on the satin cushions.

And then the voice of the clergyman:

"Therefore, if any can show just cause why they may not be lawfully joined together, let him speak now or else hereafter forever hold his peace."

Jonathan was breathing hard. I could see that his face was pale and tense.

JAMES COX TO VISIT ATLANTA ON APRIL 3

Plans to entertain James M. Cox, democratic nominee for the presidency in 1920 and former governor of Ohio, who will visit Atlanta on April 3, were being made Friday by Charles J. Haden, who was chairman of the Cox finance committee in Georgia during the campaign.

Mr. Cox will be welcomed upon his arrival by a number of prominent Atlanta democrats. At 12:30 o'clock he will address the Kiwanis club at its weekly luncheon. Mr. Cox is scheduled to leave Atlanta at 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

George Eubanks is arranging the Kiwanis club program.

ASK MAYOR TO ATTEND STOCKHOLM MEETING

Notification of his selection as chairman of the committee on municipalities of the international economic conference, which will be held in Stockholm, Sweden, in June, was received by Mayor Walter A. Sims, Friday from Clarence . Owens, of Washington, D. C., one of the directors of the conference.

Mayor Sims was undecided as to whether he would accept the honor, stating that he was not certain that he could take the time from his duties here to attend the conference. The mayor expressed his appreciation of the honor however.

MRS. HINCKLEY NERVOUS WRECK

Tells How She Was Restored to Perfect Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Memphis, Tenn.—"Two years ago I was completely run-down and my nerves were a wreck. I could not sweep a room without resting. I could not do my work except a little at a time, and the doctor's medicine did not help me. One day some one threw your little book on to my porch, and in it I read several testimonials of women who had been like myself. I went right out and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and before I had taken the whole of that bottle I knew it was helping me. I took six bottles, and then in about three months I took two more. Now I am in perfect health. I do all of my own work and could do more. I can truly say that I know Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound gave me my health."—Mrs. O. J. HINCKLEY, 316 Union Ave., Memphis, Tenn.

BEAUTY CHATS
BY EDNA K. FORBES

OUR FRIENDS, THE CALORIES.

Recently we have been neglecting an important part in any discussion of beauty—that is, scientifically correct diet. Now if you are too fat or thin, or if you have a bad complexion or any other troubles which are due to improper feeding (an extraordinary number of our troubles are due to this), there are two ways you can set about a cure. One is a hit-or-miss method of eating new things and watching the result; the other is learning how to diet scientifically.

The theory of calories had a great vogue; then, like all vogues, dropped out of favor and was replaced by a new enthusiasm. But the other day a well-known scientist declared that the proof that "foods are oxidized in the body in accordance with well established laws of combustion" ranked only a little behind Newton's discovery of the law of gravitation. The proof of the heating values of food came from Lavoisier, the great scientist of France, who lost his life during the French Revolution.

A candle containing the elements of carbon and hydrogen is converted to carbon dioxide and water when it is burned, and it gives oil heat. Foods containing carbon and hydrogen are burned in the body and turn into carbon dioxide and water and also produce heat. There is no use going too deeply into the technicalities of a highly technical subject. It is enough to say that it has been proved that definite amounts of food, just like definite amounts of coal or any other heat-making substance, always produce definite quantities of heat.

The scientists had to have some unit to measure this heat, just as earlier discoverers had to have the foot and the inch to measure length and the pound to measure weight, so they called the unit of heat the calorie. They found that the average man gave out approximately 2,700 calories of heat in 24 hours. Therefore, they knew he would need to take in about 2,700 calories every day—if he was an average man.

Angel C.: The size of the bust may be increased by building up all the muscles of the chest through deep breathing. Dress so any lack of development is not noticed, and if you are below normal weight, gain through drinking plenty of milk.

Jean C. S.: If you have adenoids they should be removed or treated for the sake of your health, even though they do spoil the shape of your nose, which is unlikely. By all means consult a doctor about your condition.

Francis: You must be mistaken about borac acid being used on the skin to ward off lines. It would have the opposite effect if used to any great extent, for while it is very cleansing it is also very drying.

L. T.: When using kid curlers merely dampen the hair with water and let hair remain on the curlers until it has dried thoroughly. The mucilage curling fluid is only used for making ringlets and then they are fastened into shape and remain during the time of drying.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

The HOUSEHOLD
Edited by Anne Rittenhouse

THE SPRING SALAD.

We have come around again to the days when the devising of salads requires something of a knack on the part of the housewife. The spring appetite is sometimes finical—though less so now when we have plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables and good canned ones throughout the winter, and when we understand the usefulness of staying outdoors as much as possible, whatever the weather. We don't get so jaded, in appetite, in health, or in appearance, as people used to when winter meant a diet lacking in fruit and vegetables and a life spent much within doors for women of the better classes.

But, anyway, finical appetite or not, we crave salads. And we are perhaps a little tired of the sort we have had all winter. It is too soon, of course, for summer vegetables. Therefore the thing settles down to the necessity of exercising much ingenuity in making the best of what we have.

Apples are not very much good for salads now unless we improve their flavor. This we can do by adding orange or lemon juice or by combining them with rather highly flavored ingredients. Nuts are in many cases too oily or strong now for good salads. If that is the case we had better leave them out entirely.

Rely on crisp lettuce and good dressing to give your salads their particular attraction just now. Vary the dressing, both French and mayonnaise, with different flavorings. Add chili sauce to the mayonnaise, or add chopped green pepper, onion and celery. Add minced parsley, ketchup, crushed tarragon to the French dressing. Garnish your salads with olives, radishes or pimientos. And don't serve salads that are too heavy or too sweet or too rich to appeal to the spring appetite, which, after all, craves succulence and freshness.

No Radio Concerts For British M. P.s In Business Hours

London, March 23.—The members of the house of commons will not be subjected to the temptation of "listening in" to jazz music or other entertainment features on the wireless telephones, to the detriment of their attention to official business, it was announced by the postmaster general in reply to a suggestion made by a member that receiving apparatus be installed in the house. The member based his suggestion on the desirability of giving the commoners an opportunity of passing on the quality of the postoffice department's broadcasting.

To this suggestion Sir W. Joynson-Hicks, the postmaster general, replied that he did not think it was his duty to provide "such a counter attraction" in the chamber of the house.

ARREST MACON MAN FOR STRIKE TROUBLE

Macon, Ga., March 23.—(Special.) Mercer Coleman, a plumber, was arrested here today on a warrant from Augusta, charging him with assault with intent to murder in connection with disorders in Augusta during the railroad strike last fall.

Coleman is alleged to have been a member of a party that shot and killed a guard employed by a railroad company to protect its property. He denies any connection with the case, but will be taken to Augusta next Monday to stand trial.

The Constitution's Patterns

A STYLISH DRESS IN ONE PIECE STYLE.

4303. Taffeta, satin, serge or linen could be used for this model. The vest portions are crossed in double breasted style. The collar may be rolled high, or turned low.

The pattern is cut in three sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. An 18-year size requires 5 1-4 yards of 40-inch material. The width at the foot is 2 3-4 yards, with plaits extended.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A CHIC ONE PIECE STYLE.

4122. Fashion has put her smartest lines in this creation. The sleeve and collar are new and attractive. Serviceable pockets are concealed under the neat tabs. As here portrayed, checked eponge and linen are here combined. One could have this in gabardine with contrasting material for trimming.

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size requires 4 5-8 yards of 44 inch material. To trim as illustrated requires 5-8 yard of 44 inch material. The width at the foot is 2 1-4 yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A SMART SUIT.

4074-4076. Here are new style features and attractive lines. One could have this model in wool mixtures, twill covert cloth or serge. The coat has new lines, and is a good style for slender and stout figures. The skirt is a two piece model, cut on straight lines, but with comfortable fulness.

The coat pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. The skirt is cut in 6 sizes: 25, 27, 29, 31, 33 and 35 inches waist measure. A medium size will require 5 7-8 yards of 40 inch material. The width of the skirt at the foot is about 2 1-4 yards.

Two separate patterns mailed to any address on receipt of ten cents for each pattern in silver or stamps.

Send 12 cents in silver or stamps for our up-to-date spring and summer 1923 Book of Fashions.

In ordering patterns write name and address plainly on a sheet of paper. Order by number and inclose price in silver or stamps. Do not mail letter to The Constitution building in Atlanta, but address as follows: Fashion Department, The Constitution, 1188-89 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, New York.

What Women Wear
BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

Organdie Reappears Despite Many Rumors of Its Extinction. It Is Used for Blouses, for Collars and Cuffs. Also for Bustle Bows on Mid-Victorian Frocks, for These Curious Accessories Have Been Revived.

Someone cast an evil eye upon organdie early in the year. The rumor was that it would not be revived, and most of us believed it. The truth is that the French collections emphasize it and the American dressmakers use it for spring frocks and for blouses. The interior decorators suggest it for sash curtains, especially when it is mauve or faintest yellow on white with colored cross bars, so it is sufficiently in demand for the counters to be heaped with it.

Lanvin, of Paris, who has sent splendid second empire frocks to this country, uses an immense white organdie bow to hold up outstanding flounces on a taffeta frock. It is a curious idea, and not a likeable one to the American mind. The new gowns from France exhibited in this country show far too many long skirts sweeping into trains at back, built of tiers of flounces looped up into some kind of bustle drapery at back; at least there are far too many of these for our peace of mind.

Simpler frocks show organdie figurations appliqued to a dark surface. Collars of white, of yellow, of cornflower blue organdie, finely tucked, decorate the necklines of plain and printed frocks. There are organdie vests placed flat against the chest under jackets of yellow kasha and of corn-flower blue flannel; there are organdie pleatings, cordings, bias bindings run on frocks of silk and wool. What we are going to do about it is not yet apparent, for we realize its dangers.

Organdie is a perishable fabric. It is hard enough to keep in condition when it can be put on an ironing board and pressed. When it is applied to frocks as small bits of decoration, the task of keeping it fresh is hopeless.

Blouses of it are quite likable. The sketch shows one for a young girl in blue and white checks with white collar and cuffs. There is a blue cravat, blue bone buttons down the front and a belt buckle of blue galalith.

It is of small moment whether or not a youngster wears her blouse over or under the skirt, for her slim shapelessness allows her to do what she pleases with such details as waistlines, girdles, skirt belts.

School girl's blouse of blue and white checked organdie with white collar and cuffs and blue bone buttons extending from red cravat to a buckle of red that fastens the belt.

Would that all waistlines gave freedom from anxiety. The world would be an easier place to dress.

Pneumonia Patient Recovering Rapidly By New Treatment

Hoboken, N. J., March 23.—Miss Charlotte Boyle, night superintendent of the North Hudson hospital, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, and who underwent the diathermic treatment experiment conducted by Dr. C. V. Droeser, in St. Mary's hospital here, showed signs of marked improvement today, according to hospital authorities. Miss Boyle is considered entirely out of danger and unless she suffers a relapse will be discharged from the hospital within a week.

Eight other patients who subjected themselves to the treatment were reported as recovering rapidly.

AMERICAN ACQUITTED BY MEXICAN JURY

Mexico City, March 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—Benjamin H. Turner, an American, was acquitted today by the jury before which he had been on trial for the murder two years ago of Hamon Arguelles, a Mexican. He was the first North American to face a murder charge in Mexico in many years. The prosecution sought the death penalty.

Hurner, who is 22 years old, shot and killed Arguelles two years ago, when he was convinced the latter had swindled him out of 6,000 pesos, his savings of several years. Since his arrest Turner has been confined to a local prison. He declined to discuss the case and refused even to give his United States address.

Favorable comment is heard in many quarters on the jury's decision.

The Brazilian congress of coal and other national fuels has recommended the use of alcohol-driven vehicles by the government and advises promoting the use of fuel alcohol.

Fraud Is Charged In Naturalization Of Many Foreigners

San Francisco, March 23.—Aliens in California, Arizona and Nevada, who have obtained citizenship papers through alleged frauds, said to have been perpetrated upon the government by Fred N. Littleton, former naturalization examiner, were warned by Chief Naturalization Examiner M. R. Bevington in a statement made public today, to make confession and surrender their citizenship papers to avoid prosecution.

Federal officials said several thousand aliens were implicated in the citizenship conspiracy.

CRUISER IS SEIZED ON LIQUOR CHARGES

New York, March 23.—The 60-foot cabin cruiser Avenger was seized by customs officials today at a Staten Island landing and her captain and crew arrested, charged with illegally transporting liquor. The Avenger was reported to have carried 150 cases of whisky from Rum Row.

The prisoners, Captain John Kane, of Bayonne, N. J., and Edward Burke and William Alton, were placed in jail to await arraignment.

First Hog Sale.

McDonough, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—McDonough and Henry county are to have their first co-operative hog sale March 27. The county is just beginning to realize the possibilities in growing hogs for market and the sale is attracting considerable interest. The state bureau of markets will be in charge and a number of buyers are expected.

BULL RUNS AMUCK IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, March 23.—A bull ran wild today in the streets of Philadelphia and injured three persons. After leading a chase for almost two miles, the beast dropped dead with 18 pistol bullets in his head and body.

The animal escaped from the stockyards at Thirty-first street and Market street.

The Eternal Eve

BY MAY CHRISTIE

Eve hurried to the home of Mary. She craved companionship. She felt she couldn't bear to be alone with the thought that Wilfred had gone away without a farewell word.

"Oh, Eve," cried Mary, her eyes shining with excitement, "John's just been here! We've fixed the wedding day—it's to be almost at once—and will you be bridesmaid?"

She caught her friend's hand in both her own.

"If it hadn't been for you the marriage would never have taken place at all!" she added generously.

To be gratefully thanked for having refused to marry the new established fiance of one's friend was quite amusing and unique.

But all Eve said was:

"Nonsense, Mary! You're heaps better suited to John than I could ever be! And of course I'll be your bridesmaid, dear!"

Mary flung her arms round Eve's neck.

"You're a perfect brick!" She kissed her friend rapturously. "And—oh, Eve! He deals in rubber, as I suppose you know. He's got to visit New York. So he wants me to marry him at once. He insists on a hurry-up marriage here, a short honeymoon, and then"——

She beamed at Eve.

"Yes?" said the latter faintly, trying to assume the interest that she couldn't feel, "what then?"

"He intends to take me over to New York," giggled Mary delightedly. "Won't that be wonderful?"

Mary laid a hand on Eve's arm. Her eyes were shining with excitement.

"We want you to come with us, Eve. You've got to come!" said she in triumph.

Eve raised her brows in astonishment.

"How could I possibly come with you?"

"Nonsense, Eve!" Mary's tones were positive. "The idea was John's as well as my own!"

"Indeed!" commented Eve. "It's quite impossible!"

"Oh, no it isn't, Eve! Remember, John will have to leave me a good deal to my own devices while he makes these business trips. He's worrying about that." She broke off coyly.

Eve smiled. She could not help it.

"Eve, do say you'll come!"

A questioning, doubtful sort of look came into Eve's eyes as she listened to her friend's pleadings.

"Oh, Mary," she said suddenly, "I'm concerned about your happiness—yours and John's! If you really cared for him, you wouldn't want a third person along to spoil your trip."

"I am quite fond enough of John to contemplate marrying him, and living with him all my life, although I can't pretend to feel romantic thrills about it! I'm not really a romantic sort of person, Eve! John and I will jog along quite contentedly, so don't you worry, my dear."

On Mary's wedding day the sun shone brightly. And it was a thoroughly complacent self-satisfied little bride who stood at the altar.

For Mary's hopes had reached their consummation—matrimony!

And as the wedding party drove to Mary's home the bride heaved a sigh replete with satisfaction.

"Your tie's all on one side, John! Here, let me fasten it! And for goodness sake, John, where are your new gloves? Don't tell me you left them in church!"

"It's all fixed, Eve, about your coming with us to the states." Later, at the reception, she addressed her pretty bridesmaid.

"I'd love the Atlantic trip," said Eve a little wistfully. This was a trying day for her, reminding her—as inevitably it would—of her disastrous love affair with Wilfred. The might-have-been—how sad the recollection was!

"Of course, you are coming—why, your berth's taken and everything settled. We leave from Liverpool on the Blue Star line Aloysius, sailing on the 25th." And Mary fluttered off.

Eve and the pert boy-cousin who had taken her to the the-dansant were about to drink the bride and bridesgroom's health when a voice said in Eve's ear, almost harshly:

"Don't take that beastly stuff! I hate to see you do it!"

Eve started, swinging round to see the speaker.

And there stood Wilfred.

For a moment or two they regarded each other. Eve rather pale and breathless, the young man with a frown of disaproval on his face.

"Why shouldn't I drink to Mary's health?" Eve said at last.

The other shrugged his shoulders.

"Oh, no earthly reason, I suppose—except that I didn't think you were that kind of girl, that's all!"

He looked at Eve's flushed cheeks, in a slow, critical sort of way that made her feel humiliated.

"I thought—I heard—that you'd gone back to Canada!" She put the wine glass down on a small table nearby, and turning her back on the boy-cousin, looked up at Wilfred.

"No doubt you're disappointed that that isn't the case. Wilfred returned her look with perfect calmness. "You needn't be afraid I shall bother you," he added. "I should say you're the prettiest girl I have ever seen—yes—even apart from fine feathers—"but it all means something different to me now!"

He put an arresting hand on Eve's arm and drew her into a little alcove, away from the crowd of wedding guests.

"Sit down a minute—I want to talk to you!" Eve tried to draw herself away.

His hand tightened on her arm with a grin that hurt.

"Sit down—I'll make you listen—you shall listen!"

She sank down into the small wicker chair, the ruffles of her billowy bridesmaid's frock all fluffiness about her.

"Yes—you're pretty—but you're misusing all the beauty that's been given you—and some day you're going to regret it," went on the husky voice beside her.

"What—what do you mean?" said Eve, drawing further back in her chair.

"You're trifling with your own happiness. And you can't always play a winning hand!"

"Please let me go" said the girl dully, trying to keep back the tears.

Wilfred cleared his throat.

"This is probably the last time that I'll ever see you," he said, "and I just want to tell you that everything's all right."

"I'm going back to the place I came from—the backwoods, as you'd call it"—he smiled a little bitterly—"and I want you to know that I'm going back quite happy! I'm happy because I'm leaving you quite free."

Eve raised troubled eyes to his face.

"I was a fool," he repeated firmly, "but that's all over, Eve, and I don't bear any ill-will at all. In a way, I'm glad I've learned my lesson. It was good for me."

"Don't—oh, dont!" Eve whispered. "Wilfred"——

"It's all right, Eve—don't worry—this is goodby. I know I never could have made you happy—I did care for you terribly."

"But you don't any more? Oh, Wilfred, say you do! Say that everything isn't over and finished—say"—Eve held her hands out in an agony of appeal.

He rose to his feet unsteadily, staring down at her.

"You—you tempt me, Eve"——

"I—I love you, Wilfred—even when you're cruel—I"——

"Don't say it, Eve—it isn't true"—

"I—I can't get along without you—won't you—won't you take me with you? Won't you say you haven't changed? Wilfred"——

She had risen to her feet and stood beside him.

He drew back.

"I—I couldn't ever trust you, Eve! Any tale about me you'd believe! You—you weren't true"——

"Oh, Wilfred, I'd give everything—all I possess—to put things right again!"

"It can't be done! It's too late, Eve!"

"Don't say it, Wilfred." She was crying now. "Forgive me"——

He took her hands in his own firm clasp.

"Listen, my dear," he said, "you'd be miserable if you married me! I am not fond of your world. It was a hopeless pity that we ever met! I haven't got a thing to offer you"——

"Not even love?" came the smothered question.

He smiled a little bitterly.

"At one time I was fool enough to think that love was everything—now I know better," he said slowly, "Love wouldn't be enough for a girl—like you—Eve"——

"It would! It would!" The tears were running down her cheeks.

"My dear"—his voice was very kind—"you don't know what you're saying! And I do!"

He drew her to him and kissed her very tenderly.

"Goodby, little sweetheart that-used-to-be," he whispered. "You'll soon forget, and be happy again."

Then suddenly he released her and went out of the house.

Eve hung herself back into the wicker chair brokenheartedly.

"Come down to Brighton today; make arrangement Atlantic trip—Mary."

A week had passed since Mary's wedding when Eve received this telegram.

A little spark of excitement began to surge within her.

"I'll go," she said.

She arrayed herself in her big fur coat and a little traveling hat that was particularly becoming.

The crowds at Victoria station made traveling rather uncomfortable. But Eve found her way to a Pullman, bought a paper, settled herself comfortably in a corner and began to read.

A heading in bold, black type stood out, arresting, vivid:

"HEROIC YOUNG AIRMAN COMES INTO FORTUNE!"

"Westerner 'Strikes Lucky.'"

As she read her face paled a little and she caught her breath.

For the name of Wilfred Roscommon sprang from the printed page, hung with a string of laudatory adjectives.

"Captain Roscommon—'struck lucky'—oil fields in the West—held property for some years—oil only discovered recently—worth thousands—" Eve's glance darted in breathless astonishment down the paragraph.

She read it twice and then a third time.

And he was going back to Canada! The fortune that he had come into—she didn't care about it in the least, except—she swallowed hard—except that it might make Wilfred happier.

Through a blur of tears she read the alluring narrative of Wilfred's life. Cowboy, rancher, gold digger, officer of the Northwest Mounted Police, prospector—winner of decorations—congratulated by the King himself!

And now he was going out of her life—forever—had, in fact, departed!

She stared through the window of the railway carriage, out to the prim little English fields, with their precise hedgerows, gentle, browsing cattle and wondrous air of peace and calm.

She closed her eyes with a weary gesture. She had had her chance of sharing such a life as his—and she had lost!

The Brighton terminus was, as usual, very busy. Eve took a long, deep breath of pure ozone. After the foggy atmosphere of London, how wonderful it felt.

Below her on the yellow beach lay, high and dry, some picturesque brown fishing boats, and great brown fishing nets were spread out to dry on the smooth, bright shingle.

Eve climbed down some steps that led from the promenade to the shore.

"I want to get close to the sea," she told herself. She stood beside the water's edge and gazed out far over the shimmering waters. After a time a kind of peace possessed her. She moved away from the water's edge and walked toward the ultra-gay hotel where Mary and her bridegroom spent the first rapturous days of honeymoon.

"Oh, Eve, dearest, how glad I am to see you!" Mary fluttered through the lounge and bestowed a hearty kiss upon her friend.

Eve smiled at her.

"Everything going all right, Mary?"

"As right as rain," said Mary heartily. "Here comes John!"

From the lift emerged that gentleman, looking somewhat sheepish.

"Hello, Eve. Looking very fit; have something? Martin? Cigarets?"

Eve smiled again.

"No, thanks," she said; "neither the one nor the other!"

The plans for the American trip were now discussed. Yes, Eve could be ready to sail in four days' time.

"John, run and fetch my powder-puff! My nose is shiny!" Mary tapped the ankle of her spouse with a four-inch heel whose origin was Paris. "And when you've brought it, you can go down to the smoke room and leave Eve and me together for a bit—we've heaps to talk about! Run along now, there's a dear fellow!"

To Eve's astonishment John rose meekly from his chair, pulled down his waistcoat, flicked some ash therefrom, and smilingly departed on the errand.

"Don't you think I manage him awfully well, dear?" Mary observed, blowing a little ring of smoke into the air.

"I took a firm hand from the start—and I resolved to cut out all the romantic, girly-girly, petted-darling business, that would really have only made me a laughing stock," continued Mary. "I'm not a clinging kitten, Eve—not cuddlesome, or playful, or amusing—only practical! So I'm sticking to the role that suits me best!"

Mary picked up a paper that was lying near.

"I wanted to talk to you about this," she said, lowering her voice. "About Wilfred—did you see? He's come into a fortune!"

Eve flushed a little.

"I read it in the train—I'm awfully glad for his sake," she said slowly.

"For his sake? Fiddlesticks! He won't know what to do with the money!" Mary gave a little snort of indignation. "It's too bad you should have lost him, Eve!"

Then she added solemnly:

"I have a plan, my child!"

"A—a plan?" repeated Eve.

Mary nodded.

"A plan to bring you two together again. But don't build too much on it, Eve, because it may not work."

Eve drew back with a hurt expression on her face.

"Please don't think of such a thing," she said in a distressed voice. "I saw Wilfred at your—your wedding—I said goodby to him there—everything's over and finished—and please don't refer to it again."

Mary's smile as she looked at her friend held a world of pitying criticism.

"You're a dear, unworldly, foolish little goose; but it won't be my fault if I can't make you happy, Eve! I've got a scheme, I tell you."

After luncheon Eve left her friends for a ramble along the cliffs.

How lonely it was up there—how deserted!

GEORGIA BULLDOGS AT WGM TONIGHT

Glee and Instrumental teners to 6 to 7 O'Clock Club Will Entertain Lis- Program Tonight.

The University of Georgia Glee and Instrumental club will be Station WGM's offering to listeners on the 6 to 7 o'clock broadcast tonight. The "Bulldogs" boast the greatest bunch of entertainers in many years and between an afternoon and a night engagement in Atlanta the boys will have an inning with fans of this station.

Vocal and instrumental solos and duets, and a quartet that would melt the heart of a critic, will constitute the main feature of entertainment. An array of comedians, with the club, may take a fling at fans with a number of new jokes. One can't ever tell what the "Bulldogs" will do. Upsetting the well known "dope" bucket is a regular thing for the University of Georgia outfit. It is enough to say that the University of Georgia Glee and Instrumental club will appear on the early broadcast.

No college musical organization in the United States is better known than the famous "Bulldogs" of Athens. The fame of the Glee and Instrumental club is no less widespread than the football team, the baseball nine and the basketball quintet. The "Bulldogs" do whatever they undertake in a jam-up style, pleasing the public and reflecting credit upon the great institution of learning.

Station WGM is fortunate in being able to present such an aggregation of musicians, particularly so in view of the fact that the club has two engagements in Atlanta today and an hour's entertainment is sandwiched in between these engagements for listeners to The Constitution's station.

The fun begins at 6 o'clock.

"Congratulations"

Station WGM, Gentlemen—Congratulations on your first anniversary. I listen to WGM almost every night, and enjoyed your Irish program of last night very much.

Thank you for the dandy entertainment. Yours truly,

W. H. Conrad.

Watertown, S. D.

"Hear You Regularly"

WGM., Gentlemen—I wish to report hearing your fine concert last evening. I hear your station regularly and always enjoy your programs.

Yours truly,
Harold J. Murphy.

EARLY PROGRAM VERY ENJOYABLE

Miss Martha Crowe and Other WGM Stars Heard on 6 to 7 O'Clock Program Last Night.

A variety of musical entertainment was Station WGM's offering to listeners to the early broadcast last night. Miss Martha Crowe, lyric soprano; Miss Marguerite Miere, pianist; Jimmy Finley, baritone and pianist, and Rex Parks, pianist, were heard in special selections on the 6 to 7 o'clock program.

Miss Crowe's clear and exceptionally rangy voice was most beautiful in her numbers, and several difficult and exacting songs were rendered in her usual pleasing and acceptable manner. Few singers in the nation are as well-known as Miss Crowe and her contributions to last night's program augmented her popularity with WGM fans. Miss Miere gave the piano accompaniments for Miss Crowe in a very pleasing manner, displaying marked talent and training. Her rendition of "The Dance of the Demon," as a solo, was an enjoyable feature.

Jimmy Finley and Rex Parks divided honors at the piano. Jimmy is one of this station's staff artists who is known in every nook and corner of the western hemisphere. Rex Parks is the xylophone soloist and drummer with Warner's Seven Aces, and demonstrated splendid ability as a pianist last night by giving "The Entertainer's Rag."

"Came in Fine"

Dear WGM—Concert came in fine last evening, temperature was zero. Good cold, clear night to hear far away stations. Hope to hear you again.

A. H. Stabler and family.

VARIETY PROGRAM FOR FANS TONIGHT

Jimmy Finley Sponsors 9:30 to 10:30 Offering Tonight—Popular Stars Presented.

Jimmy Finley, exclusive and popular WGM artist, is sponsoring tonight's 9:30 to 10:30 program. This is equivalent to saying that listeners will be treated to a musical program of variety and entertainment by a group of Atlanta's most popular and talented artists.

Included in the splendid arrangement for tonight's late offering are Mrs. B. W. Phillips, pianist; Miss Jeane Wynne, pianist; Miss Olive Walker, dramatic soprano; Miss Gladys Reed, pianist; Miss Frances Thebaut, lyric soprano; Carleton Whitehead, violinist; Vic Meyers, saxaphonist, and last—but by no means least in importance—the "Pastimers." The latter organization is rapidly taking its place in musical circles as one of the "breeziest" quartets in the city, offering instrumental and vocal selections in a new and snappy manner.

Mr. Finley, popular baritone and pianist, will be heard in vocal and piano solos. He is one of the best known radio entertainers in the nation and his contributions to broadcasts from WGM during the past few weeks constitute an outstanding feature of radio entertainment. Jimmy is extremely popular with fans and his new song numbers and "jazzy" piano selections are excellent features of any program.

The artists mentioned above who will be presented to fans on the program sponsored by Mr. Finley for tonight, are well known to listeners to this station. A more talented or highly trained group of artists could not be selected from musical ranks in Atlanta. Fans are assured, therefore, of an enjoyable hour via the ether.

"Program Fine"

WGM, Gentlemen — Program fine and coming in fine. We are receiving on Oriola set.

Respectfully,
Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hinkel.
Stillwater, Okla.

GEORGIA SENATOR HEARD FROM WGM

Senator William J. Harris Addresses Radio Fans of America on 9:30 to 10:30 O'Clock Program.

Senator William J. Harris, senior senator from Georgia, was heard in a 10-minute address by radio fans of the nation last night on Station WGM's 9:30 to 10:30 program. The senator is a very interesting speaker and his short talk was a feature of the late offering.

The talk of Senator Harris was devoted, briefly, to the explanation of some of the legislation of particular interest to farmers which was passed by the last congress. Matters in which Senator Harris was particularly active, or these measures which he introduced, were emphasized.

The senior senator reiterated his belief that the nation was suffering from the failure of congress to accept Henry Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals.

Senator Harris' talk dealt mainly with matters of particular interest to farmers of the south and middle west, and was very interesting.

RAILROADS ORDERED TO REPORT EARNINGS

I. C. C. Calls for Figures on Railroad Profits Earned in 1922.

Washington, March 23.—An order was issued today by the interstate commerce commission requiring all railroads to report by May 1, as to their earnings during the year 1922, and to pay over to the government under the transportation act, one-half of the amount by which such earnings exceed a six per cent return on the value of the investment.

So far practically no payments have been made under the law requiring the return of excess earnings.

Forms for making up the report were prescribed by the commission and where earnings in excess of six per cent were secured, but no payments made to the government, the corporations were required to report disposition of the money.

The Chinese make their household baskets so closely and firmly that they can be used in many cases to hold water, and are excellent substitutes for buckets. This naturally means great skill and patience in the manufacture, which is only attained through years of practice. The tremendous number of willow trees growing in China supply the necessary material.

COURT TEST CASE OF RIGHT TO AIR FOR RADIO COMING

Joliet, Ill., March 23.—The first court fight over the freedom of the air will take place at Pontiac, near here, at the April term, it was announced today.

Edward McWilliams, wealthy president of the State Bank of Dwight, last November was granted a temporary injunction restraining G. Wylie Bergman, 18, an amateur wireless operator at Dwight, from using his broadcasting station because, it is alleged to have interfered with the receiving of radio-telephone service in the McWilliams home.

The particular time specified in McWilliams' bill of particulars is election night of last November when, it is charged that Bergman's broadcasting seriously interfered with receiving election returns.

The eyes of the radio world will be on the case and men of national note, including Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, and Hiram Percy Maxim, president of the American Radio league, have signified their intentions of attending the hearing.

Immediately after the temporary injunction was granted last November, McWilliams left for California, and has not returned. Consequently young Bergman continues broadcasting.

Bergman calls the case a test in court to decide who has the right to use the air. He justifies his position with a statement in which he says an amateur broadcaster is essential to the community in case of disaster and the crippling of regular communication.

FARM OWNERSHIP CHANGES SURVEYED

One Farm in Sixteen Changed Owners in 1922, Figures Disclose.

Washington, March 23.—Ownership of approximately one farm in sixteen in the country was transferred last year while occupants on one out of five changed.

A department of agriculture survey, the first of its kind ever made by the government, disclosed today that occupants on nearly 1,250,000 farms changed during the year and shifts in ownership took place on nearly 400,000 farms. More farms changed ownership in the west and south than in the New England, Middle Atlantic and corn belt states.

While the changes of occupants give evidence of considerable mobility among American farmers, the department said it is not possible to determine whether the extent of the movement last year was greater or less than usual as comparative figures for others years are not available.

Of the 2,300,000 or more farm tenants more than 625,000 changed the scene of their operations during the year, more than 75 per cent of the transfers occurring in the 15 southern states. Tenant farms showed a net increase of 70,000 for the year, although more than 230,000 tenants either discontinued farming for other occupations, or left their communities for unknown destinations.

CAR SHORTAGE GROWS, SAYS RAILWAY AGE

Chicago, March 23.—While railroads are breaking all records for this season of the year in moving freight, shortage of transportation facilities is again increasing, the Railway Age announced today. The car shortage, it said, reached its maximum in the last week of October, continued to decline until the week ending February 8, when the net shortage was 41,894 cars, and since that time has increased, the last report showing a shortage of 64,814 cars.

The trouble with the modern musical comedy seems to be a lack of both music and comedy.—New Orleans States.

TRIO OF ARTISTS ON WGM PROGRAM

Miss Elsa Stenger Features 9:30 to 10:30 Program From The Constitution's Station.

A trio of Station WGM's exclusive and most popular entertainers were presented on last night's 9:30 to 10:30 broadcast. Miss Elsa Steager, dramatic soprano; Mrs. Georgia Stenger, pianist, and Miss Grace Lackaye, pianist, blended their efforts in an unusually enjoyable hour's broadcast.

Miss Stenger has a beautiful soprano voice which has endeared her to countless radio fans of the nation. Its remarkable purity of tone and quality enables her to sing new beauty into many of the widely loved songs of the present day. She is a pupil of Sigor E. Volpi, of Atlanta, and is a gifted and accomplished young singer, whose contributions are distinct features of WGM programs.

The piano accompaniments by Mrs. Georgia Stenger were given in her own splendid manner. She is an artist of many years' experience and is highly trained. She enjoys wide popularity with fans of this station and her accompaniments were enjoyable, indeed, last night.

Miss Grace Lackaye, brilliant young pupil of the Mayer Piano school of this city, was heard in "Tarantella" and "Divertessment," two exacting piano selections, which she rendered with all apparent ease. She is a highly talented young pianist whose offerings from this station are always enjoyable.

Yaarab Circus Lays Plans for 3 Shows Today

Yaarab Temple's indoor hippodrome circus has caught the popular fancy of the amusement-lovers of Atlanta, last night's audience packing the huge Auditorium to the dome. When George Hamid, manager of the Wirth-Blumenfeld Booking association, who is in charge of the ring management of the circus, took a curtain-peep at the crowd before the first act he told Potentate Gibson that the Auditorium would not hold the crowd tonight, and proposed giving an extra show, starting at 6:30 p. m. if the crowd present at that time warranted it.

His proposal met with instant favor with all of the performers, and Potentate Gibson then authorized the announcement of the extra show, provided there were enough early comers, and judging by Friday night's crowd the extra performance tonight is almost a certainty, for Atlanta has thousands of people who like to take in an early show.

The circus performers imported for Yaarab's indoor hippodrome are in the main the same as made up the bill for Moslem (Detroit) temple's indoor circus that ran for two weeks, netting the temple $80,000, so it is plain to anyone that in inaugurating an indoor circus in Atlanta, Yaarab temple has brought to the city, the best circus performers that could be secured.

The matinee show will begin at 2:45, children under 12 being admitted to this performance for 25 cents. The admission for all in the evening will be 50 cents. The doors will be open at 5:30, and if the crowd warrants a show at 6:30, the curtain will go up then, the second show following immediately after the first. Go early and be certain of seeing the show. Dancing in Taft hall begins at 8:30 and continues until midnight.

The lyre bird of Australia is a mimic. In the early morning hours it is at its best, duplicating the whistle of a locomotive, the barking of a dog, the call of a magpie, and the buzz of a circular saw in varying tones.

New York, March 23.—There was a renewal of liquidation and more active selling of new crop deliveries in the cotton market here today which sent the price of October deliveries out to 25.67, or 67 points below yesterday's final quotation. Last prices were the lowest of the day with the market easy at a net decline of 44 to 67 points. The market opened steady, 4 to 10 points lower on old crop positions which were influenced by relatively easy cables, while the new crop was unchanged to 1 point higher on the unfavorable showing of the early weather map. The little demand noted at the start was very soon supplied and prices weakened during the morning.

There were rallies early in the afternoon on the moderately bullish showing of the week-end figures but they met increased offerings accompanied by complaints of a continued poor spot demand and an easier spot basis in the southwest. Stop orders were uncovered as prices worked lower and there was a good deal of selling of early new crop deliveries by brokers with southern and western connections in the late trading. This may have been encouraged by the outlook for clearing weather in the southwest and the selling also was accompanied by reports that some operators were convinced that weevil damage this season would be much less than last year.

Offerings of old crop positions were relatively light after the heavy liquidation reported earlier in the week but July made a new low ground for the movement, selling off to 27.25 or 45 points net lower. May declined to 30.10 or 44 points below last night's closing quotations, while the more active new crop months sold at net losses of 65 to 67 points. Last prices were the lowest of the day.

There were rumors that some selling here by brokers with southeastern connections was due to unfavorable spot market conditions, while the southwest was supposed to be selling on an easier spot basis and the outlook for clearing weather in that section. Port receipts today, 13,744. United States port stocks, 663,456. Exports, 4,854. Liverpool reported a very quiet market there and was a moderate seller here probably on straddles.

SPOTS IN NEW YORK.

New York, March 23.—Cotton spot, quiet; middling, 30.20.

SELLING WAVE IN N. O. COTTON.

New Orleans, March 23.—Better weather conditions over the belt and prospects of further improvement, poor cables, talk of higher rediscount rates in the money market and the continued quiet in the spot department were responsible for a selling wave in cotton today which depressed prices from the opening and closed the market at the lowest of the session, at net declines of 47 to 71 points, new crop positions being weaker than the old. May closed at 29.42 and October at 25.17 cents a pound.

For the lower opening the poor showing of Liverpool was the main cause. Selling was increased by the higher temperatures in the interior and the dry weather prevailing over a good part of the cotton region. Too much rain was complained of in parts of Louisiana and Mississippi, but this was lost sight of in the forecast of fair weather for the western belt and of clearing weather in Mississippi and Alabama. Early declines amounted to 20 to 27 points.

Liquidation of long contracts was a factor of much importance at several stages of the session and seemed to prevent any very wide rallies. There were several upturns but none of them was prolonged. For a while around mid-session the tone was steadied by bullish week-end statistics but in the afternoon the market was easier than ever. Mill takings were larger than expected, 200,000 bales against 190,000 this week last year, while the visible supply of American cotton decreased 112,563 bales, against a decrease this week last year of 48,557, being reduced to 2,280,618 bales against 3,486,350 a year ago.

Cotton Seed Oil.

New York, March 23.—Cotton seed oil advanced 3 to 7 points early on covering and a little buying by the west on the relative steadiness in lard, but prices turned easy towards the last under a renewal of liquidation, prompted by the heavier tone of cotton and grains. Closing bids were 10 points higher for March and 3 to 9 points not lower for the balance. Sales, 18,100 barrels. Prime crude, $10.50@10.75; prime summer yellow, spot, $11.90@12.50; May, $11.82; July, $11.96; September, $11.86, all bid.

News, Views And Reviews

Stock Letter.

There is no public selling of stocks and when they sell, stocks become easier to sell than to buy. While time money is firmer, it is in supply and the federal reserve bank shows a decline of nearly forty million for the week. We still advise the purchase of rails on any concession or weak spots.—Doremus, Daniel & Co.

Stock Opinions Supplied by Doremus, Daniel & Co.

Block Maloney: We recommend taking profits on long stocks as we think they may be replaced lower.

Noyes & Jackson: The list continues to point upward. We think excellent speculative positions exist in the medium and low-priced rails.

Halle & Stieglitz: There are plenty of good stocks in every group to substitute for those stocks which have advanced because of a favorable technical position and substitutions should be made.

E. F. Hutton: The steels are behind the place they should command with their earnings. We like the sugars and some of the rails.

Thomson McKinnon: The market has back of it a tremendous power and there is confidence everywhere of still higher levels.

Housman: Do not hold industrials to entire exclusion of rails. Make some kind of a division at least, it will be a lot safer.

Stock Letter.

New York, March 23.—Industrial reports show steadily increasing earning power which will no doubt be further increased by a slow but steady advance in commodity prices.

American Steel Foundries has consistently ignored all favorable developments in the railroad equipment group. At the present time earnings are exceeding $4 a share, par 35 1-3, and at current levels this stock still yields over 7 per cent on the investment. Net assets are estimated at $52 a share including good will, and under the circumstances it is hard to see how this issue can fail to sell at higher levels in the near future.

There has been a half-hearted revival of interest in th rails following favorable statements of earnings given out by several companies. There is every indication that earnings will continue to increase and these favorable developments should of necessity be reflected in the course of time in the form of higher price levels.

In view of the strong undertone and many favorable developments marketwise, we can only continue to recommend discriminating purchases of the attractive issues in the various groups. Carefully selected stocks at these levels should result in a generous yield combined with a reasonable degree of safety.—Fenner & Beane.

Cotton Letter.

New York, March 23.—The market still seems suffering from an attack of spring fever and acts heavy and rather tired with little lifting power. The best remedy for this would no doubt be reliable advice of an expansion in demand for actual. As usual however at such times as these, vague unconfirmed rumors get into circulation that holders are worried by the absence of demand and that the basis is getting easier. If those rumors are correct we are destined to see a lower market for a time as speculators are mostly against it and looking more for chances to sell than to buy and the trade demand will adjust itself to the degree of eagerness or reluctance shown by holders to part with their cotton. The strength of the statistical position is well-known and has been further increased by the figures for the week but there is enough cotton left to mean a severe if only temporary pressure if a general effort is made to distribute it in haste. The attitude of holders of the remnant of the crop is the keystone of the whole situation and should be watched closely. New crops have been under more pressure due to a favorable view of the weather for the next day or two.—Post & Flagg.

COTTON LETTER.

New Orleans, March 23.—Short sellers seem to have been so encouraged by recent successes that they took advantage of the bulges to sell freely and advances were not sustained. Prospects of better weather in the next day or two and possibility of a general rise in reserve rediscount rates furnished the chief incentives for selling. Higher prices in near future appear likely. —Fenner & Beane.

REACTIONS FELT IN BOND MARKET

Much Interest Displayed in Big Offerings of Rail and Power Companies' First Mortgages.

New York, March 23.—With the exception of the market strength of the Marland Oil company issues, which advanced on higher stock prices, the trend of today's bond market was generally reactionary.

Gains of 6 to 8 points were registered by Marland 7 1-2s and 8s, both with warrants, respectively, and the 7s and 8s were up moderately. Losses of 1 to 2 1-2 points were recorded in Duquesne light 6s, Cerro de Pasco 8s, Punta Alegre Sugar 7s, United Drug 8s, Brooklyn Edison 7s series "D", and Pacific Gas and Electric 5s.

More than ordinary interest was displayed in the offering of J. P. Morgan and company of $10,000,000 New York, Lackawanna and Western first and refunding mortgage 4 1-2 per cent 50-year gold bonds, series D, at 96 1-4 to yield about 4.70 per cent. The issue was readily absorbed.

Public offering also was made of $3,000,000 Illinois Electric Power company first mortgage series "A" 6 per cent 20-year bonds at 97 and interest to yield about 6.53 per cent.

Totals sales, par value, $10,470,000.

Sugar.

New York, March 23.—Raw sugar was steadier early today and prices were advanced to 5.5c for Cubas, cost and freight equal to 7.41 for centrifugal with Porto Rico at the same level. There were sales of 15,000 bags of Cubas and 20,400 bags of Porto Ricos to an operator with outport options for April shipment at quoted prices but at the close there were increased offerings at this level while sugar in nearer positions was offered at 1Sc below this quotation.

Raw sugar futures were irregular, but generally easier. Opening prices were 6 to 20 points lower but a rally quickly followed and in the afternoon values eased off again with final prices 12 to 16 points net lower. Closing: May, 5.55c; July, 5.75; September, 5.90; December, 5.72.

Refined, unchanged at 8.75@9.00c for fine granulated.

Trading in refined sugar futures was confined to one lot for June delivery at 9.25c.

Coffee.

New York, March 23.—Coffee futures were lower today, owing to renewed weakness in the Brazilian markets and further scattering liquidation.

The market opened 10 to 18 points lower and at one time showed net losses of 30 to 35 points with May selling at 10.60c and September at 9.05c, or about 147 to 160 points below the high records of February. There were rallies in May toward the close on covering, but later deliveries showed no improvement and last prices showed net declines of 12 to 32 points. Estimated sales, 15,000 bags. Closing: April, 10.80c; May, 10.76c; July, 9.89c; September, 9.05c; December, 8.78c; March, 8.78c.

Spot coffee dull; Rio 7s, 12½c; Santos 4s, 15¾@15¾c. Cost and freight offers were irregular, including Santos 3 and 5s, part Bourbon, at 14.35c to 14.50c and Rio 7s at 11.95c to 12.10c. American credits.

The early cables from Brazil showed no change in the dollar buying rate with a decline of 125 to 175 reis in the Rio market, with Santos 100 reis lower to 50 reis higher. Later special cables reported further declines of 437 to 1,275 reis in the Rio market and of 25 to 350 reis in Santos.

Brazilian port receipts, 26,000; Jundiahy receipts, 6,000. Rio cleared 6,800 bags for New York.

It is a serious offense to ride a bicycle anywhere near the city of Constantinople.

SEVERAL ISSUES STRONG ON CURB

Schulte and Maracaibo Hit New Highs—Oils Heavy and Mining Groups Irregular.

New York, March 23.—Losses outnumbered gains at the close of today's curb market but impressive independent strength was shown by Schulte stores and Maracaibo Oil, which established new tops at 84 1-2 and 19 1-2, respectively. The former closed at 82 1-2 for a net gain of 4 1-2 points and the latter closed at its top price for a net gain of 3 3-8. Maracaibo 7 per cent bonds of 1925 jumped from 160 to 188. Strength of the Maracaibo issues was founded on the announcement that the company had contracts with the South American Gulf company for the development of part of its Venezuelan properties, receiving a large cash bonus and a share in the profits.

Other oils were heavy. Standard Oil of Kentucky dropping to 96 1-2, but recovering to 98 1-2, off 4 3-8 on the day, the total transactions being relatively small. Most of the other losses were held to fractions.

Narrow and irregular fluctuations took place in the mining group with a renewal of activity in shares selling less than $1.

WOULD TAKE PLACE OF CONVICT FRIEND

Waukegan, Ill., March 23.—Ties of friendship brought Ramon del Toro, of north Chicago, into circuit court here to plead that he might be permitted to serve a prison sentence for his friend, Simon Rodriquez, found guilty of the murder of a fellow-laborer. Rodriquez was sentenced from one year to life in prison.

While Rodriquez stood before Judge Edwards yesterday to receive sentence, del Toro rose from a seat beside the convicted man's wife and her six children, and pleaded earnestly to take the convicted man's punishment. Judge Edwards explained to del Toro that the supreme court has ruled that none except the convicted person can serve sentence for a crime.

W. J. HARRIS VISITS CEDARTOWN HOME

Cedartown, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—Senator William J. Harris spent today at home, stopping over with his brother, Professor J. C. Harris, on his way to south Georgia. Senator Harris will spend part of his vacation here later in the summer.

STRAWBERRY CROP DAMAGED BY COLD

Federal Entomologist Now Estimates Average Damage to Peach Crop at 21 Per Cent.

Dawson, Ga., March 23.—(Special.) The war msunny weather has failed to bring out the drooping strawberry blossoms, according to reports of several growers and about 50 per cent of the strawberry crop appears to have been killed.

This is the second crop killed by the severe cold weather this season and the loss means much to a number of the growers in the county who had counted so strong on the luscious fruit just killed the past few days.

SAY PEACH CROP WILL BE GOOD.

Macon, Ga., March 23.—Final estimates on the damage sustained by the Georgia peach crop in the recent freeze made by Oliver I. Snapp, director of the United States bureau of entomology at Fort Valley, show that it will not be over 21 per cent on the average for all varieties.

Georgia Belles and Hiley Belles, the early varieties, were the heaviest sufferers, according to Mr. Snapp. These were in full bloom and the damage sustained by each was 35 per cent.

Elbertas suffered 6 per cent, Carmens 8 per cent, Uneedas, which were partly in bloom, 14 per cent, yellow Hileys 12 per cent and Hales 5 per cent.

"The peach crop will be a good one if no further damage is done, particularly the Elbertas," said Mr. Snapp. The Elberta trees this year are heavily set. Last year the crop was not so large for Elbertas. There should be a good crop of Hiley Belles as these trees are moderately heavy set.

DIEBEL IS FIGHTING RETURN TO ATLANTA

The effort to bring Fred S. Diebel from New Orleans to Atlanta to answer an indictment charging the forgery of a $3,000 check has been temporarily blocked by a writ of habeas corpus obtained by Diebel who claims a mistake in identity, according to information received Friday from the Louisiana city.

Hearing on the habeas corpus writ is scheduled in federal court at New Orleans. Diebel's attor

ROTARIANS MEETING IN ST. PETERSBURG

Georgia and Florida Members of Civic Club Hold District Conference.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 23.—One thousand Rotarians from Georgia and Florida are assembled here today and tomorrow for their annual district conference. Jeffery Lydiatt, Calgary, Alta., Canada, international director, who is representing the international board here, says this conference is the largest of four such conferences which he has attended recently. Hhe delivered the chief address of the forenoon.

Macon, Ga., probably will get the 1924 conference. Rodger Miller extended the invitation officially this morning and was seconded by Thomas E. Law, of Atlanta. Decision is left to the district officers who will decide in September or October. No other invitations were planned. Model luncheons were served at noon by the clubs from Savannah, Fort Myers, Lakeland and St. Augustine.

RABBI MARX SPEAKS AT ROTARY SESSION

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 23.—Fellowship was the keynote sounded by Rabbi David Marx of the Atlanta Rotary club, chief speaker at the first day's closing session today of the Florida-Georgia district convention of Rotarians. He declared that international friendship was developed from the advancement of local friendship and said that barring the European immigrant from the United States was opposed to this ideal.

Election of a governor will take place tomorrow. Macon, Ga., probably will be the next meeting place.

Passing of Flogging

WHY LASH WILL NOT RETURN

His home was in North Dakota. He was young. He wanted to see the world. As so many other boys have done, he roamed away.

Just before Christmas, 1921, he was hoboing in Florida. He was arrested at Tallahassee, within a week of Christmas eve, for beating his way on a railroad train. The court sentenced him to pay a fine of $25 and costs or go to prison for three months.

A wire carried the news home to North Dakota. The mother sent the money by registered letter. It was returned on December 26, the day after the whole world was celebrating the birthday of our Lord, with the notation:

"Returned by request of sheriff, party gone."

On February 1 the boy lay dead in a prison camp.

Fellow prisoners say that he died as the result of a merciless beating by a "whipping boss."

The man, who slept by him in the prison bunk, says that when the young man was brought to the camp he was suffering with boils, his feet being swollen. He complained of headaches and could not eat. There was a swelling in each of his groins which the doctor who visited the prison camp lanced late in January.

He was flogged, it is said, for being slow in his work.

His back, those who prepared his body for burial say, was bruised and blistered to his knees, the flesh cut and swollen here and over the head and shoulders. Four prisoners bore him to his grave. The mother learned the facts about her boy's going when a fellow-prisoner, released in August, wrote the postmaster at Munich, N. D.

Boy Is Dead.

The legislature of North Dakota has asked the legislature of Florida for a full investigation. Efforts are being made to indict and try the "whipping boss" for murder. And suit for damages has been brought.

But none of these things, nor all of them can bring back life to this woman's son, dead with his pitifully scarred back and buried in prison clothes, because the mother's money did not reach him in time to pay $25 and costs for stealing a ride on a railroad train.

The majority of newspapers seen by us in Georgia and elsewhere have highly commended Governor Hardwick's action in putting a stop to the flogging of prisoners in Georgia's convict camps and prisons. But here and there have appeared an editorial or two or a letter written by those who seem to believe that sentimentalists, who have given no real consideration to the seriousness of the prison problem, have induced the governor to support the constitution of Georgia, which clearly forbids flogging as a punishment in Georgia.

The writers of these editorials and letters and those who are tempted to think like them are asked to consider this Florida case. The victim was young, white and a member of a good family in another state.

But he was in prison. Yes, for stealing a ride on a railroad train. And he was sick when he was beaten.

Georgia Cases.

Could a sick man be beaten in Georgia's prisons? Not since the governor's orders forbidding flogging. But we recall the newspaper account of the convict found dying, or dead, on his face in the ditch in Chatham county. He had been sick. He had been beaten.

And none, who saw it, will ever forget the photograph of the breast and back of the convict, which was shown to a grand jury of Fulton county several years ago. He, too, had been charged with being slow to work. The lash was applied, scarring his back. The photograph, which showed the lines cut by the scourge, also showed a cancerous growth open in the man's breast.

He had excuse for being slow at work.

Purposely, these cases from Chatham and Fulton counties are cited because these two counties, of all of the 160 counties of Georgia, have the least excuse for such occurrences.

To the honor of Chatham county, it must be said, that many months before Governor Hardwick's order the county officials had put an end to the use of the lash.

This committee has no fear that any serious effort will ever be made to override the constitution of Georgia by making rules permitting the beating of men in Georgia prisons. Neither has the committee any fight to make upon the men in or out of office who have honestly believed that the law of Georgia permitted this practice. The rulings of the governor and of the attorney general, the committee believes, has for all times settled that question.

But the Committee on Church Co-operation wants something more than a mere compliance with the letter of the law.

Prison Commission's Work.

Remembering how Christ taught that, in the day of judgment, one of the tests which will be applied to those who appear before the Judge of all is this question of treatment of those "sick and in prison," we must confess to no little sympathy with the unfortunate behind the bars. You will recall Jesus saying:

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

He identified Himself with those in prison.

But we do not believe that Jesus taught that sentimentalism should ever dictate the control of dangerous criminals. They must be controlled. They will be.

We appreciate the difficulties which confront the prison commissin and the wardens in charge of the prison camps and convicts of Georgia. Theirs is a hard and trying job. Particularly difficult is it to change a system, which, whether lawful or unlawful, has been permitted to continue for years.

But it is not an impossible task. Thirty-three states and practically all civilized governments have already accomplished it. And the opportunity is before these men, now in office, to do a great and humane work for the whole of Georgia.

As they undertake it we would urge that all support them in it. Pray that Almighty God may guide their every thought and act.

And if this should be read by any prisoner, will you not also help?

Prove to the world that, though you may have fallen, your are a prisoner, you are still a man, who can appreciate the efforts of men to help you and your fellow-prisoners.

Show that brutality is not necessary to control a convict camp.

THE COMMITTEE ON CHURCH CO-OPERATION.

THIEVES TAKE JEWELRY

Doctor's Office, Home and Cigar Store Burglarized.

Thieves entered the home of Mrs. W. B. Reeves, Jr., 195 North Highland avenue early Friday and took jewelry valued at more than $1,000, articles of clothing, $54 in money, and a large suitcase to take their loot away in, according to a report received by the police Friday.

A quantity of cigars and cigarettes were taken Thursday night from the pool room and cigar store of Mike Kalethy, 6-8 South Butler street, within the shadow of the detective offices; police were told Friday.

Medical books, window shades, in fact everything that wasn't nailed down, were stolen from the offices of Dr. Fred G. Hodgson, 746 Peachtree street, Thursday night, Dr. Hodgson told police.

NEGRO BISHOP SPEAKS IN ATLANTA MONDAY

Bishop R. S. Williams, of Augusta, presiding elder of the Georgia conference of the colored Methodist church, will address a ministers' meeting of the colored Methodist church south, at Wesley Memorial church at a meeting Monday morning at 10 o'clock on "Co-operation." He will also be the principal speaker at a mass meeting of the colored Methodist churches to be held Monday evening at Butler Street Colored Methodist church.

It is estimated that mankind at large consumes in the neighborhood of 20,000,000 tons of meat a year.

Victory and Loss For Agnes Scott Girls in Debate

Decatur Contestants Defeat Sophie Newcombe—Lose to Randolph-Macon.

One lost and one won was the record of the Agnes Scott college debating teams Friday night. One Agnes Scott team won over a Sophie Newcombe team from New Orleans in a debate in Decatur, while taking the affirmative, but the other Agnes Scott team lost to Randolph-Macon, at Randolph-Macon, Ga., while taking the negative. Randolph-Macon also conquered a Sophie Newcombe team in New Orleans.

The subject debated was: "Resolved, That the United States Should Cancel Debts Owed to Her by Nations Associated With Her in the World War."

In Decatur, Miss Daisy Frances Smith and Miss Pocahontas Wight represented Agnes Scott, and Miss Virginia Budwer and Miss Ula Milner, Sophie Newcombe.

The judges were Dr. C. E. Johnson, of Emory university; Dr. L. V. Libbey, of Oglethorpe, and Dr. Foster, of the University of Georgia.

NOTICE.

GEORGIA—Grady County.

By virtue of an order of the Superior Court for Grady county, Georgia, entered on the 7th day of March, 1923, in the case of J. F. Lewis vs. Pelham & Havanna Railroad Company, therein pending, I will, as receiver in said case, sell at public outcry, on the first Tuesday in April, 1923, before the Courthouse door in Cairo, Georgia, during the legal hours of sale to the highest bidder, the following property as the property of Pelham & Havanna Railroad Company, to wit:

Franchise of said corporation; all tracks and right of way of said railroad in Cairo and that part in Georgia leading from said Cairo, Ga., to Havanna, Fla.; all rolling stock; books and accounts; station houses and all other property, real and personal, located in Grady county and used in operating said railroad. Said sale to be subject to the confirmation of the court. Ten per cent of bid to be paid to me on day of sale and balance of bid to be paid on confirmation of sale and execution by me of deed of conveyance to purchaser which will be executed when sale is confirmed.

This, the 8th day of March, 1923.
ALVIN WIGHT, Receiver.
